Valley Canneries Prosper.

The citizens of Dallas have long talked about the establishment of a cannery at this place, and therefore a statement just made by Arthur Rupert of the Northwest Cannery Association, will be of some interest. This association controls the output of plants at Eugene, Cottage Grove, Brownsville, Junction City, Forest Grove, Newberg, Springbrook and Hood River. Mr. Rupert says: "Oregon producers of fruits and vegetables have had a fairly prosperous year, and the prospects are that 1915 will bring larger returns. The past year's output is valued at $728,000 in canned foods and $50,000 in berries packed in barrels for shipment to eastern preservers. The stock is well cleaned up now. Four hundred cars of our output went to supply the trade in states east and south of Colorado clear to the Atlantic seaboard. Eighteen cars of barreled berries were shipped out by the Oregon canning and packing plants."—Dallas Observer.

Christian Church Has All-Day Session.

The New Year's Day meeting at the Christian Church was one of the most successful affairs in the history of the church. The members gathered before dinner for social intercourse. After the bountiful repast the roll of the church was called and a large attendance was shown.

Reports were received from the officers, showing the church to be in good shape, financially and otherwise.

Short talks on the past, present and future work of the church were made by Dr. Fuller, Daniel Read, A. L. Zacharias and J. B. Protzman.

Ernest Lockwood entertained Mr. and Mrs. Geo. M. Scott and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Wallace at dinner at the Hotel Oregon one evening last week.

Halsey Enterprise: Mr. Dwight Smith and Miss Mildred Marsters were married Wednesday morning, December 30, at 10 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Marsters. Only relatives and a few intimate friends of the contracting parties witnessed the ceremony. The Rev. J. S. Green officiated. After the wedding the happy couple left on the 1:18 train for their honeymoon in Eugene.

The bride is a sister of Mrs. Andrew Brund of this city and has visited here several times.

There was a watch party at the Lee Thomson home Thursday evening. Rook served as a pastime until 12 o'clock, when Mrs. Thomson, assisted by Mollie Teeters, served an excellent lunch. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. C. D. VanValin, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Kirk, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Teeters, Bertha Kirk, Nellie Teeters, Mollie Teeters, Wayne Kirk, B. Henry Salton celebrated his seventieth birthday anniversary Thursday. A few friends enjoyed dinner with him.

The M. P. G. Club will meet next Tuesday with Mrs. C. E. Frost.

An even dozen of the feminine clerks of the city treated themselves to a five course chicken dinner at the Hotel Oregon Monday night. After dinner several toasts were given, the one by Miss Wright making an especial hit. It was to "Woman" and the girls say every man should have a copy. There were readings by Miss VanDeburg, Miss Pringle and Miss Bartels. The table was prettily set and decorated with carnations and smilax. After the meal the diners attended the show. Those present were Misses Wright, Cole, Harnes, Bartels, Pringle, Marguerite Johnson, Ipha Widdersheim, Griffin, Vandenberg, Maybelle Wilson, Whitsett, Holderman.

There was a man who was wondrous wise; he jumped into a bramble bush and scratched out both his eyes. Then he put a wand ad. in The Sentinel and got them back again.

FADS AND FANCIES

If, when baking layer cakes, etc., you have a space too small for another pan, place a can with ends melted off in the space and set the extra pan on it. The heat will reach the baking article just the same.

Wet the bruised part of your furniture with warm water; double a piece of brown paper five or six times, soak it and lay it on the place; apply a hot flat iron on that until the moisture is evaporated. If the bruise be not gone, repeat the process. After two or three applications the dent or bruise will be raised to the level of the surface. This recipe is very handy for I have tried it many times and have succeeded.

If eggs are stained wash them quickly in water containing a little vinegar and salt water.

A novel cranberry sauce has seeded dates added to it. Of course it requires less sugar.

A little tin funnel held by its ring is excellent to hold a ball of string in the kitchen.

Removing the outer leaves of the cabbage before boiling will lessen the objectionable odor.

In making omelet, it is better to add hot water than milk, as milk makes the omelet tough.

Pickles may be kept from becoming moldy by laying a bag of mustard on top of the pickle jar.

After roasting a piece of meat, which is to be served cold, wrap it in cheesecloth while it is still hot. This preserves the flavor.

One Industry Transformed a State.

(Medford Mail Tribune.)
What sugar beets mean to the farmers of Colorado is fully set forth in the Opportunity edition of the Denver Post, dated December 30, 1914. From it the following facts are gleaned:

"Colorado's best sugar crop for 1914 beats all records in value, attaining the high figure of $19,470,330 at the factory price, which excludes all freight and other marketing costs.

"This industry, the greatest of the agricultural class, caused the distribution in the state of $16,764,433, all of which went to farmers, labor and for supplies, most of which were purchased here.

"To plant, cultivate and garner the crop, $12,452,233 was paid out to farmers and their help, the remainder going into factory costs. The total yield in refined sugar was 432,674,000 pounds of a factory worth of $19,470,000."

It is just fifteen years since the first sugar beet sugar factory was erected in Colorado by Charles Boettcher, who met ridicule and discouragement from farmers who styled his enterprise, "Boettcher's dream." Since then the industry has disbursed more than $150,000,000, most of it to the farmers of Colorado. Beet land now sells for $200 an acre, where before the advent of the factory it was held dear at $75 an acre.

But the benefits have not stopped with the beets. It has resulted in an entire change in the methods of farming, a transformation from muckback farming to intensive modern farming, to crop rotation and soil improvement.

At the close of the fifteenth year of the sugar industry in Colorado, there are 134,308 acres of land in beets. The production, 1,730,000 tons. The sugar content has increased until in 1914 it averages for the northern fields 2 per cent higher than the national average, while the yield is fourteen tons to the acre, taking the entire state by and large. The yield brings the growers an average in Colorado of $5.80 a ton, or about $71 an acre, at a cost of $45, an average profit of $26 an acre.

Aside from its primary product, granulated sugar, and the influence it has had in the development of the farm and the education of the farmer, the beet yields three by-products which are fast revolutionizing the stock feeding industry and making efficient the natural change from the range to the farm preparation of cattle and sheep for the market. These products in the order of their feeding value are the tops, the pulp after the saccharine matter has been extracted from the roots and the molasses.

In conclusion, facts and figures are presented to prove that the raising of 10,000 acres of sugar beets will provide a living for 500 families in addition to what the same area supported before. What sugar beets have done and are doing for Colorado they will do for Oregon, if the farmers will help themselves by agreeing to plant the required acreage—every farmer at least a few acres.

It is up to the farmers.

Industrial Laws Starve Women.

The minimum wage law, which was shown to be an iniquitous burden on the employer, has proved itself no less harmful to the employe. One of its purposes was to protect the wage-earning girl from the grinding power of the wage-payer; it has "protected" a very large number of young women out of their jobs.

The law limits the hours of labor for women, and makes no allowance for the necessities of the workers or employers or for the exigencies of times or seasons. In the past few weeks, while we were all raising money for the benefit of the poor, and while women were begging the department stores for work, and while there was work for them, they were turned away, hungry and desperate, because the law said they could not sell their services at honest employment except at certain hours specified by ordinance. One of the results of this political effort to provide for the "industrial welfare" of women is that the work they have done in the past has to be performed by men—not by more men than had had employment before, but by men who by working overtime performed their own and the disemployed women's duties. What the hungry and desperate woman did is not of record.

Our industrial laws need amendment. The persons who most desire to see them changed are those in whose behalf they were ostensibly passed, but who have been the greatest sufferers by the adventures in law-making by amateur legislators.

A Sample Search.

This is a good game for a hostess to introduce to a company of boys or young men. Each young man is given a scrap of cloth or goods of some kind and is sent to match it among a basketful of scraps on the table. When he has matched it he is then given pencil and paper and is asked to write down the name of the goods in question, the name of the color, to judge its quality and to suggest some way for making it up into a garment. A discussion of the written answers then follows, which will afford the company much amusement.

Charade.

My first can't be measured,
It's on every hand;
You find it by seashore
And on very dry land.

My second's a man
Who a bagpipe does play,
But he's not so much known
By the people today.

My two joined together
Make a species of bird,
And its chirp is as quaint
As any you've heard.

In Doubt.

Ethel—Oh, dear me! I don't know what to think! Algy asked me last night if I wouldn't like to have something around the house that I could love and would love me. Edith—Well! Ethel—Well, I don't know whether he means himself or whether he is thinking of buying me a dog!—Puck.
