THE WILD OSWALD WEST SHOW.
The unique, most senseless exhibition of its kind on earth. Nothing like it ever heard of before—nothing like it will ever be heard of again.
Stage managed and directed by the peerless Oswald West, the greatest adverse advertiser Oregon has ever known.
—The last stand of freakish, frisky frontierism.
Comes fresh from a six weeks' engagement at Copperfield and a three days' stand at the Friars' Club.
60—performing militia boys in uniform—60. Count 'em. Every one a star performer. Watch 'em.
Balloon ascensions every hour as long as the hot air lasts.
Featuring Col. Bert Lawson in fancy, frivolous, frolicsome, funny and fatuous rat killing.
Miss Fern Hobbs, pretty and petite, secured at the highest salary of any woman in Oregon, takes a part especially prepared for her by the proprietor of the show.
Frank Snodgrass appears in a daring, dare-devil act that chills the corpuses and causes hair to stand erect on a bald head. Clothed in all the authority of martial law he grasps six blind tigers by the hind legs, mashes their heads to a pulp, gags, binds them and throws them through the open door of a freight car bound for the county seat.
The Governor of Oregon, who has never been in captivity, appears in the slickest, slipperiest, slack wire act ever invented. Suspended upside down 500 feet in the air, with nothing between him and certain death but salubrious Oregon ozone, he drops the toga about the shoulders of the residuary legatee.
The show has no regular managerie but it makes monkeys out of people while you wait.
Next date not yet made.
Admission free—except to taxpayers.

THE SENTINEL'S PURPOSE AND DUTY.
The editor of The Sentinel has been considerably criticized, both by friend and foe, because The Sentinel has had the supreme temerity to forecast the defeat of certain candidates and the success of others, and has said other things that may interfere in some way with the candidacy of its editor for the Legislature. Therefore the following explanation is made:
The Sentinel is conducted in the interests of those who believe that it is worth $1.50 a year to them, and who demonstrate sufficient confidence in the publishers thereof to pay that amount in advance for a year's subscription. In return for the confidence which its readers have reposed in its editor and publishers, they are entitled to the same kind of newspaper that they would get were its editor not a candidate for the Legislature, and the editor does not propose to let his candidacy for the Legislature interfere with his duty to the readers of the paper. Should he shape the policies of the paper to subserv his own personal interests he would not be honest to the readers of The Sentinel, many of whom may not be in any way interested in his candidacy, or who may expect, and are entitled to, advice and information concerning other candidates. When, in order to be elected to office, he must cease to think, when he must cease to edit a paper in the same manner that he would conduct it were he not a candidate for office, he will take the alternative of staying at home and attending to business. He does not care enough about office to trim his sails to every breeze that blows, and even if he did care that much he could not so do. He is not built that way. No one should vote for him if they want a man who is afraid to say what he thinks. He may not always be right, but he expects to have ideas on any subject with which he has to deal and may insist on expressing them.
Congressman Hawley is rapidly strengthening his position in Washington. A new man would be able to do little but mark time for four years. The West needs to get over changing its congressmen with every change of the moon if it is to have any influence at the National capital.
My, but it will be lonesome in a couple of days with no candidates dropping in to shake hands.
If you don't vote Friday, you have no kick coming if the right men are not nominated.

Things We Think
Things others think, and what we think of the things others think.

The wisest people in the world are sometimes the easiest fooled on some little thing that doesn't amount to anything.
It is better to raise the devil than to bury hope.
It is possible to tell the truth and still be mistaken.
Every leader is a follower of someone.
We all like to be fooled into believing that the nice things said about us are true.
It is hard for people to do the best they can when they know that those about them will be satisfied with the poorest they can do.
Trying to go ahead too fast puts many people behind.
A policeman recently alleged that his health was weakened by exposure to the night air. Yet sleeping outdoors is advocated by all health experts.
A Waterloo isn't so bad—it depends which side we are on.
The ability to smile, even under adversity, is a valuable characteristic—but the smile of incredulity has made many an enemy.
The person who doesn't know when his welcome is worn out is seldom welcome in the first place.
Some women draw men like poisoned sweet water does flies.
They say money talks, but from any noise we've ever heard it make we'd imagine it was deaf and dumb, tongue-tied and had lost control of its vocal organs.
It's absolutely impossible to convince your conscience that something's right when in your mind you know it's wrong.
A wedding gown never looks well made over for a divorce suit.
A rolling stone gathers no moss, but anyway it keeps out of other people's roads.
No one can act more pompous than the little fellow who has been suddenly elevated to something—and none looks more wizened up when defeated.
Some self made men look as if they had been unexpectedly discovered at the job.
Divorce suits keep some lawyers in clothes.
When you look up to someone they don't of necessity look down on you.
A level-headed man is, of course, evenly balanced.
If you don't know what you want there is no use trying to get it.
Some folks make fools of themselves by trying to appear to know more than they really do.
By chasing the big things many little things may escape you—but in chasing the little ones the big ones are certain to escape.
The person who tries to please everyone doesn't even satisfy himself.
A woman can be unreasonable on the most reasonable kind of pretext.
We sometimes think that maybe a lot of women want to vote more because they think men don't want them to than for any other reason.
There's a right way to do everything, but those who hesitate to do things for fear they are not doing them the right way aren't going to get very far.
There are a lot of things to be righted in the social and political world, and every candidate thinks he is the man ordained by God to do the job.
Anyone who can win the love of little children is not wholly bad and is choosing company that will have a good influence upon him.
Sometimes we are not appreciative enough of what we do not get.
Buoys are neuter gender.
Children who raise the roof are better than those who have no other ambition than to sit in the parlor with the company with their hands folded.
When a political party is "in" too long it gets found out.
A person can't expect to collect his thoughts unless he has some out.
There is only one thing lower than a nonentity—that's an ex-vice-president.

The man who doesn't collect his bills is about as bad as the person who doesn't pay his bills—and both are usually found in the same person.

It is impossible to fight for the right without forcing someone to defend the wrong.

No person ever gets so high in the mental world that he is not benefitted once in a while by performing labor with his hands.

To the Republican Voters of Lane County:

I am a candidate for the Republican nomination for County Judge of Lane County. I have been urged by my friends to make a personal canvass for the nomination, but have not done so. In the first place, I haven't had time, and in the second place, it is repugnant to me to make an active personal campaign within my own party.
I have all my life been interested in politics, and believe in the principles of the National Republican party. I have held office in Minnesota as a Republican, and have been a delegate to many Republican Conventions there, both county and state. Since coming to Oregon, over twelve years ago, I have represented Lane County in the Legislature as a Republican, for three sessions; once as Representative, and twice in the Senate.

I believe I am qualified for the office of County Judge, both as Judge of Probate, and as Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners. As Probate Judge, the County Judge should have some legal qualifications, as all the property in the county, sooner or later, passes through the Probate Court; and as a member of the Board of County Commissioners, he should have good business qualifications, as the County Court expends all the money collected as taxes, and the matter of the sober discretion and business judgment of that body is of vital importance to every taxpayer.

I was engaged in the active practice of law for seventeen years in Minnesota, and have been in close touch with the practice in this state during my residence in Lane County.

I consider the Republican nomination for County Judge as practically equivalent to an election; and if elected, I shall strive to give the county an efficient, economical business administration, and to see that every section of the county, and every individual and business interest are treated with absolute impartiality; and I believe I have the training and ability to do so. I have no business interests of any kind that will conflict with my giving my undivided attention to the business of the county, and that will be my business if elected.

I have made no promises of any kind to any individual or community, and shall be free to act independently as occasion arises. Although a Republican, as County Judge, I should know no party or faction, but represent all alike.

I look at the matter as largely a business proposition, so far as the voters are concerned, and if, in the judgment of the Republican voters, one of my opponents shall be considered as better qualified than I for the office, I shall cheerfully acquiesce in that decision.
Dated, May 1, 1914.

To the Tollers of Lane County.

I am a candidate for Republican nomination for County Judge of Lane County. I am a veteran of the Civil War; have had an extended experience as an accountant while in Government service; am a granger and reside on my fruit farm just outside the city limits of Eugene. My interests, my ties, my life is inseparably interlinked with the agricultural and industrial people in a changeless purpose and effort to provide for my loved ones by honest toil. In so far as I am master of my pen and my voice I have earnestly endeavored to make our world just a little brighter for having lived in it. I have always rejoiced with you in your joys—your sorrows have been my sorrows.
I have been so vain as to imagine that it is greatly to the credit of our country that a man can be brought from the bosom of the plain people and lifted into the highest stations of official place and power without in the slightest degree losing his identity with them; reflecting in these exalted positions of honor and trust what the plain people feel in their hearts and what they believe and teach in their homes, thus keeping up a perpetual bond of affectionate union between those in official authority in our Government and those people who are so bravely working out their destiny in the retirement of private life.

If nominated and elected, I will devote my entire time and attention to the duties of the office and I am sure that my fellow-citizens will always find in me an impartial and systematic friend and co-laborer.

W. G. D. MERCER.

Hurd Tells Where He Stands.

I am a candidate for the republican nomination for County Commissioner. I have lived for the past eighteen years on a farm between Junction City and Eugene. During the past five years I have made a thorough study of the road question, both from a constructive and maintenance standpoint. I believe that our greatest financial loss comes from our antiquated method of upkeep.
That wherever roads have been constructed in anything like a permanent form that a system of roads patrol should be maintained so that repairs could be made when needed.

I believe that our present high rate of taxes can be reduced by an economical administration of county affairs without impairing the efficiency of service.

I believe that all parts of the county should be treated fairly in the distribution of the road funds and as far as possible money should be collected for road work in that district.
If this corresponds with your views vote X 76 on May 15.
