Two hundred children from Supervisory District No. 1 are eligible to compete in the spelling contest for the county championships in each grade, from the third to the eighth, which will be held in Eugene May 16. Great plans have been made for this school festival, including an exhibit to be held in the P.
E. & E. building at the corner of Tenth and Willamette Streets, a parade, to consist of floats and marchers representing all schools in the county excepting those in the Siuslaw Supervisory, which district will not be represented in the fete, and the grand spelling match which begins at the high school building promptly at 12:30. The parade, which is to be conducted by C. R. Stahlman, will take place at 2 o'clock.
The spelling contests will be written, fifty words being given from the part of the work covered by each grade during the year and ties spelled off by giving twenty-five extra words from a prepared list. The educational exhibit will be open the entire afternoon. The program at the park, which will immediately follow the parade, will consist of the five minute stunts or programs prepared by each of the schools, the salute and pledge to the flag, and the announcement of the prize winners.
A special rate of a fare and a third has been made for the occasion by the Southern Pacific.
A list of those from this district who are eligible will be published next week.

WISHES COTTAGE GROVE TO

DR. HODGE TELLS HOW TO RID CITY OF FILTH-BIRTHED DIS-EASE CARRYING PESTS.

With the fight against the typhoid fly, or common housefly, well under way in many cities of the state, an increased effort is being made by Dr. Clifton N.
Hodge of the University of Oregon to interest other cities in the movement for a flyless Oregon. He is anxious that Cottage Grove enter the campaign.
Dr. Hodge's whole campaign, which has proven so practical and so effective in many instances, is to trap and kill the breeders. It rests primarily upon the theory that to rid Oregon of flies the multiplication must be stopped, and to do that the present flies must be destroyed. In order to attain this end he recommends that the campaign be started just as early as possible, so that fewer flies will have a chance to breed before they are killed; another major premise of his argument is that in order to prevent breeding it is of immense importance to do away with breeding places; and the third premise is to do away with all existing flies. To this end he has invented a number of fly traps which are not only very effective but can be used without so much as touching a single fly. He does not believe in the fly swatters as in its use some flies are likely to be overlooked on the floor or elsewhere and later breathed or eaten as just. For the few remaining flies which escape the traps he advises the use of a simple, small net made after the style of the butterfly net.
The directions for making fly traps may be obtained by addressing the University of Oregon asking for the "Flyless Oregon" bulletin, or one may make a good trap remembering the principle that flies tend to crawl upward toward the light (unless seeking food by smell or a place to deposit, when they may crawl down into dark cracks). Hence, by arranging cracks and holes in screen wire pointing upward, any kind of a box, with no cracks or holes in it through which a fly can crawl, may be transformed into an effective flytrap. It is a good plan to make these traps so that they may be fitted into an open window, admitting flies from both inside and out, preventing them from getting out to manure and rubbish piles to breed, or into the house to feed. For use in a stable window they may be made the size of the window or smaller and the open space in the window covered with gunny sacking or boards. The other windows should then be darkened.

Flies multiply very rapidly, a generation breeding in ten days. Each female (and half the flies are females), lay 150 eggs every ten days and the young ones begin laying when ten days old, so that a single pair of flies will, in three months, produce 5,746,670,500 flies or approximately 143,675 bushels.
