MANAGER WALLACE QUITS IN INTEREST OF ECONOMY

In order to economize in the conduct of the business of the cannery and also to be able to attend to his own business, which he has been neglecting, C. W. Wallace resigned from the management of the cannery at the meeting of the directors last night. Chas. E. Bales, who was already in the employ of the cannery, was elected to take Mr. Wallace's place. The board of directors, of which Mr. Wallace remains chairman, is employing every method of economy to make the business show a profit the first year and the members are donating considerable of their time to the work. Secretary Cooley in particular has offered to donate considerable of his time.

CHURCHES WILL CONTINUE BALL GAMES

Games between the church teams of the city will be continued as long as the season permits of night playing. This was the decision of the meeting of ball players held at the commercial club last night, but no regular league was formed. Hereafter all chances of dispute as to players will be eliminated by the captains of the three teams before each game. The captains will act as a board of censors. This board will also select umpires.

Ex-Cannibal Returns.

The Eugene Register of recent date has the following to say of a colored missionary who visited Cottage Grove three years ago:

"David John Henry Allen Zamboss Swank Hanner, junior, a dusky hued missionary who hails from Hayti, is here again. 'Not as the conquering hero comes' but on 'shanks horses' has this man of many names come to Eugene. Seven times around the world, as sailor, as steamboatman, as section hand, and trades that number the same as his names, this missionary has made his way.

"Clad in a long black swallow tailed coat, a slouch hat, and with dusty and 'holy' shoes this self styled 'ex-cannibal,' faithfully looking the part, is here to preach the gospel to the unbelievers. In a tiny battered suit case he carries his worldly effects, mostly tracts.

Prohibition is one of Swack's most salient points. He delivered himself yesterday of a novel observation of the saloon question, one that has long been bothering him. According to Swack Hanner:

"We might as well have saloons if you allow your young women to dress in these latest fads from Paris, slit skirts, horrible hobbles, ex-ray dresses, and shadow skirts. The same is true where the young women are learning to do these fancy dance steps—the tango, bunny hug, calf canter, cactus crawl, barnyard dip, turkey trot, castle waltz."

"Bootlegging, blind pigs and moonshining likewise come in for a goodly share of Swack Hanner, junior's antipathy and he further believes that saloons should exist as long as divorcees are allowed, and grafting 'of high and low officials continue."

"David John Henry Allen Zamboss Swack Hanner, junior, is only in town for a short time. If he can get an audience he wishes to speak in some church, telling his experiences as a world roamer. 'I haven't got mah good clothes with me this time, sah, but Ah got a education, you can bet your life,' said Swack as he started out in search of a place to sleep last night."

RURAL SCHOOLS OF COUNTY RANK HIGH

Lane Standardizes 75 During Year Just Past, Increases Salaries and Erects Buildings.

Lane County claims more rural schools, more standardized schools, and more rural teachers than any other county in Oregon. During the past year it has increased the salaries of its teachers, both men and women; it has built 14 new school buildings and more new school buildings are contemplated for the next fiscal year than are shown in the annual report of the school superintendent, just completed. The county has standardized 75 schools this year. It has 11,985 school children, 416 teachers and 202 schoolhouses, containing 400 schoolrooms in operation.

The schools have cost the county more than a third of a million, of which $181,533.09 represents the salaries of the teachers. This averages $83.15 a month for male teachers and $63.71 for female teachers. The average tax levy was 3.9 mills. The 14 new school buildings have cost $67,000.

OREGON HOTEL ANNEX FIRE QUICKLY EXTINGUISHED

Spark From Chimney Catches in Dry Moss.—Greatest Damage From Water.

Owing to the fact that a part of the edition of The Sentinel was printed before the occurrence of the fire at the Oregon Hotel last week, the following account is reprinted:

What at first threatened to be a serious fire broke out last Wednesday afternoon in the wooden annex of the Hotel Oregon building. It is thought that the fire caught from a spark in the moss on the roof and burned a hole through the roof. Within a few minutes the space between the roof and the ceiling was a furnace of flames. The firemen had some difficulty in getting the stream to playing directly on the blaze, but had the fire under control in a short space of time. The principal damage resulted from water. The loss to the owners of the building was completely covered by insurance.

Repairs were quickly begun on the damaged portion and the dining room was reopened for business Tuesday morning.
