

Closing Out Sale--We Are Going to Quit

Our goods were all bought at the lowest possible net cash prices. To close them out quickly we will sell them at net cost, and much of the stock at less than cost. Stop and consider what this means to you. You are able to buy goods at less than the lowest possible net wholesale cost. Not at the present wholesale cost but the whole-sale cost of goods bought before any advance.

Buy Now---The War Is Boosting Prices

Any one not directly interested in the mercantile business is not aware of the extent to which wholesale prices on all merchandise has been advanced... Dry Goods have been advanced 10 to 50 per cent. Shoes have been advanced 25 per cent, and the best informed say they will advance 75 to 100 per cent. Men's and women's ready-to-wear garments have advanced 30 per cent.

All merchants who are going to remain in business must soon raise their present prices, for all merchandise is going still higher. Of these advances we have taken no advantage.

Don't Overlook
this Big Money-Saving
Event

As to Groceries they have kept pace with the advances in other goods. As an instance, Rice & Phelan, a mail order house of Portland, where some of our people think they can buy "cheap," quote in their last catalog, just issued, Head Rice at $7.75 per 100 pounds. We offer it to our customers as long as our present stock lasts for $4.50
Japanese style Rice they quote at $5.75, we will sell, the same quality at $4.00

THE OBSERVER

Home Study Great Benefit to Parent and Child

The Observer.

In starting out to furnish The Cottage Grove Sentinel with a series of articles on local matters, I know of no better subject to launch than that of the public schools, since they are about to open for another fall and winter term. Perhaps the reason this subject is first in my mind is because of an incident that came to my view a short time ago, and it was one that I hope has happened and is happening in many homes in this vicinity just now.

For some reason, I do not now remember what, I was called to a neighbor's house, and upon reaching there found the mother with her small son working the problems in arithmetic that the boy will wrestle with in school the coming year. The lad was, of course, opposed to making school days of his vacation—and especially so of the very last days of his vacation. But the mother assured me he was being deprived of but little play. She showed me the school work the boy had been doing all summer, and I am sure that boy is going to be one of the best pupils in his class this year. Like the average boy, arithmetic is hard for him, and his mother, realizing this, has not only urged him, but when necessary has compelled him to give one hour a day all summer to the problems he will have the coming year. He has gone over them twice and probably will finish the third time before school begins. I have not yet inquired, but I am going to inquire of that boy's teacher this year and learn, for my own satisfaction, if that mother's work has not borne good fruit. The woman told me that her son always had abhorred the study of geography, too, but the deplorable conditions that have arisen in Europe have changed his mind and have made an eager student of her son in this one study. In fact, the boy does not need to be urged to study his geography now, but keeps both his father and mother busy answering questions, and, as might be supposed, makes them refer to the book quite often to be able to answer his questions.

It seems to me that every parent should explain the present war to his children, and if they are old enough to comprehend, point out the places of interest in Europe just now while the child will naturally be more interested in them. Such a policy might be the starting point in making a boy or girl an eager student of a study they all need, but which he or she may never become deeply interested in otherwise. And the parents, themselves, will find much of interest in using the geography while keeping posted on the present turmoil across the seas. I, myself, while not claiming to be a great student, was greatly surprised when I consulted the geography a few weeks ago to ascertain the latitude of Servia.

When in school, myself, I surely learned something of this country's climate, but time had wholly obliterated whatever I might have known. I was sure Servia was a cold country, probably because I had forgotten its location, other than knowing "it was over by Russia." You may imagine my surprise, and if you haven't read up on it, yourself, you may be surprised, to learn just how far south it is and that its climate is temperate.

Things We Think

Things others think, and what we think of the things others think.

The man who lets woman have her own way and never talks back, probably comes the nearest to understanding her of any of them.

It is a "grave" offense to call a man a dead one.

The person who leads you into temptation seldom leads you out.

When you convert an enemy into a friend you usually have a sticker.

Some girls handle their beaus like a postmaster sorting mail.

The man who works for himself gets paid in his own coin.

We have heard men sneer at the way women waste talk and then go home and try to get the best of their wives in an argument.

A set of triplets may make the house look like a war had struck it, but could not be called the triple entente.

A woman has just got a judgment of $25,000 in a breach-of-promise suit. She is an old maid and may figure that she is money out at that.

When in doubt as to whether to say something that won't do you any particular good, you won't lose anything by not saying it.

When you see the words "Paid Advertising" under a reading notice you can make up your mind that the man for whose benefit it was run had enough appreciation of the value of newspaper space to offer to pay for it or else ran up against a newspaper man who refused to be press-agented.

Why will folks do things when they know better? That's the puzzle.

You can't judge accurately during the first few months of a young couple's married life which one is going to be boss.

A great big 250-pound man appears painfully out of place trying to act comfortable drinking tea at a ladies' aid.

Some men haven't sense enough to make use of what sense they have.

When a man makes repeated mistakes he loses confidence in himself as rapidly as others do.

If a man had to live in the house as much as a woman, he wouldn't hold the screen door open when talking to someone on the outside.

When you hear a man say he doesn't care for compliments, it's a pretty safe bet that he wants you to say you admire him for that.

Don't spend all your time in telling what you are going to do. Save some of it to tell why you didn't do it.

The man who married his second wife the day of his first wife's funeral, saved the trouble of changing his clothes once.

The tax collector never pleases a customer but they all come back to him the next year just the same.

If war is hell, the preachers have an object lesson at the present time that ought to aid them in getting a lot of folks started the other way.

An erudite Italian who has made a study of such things says that the longer the tail the less intelligence the animal has. We have seen some people who, if this statement has any scientific foundation, ought to have developed a caudal appendage that they could wrap around the neck four or five times and have enough left to tie a four-in-hand tie in front.

They say much of the chicken friacas is made of rabbits. Well, what of it? The rabbit is cleaner meat than the chicken. Hop to it.

Salvation is on the free list but the easiest way to get the money is with some fake religion.

We hear so much about young women marrying old men just to get them in their coffins and get into their coffers. It would be interesting to know why young men don't marry old women for the same reason.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.
