FADS AND FANCIES

Each time, after the garbage can has been emptied, drop into it a crushed newspaper, light it and burn out. Place the can on the ground while burning.

Cranberries can be candied and used for decoration instead of cherries. They have the advantage of being much cheaper.

A toy rail or ledge is a good thing in a nursery. It should be set about three feet from the floor and be wide enough to hold the toys safely.

Fall and winter are the best seasons to buy groceries in bulk for the household. Dried fruits, sugar, cereals and flour can all be laid in to advantage.

Care should be taken in cooking vegetables. If they are overcooked they will be tough, and their flavor will be somewhat destroyed.

A simple and excellent way to remove dirt marks from a mackintosh is to cut a raw potato into slices and rub it well on the marks. Raw potato will also remove mud stains from dress skirts, children's coats and men's trousers.

Says a housekeeper: I keep a new mangle brush in my sewing machine drawer, and before oiling I lift the machine head and reach every crevice with the brush. After all dust is removed I oil it as usual and wash the brush and put it away for next time.

When cleaning an auto or washing any vehicle, time and labor can be saved by putting a pair of canvas gloves on the hands and using them in washing such parts as difficult, spokes and corners. They are far better than a rag.

Warm Feet Produce Sleep. As a rule children have warm extremities when properly clothed or covered at night, because their blood circulates freely. But as we grow older and the blood gets thinner, we not only feel the cold more, but the blood seems to accumulate in the head, probably due to overtaxing the brain.

If you have cold feet at night, try soaking them in water as hot as you can bear it just before retiring. Jump right into bed, so that they will not get chilled and you will find the nerves soothed and the blood pressure in the head relieved.

Some people wear bedsocks to bed but sometimes these prove irksome and tend to make the feet tender. A better plan for regular use is to slip a woolen shawl or part of an old blanket under the covers where the feet can rest against it without being themselves actually covered.

In aggravated cases of sleeplessness a hotwater bottle often gives relief when placed at the feet. Others prefer it across the back at the waistline. Sometimes a chilly feeling after retiring may be overcome by laying a woolen shawl over the thighs and lower part of the stomach. I know one woman who rarely needs heavy covers even in the depths of winter, by using a shawl in this manner.

A woman with young children who require some attention during the night, finds it best to sleep in bedroom slippers with warm padded lamb's wool soles. She said that getting up half asleep in the night she often forgot to slip on any foot covering at all, or if she managed to find her slippers under the bed they were so cold they chilled her feet. Then she got back to bed chilled and wide awake for hours. She solved the problem by wearing the slippers all night. Her feet were warm all the time in bed or out of it, and she never found it difficult to get warmed up.

Paper and Pencil Game

When your friends come give them each a paper, and pencil and see how many can write the correct answers to these questions:

1. Name a battle found in every farm yard?
2. Name an uninhabited battle?
3. Name a battle unpleasant to bare-foot boys?
4. Name two battles that are found in a forest?
5. Name a goodluck battle?
6. Name a stimulating battle?
7. Name an observing battle?
8. Name a comfortable battle?
9. Name a college battle?
10. Name a wealthy battle?
11. Name a cleanly battle?
12. Name a suspended battle?

Habits

What boy or girl has not "habits" of various kinds? I read a very good definition of the word. It was "habit is a chain that grows stronger every day." Bad habits seem to grow stronger more rapidly than good ones. Therefore, if you want to have good habits when you are old form them while you are young, and let them be growing strong all the while you live. Have you ever heard your friends say: "I have grown so in the habit of sleeping late that I have to rush to school every day to prevent myself coming late!" It is just as easy to grow into the habit of waking up at half past 6 as at half past 7. A little will power will do the work. When you retire at night say to yourself: "Tomorrow I want to get up at 6:30." In all probability you will be your own alarm clock and will wake up on the minute. With a little practice you will get in the habit of being early and punctual.

"NOTHIN' BUT AN EDITOR"

By Robertus Love.

"He's nothin' but an editor" I heard a fellow say.

Alluding to a citizen who passed along the way.

The saying sank into my soul, and as I walked along to my soul, and as it rose, as Venus from the sea, and blossomed into song:

He's nothin' but an editor,
 Who runs a printing shop,
 But in his own community
 He ornaments the top.

Although abroad his humble name
 May never light the crest of fame.
 He's nothin' but an editor,
 And doesn't know a thing—

Excepting politics and such,
 And literature, by jing!
 And literature and other lore,
 And always learning more and more.

He's nothin' but an editor,
 And maybe isn't rich—
 Except in human brotherhood
 And kindly feelings, which
 Are wealth beyond the plute or snob—

And there he's always on the job.
 He's nothin' but an editor,
 And seldom gets to roam
 Beyond his native heath, because

He's always giving of home,
 And always giving of his stock.
 Of wisdom to the local flock.
 He's nothin' but an editor,
 But I'm inclined to state
 At last he'll travel on a pass
 Through old St. Peter's gate;
 And hear the angel voices say:
 "Sit down, old man—you've paid your way!"

"That Kellaher wanted the bill killed," said Day, "was plain." He made no argument to speak of or on it and told us to kill it if we wanted to; that he didn't care.

Governor Withycombe declares that so far as the Lawson charge is concerned, having formally denied it, the incident may be deemed closed, so far as his office is concerned. The Governor added:

"It seems to me that in this whole matter some one is trying to make a mountain out of a molehill, and that there is, perhaps, an ulterior object in view."

There was a man who was wondrous wise; he jumped into a bramble bush and scratched out both his eyes. Then he put a wand ad. in The Sentinel and got them back again.

PLOTTERS USE COL. LAWSON IS CLAIM

Prison Superintendent Makes Charge That C. T. Haas, Portland Attorney, Would Make Job Solid If Withycombe's Friends Were Given Places

KELLAHER, TOO, SAID TO HAVE TRIED TO PRODUCE FRICTION.

Through West's Men Governor Is Twice Assailed. Denton of Brickyard Fame Is Also Involved in Delivery of the Prison Superintendency.

the penitentiary to see Colonel Lawson steps forward with an affirmation of the truth of Lawson's assertions. Denton is now and for some time has been manager of Myers Brothers' department store in Salem. He and Milton Myers, one of the owners of the store, are said to be married to sisters. Not long ago as Governor, Oswald West pardoned George Myers, a brother of Milton Myers, who was serving a term of from one to 15 years in the penitentiary for the murder of a policeman named Eckhardt in his home town of Salem. The interest Denton would have in pleasing Myers and the interest Myers would have in pleasing West are plain. The natural query is:

"What would please West and his political organ in Portland? Journal extras, endeavoring to discredit Governor Withycombe, may give an idea as to what the paper sought, in any event.

That Haas himself has perceived the connection between the bonds of personal and political gratitude on the one hand and the endeavor of Denton to back up Lawson's allegation on the other, is shown by the contents of a letter sent by him to Governor Withycombe last week. Its text is as follows:

"My attention has just been called to stories appearing in the afternoon paper concerning purported conversations with Colonel Lawson, superintendent of the penitentiary. I trust that it is not necessary for me to deny the same, as the same is a plain falsehood on its face, and I have no idea how or why the same should have been published, except to cast discredit upon your administration, and owing to the splendid work you have done so far, could find nothing, and was therefore forced to use that particular method.

"Personally, I cannot conceive of Colonel Lawson giving out such a story; if he did, as I only spoke to Colonel Lawson once and then only for a few minutes, in the presence of a certain Walter Denton, a manager of Myers' department store, Salem, who has been interested in prison work for the last six years under Governors Benson, Chamberlain and West, and who asked me to go with him to see Colonel Lawson, and further requested us to use whatever little influence our German organization might have, in an endeavor to keep Colonel Lawson as Superintendent of the Penitentiary; and I told him that time that I believed Colonel Lawson was a good man for the place, and I still believe it, but that we were endeavoring to have a certain Otto Berg appointed to a position as deputy warden of the penitentiary, and that the only interest we had in the penitentiary was his appointment. What other conversation had was along this line: there was absolutely nothing said about representing any political party or giving anyone the right to dictate as to the appointment of subordinates. Anything to the contrary is false.

"I expect to be in Salem again in the near future, at which time I will call upon you and we can go over the matter together and seek a possible explanation therefor."

It might relevantly be added, in this regard, that Walter Denton has for a long time figured more or less prominently in West's prison policy. At one time he had the brickyard at the penitentiary under lease.

"I suppose there are 100 men who would be glad to take the job of penitentiary superintendent under any conditions," said a member of the Senate this morning. "Why? Governor Withycombe should propose to keep Lawson, a West appointee, on the condition that the executive be permitted to name four subordinates, when if he desired he could make that conditional to the appointment of any other man, is something nobody can fathom. It is all rot—this kind of stuff—and plainly meant to reflect discredit on the administration."

President Thompson declares that he saw through the Kellaher plan from the start. He drew attention to the fact that at the 1913 session the "Mormon" man was virtually "one of the two Senators who acted as West's messengers even during the heat of sessions."

"The committee which is to consider consolidation of boards and commissions is the proper body to consider the question of a trade commission," added Thompson.

"Senator Day said it had been apparent for some time that from various quarters were coming efforts to produce inharmonious between the Governor and the Senate. He expressed the opinion that Kellaher had no other object in introducing a bill for a trade commission and loading it with a joker.

"That Kellaher wanted the bill killed," said Day, "was plain." He made no argument to speak of or on it and told us to kill it if we wanted to; that he didn't care.

Celebrate 68 Years of Wedded Life

"Grandpa" and "Grandma" Bales of London, who are spending the winter with their children at Ellensburg, Wash., celebrated the sixty-eighth anniversary of their marriage in that city Sunday, January 31. On January 31, 1847, the couple were married in Missouri, and crossed the plains by ox-team in 1860, settling a little later in the Kittitas Valley. Mr. Bales established the first church in the valley and was its pastor for some years.

It is given to but few to live long enough to see even four generations, but this couple heads five generations. There are 100 living descendants—10 children, 48 grandchildren and 40 great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren. Four of their children are living in Ellensburg. "Grandma" Bales is 83 years of age and her husband is 87.

Harry Metcalf of this city and Miss Grace Lily of Salem, formerly of this city were married this morning at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. B. K. Lawson at Salem.

The Constellation club was delightfully entertained in the club rooms of the Masonic Hall last Thursday afternoon. All ladies of the Eastern Star who were not members of the club had been specially invited and there were about fifty present. Mesdames Brund, Wampole, Scott and Van Allison were the hostesses. After a social and busy afternoon with needlework, refreshments were served at tables. Four new members were elected to membership.

Mrs. S. A. Marley entertained a few friends at dinner last Wednesday evening in honor of the eighty-second birthday anniversary of her old friend, G. B. Hawkins. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. John Barker, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Hawkins, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Hawkins and Dale Hawkins.

Word has reached the city of the marriage of Miss Ethel Stanfelt to Ernest F. Voelker, at Portland, Saturday, January 20. Miss Stanfelt formerly resided with her parents in this city.

The Emanon Club surprised Mrs. Harry Short in a pleasing manner Wednesday afternoon.

She was spending a few days with Mrs. Elbert Bede, when the club members came to show their friendship for her and give her a farewell shower. After a social chat, light refreshments were served. Mrs. Short found on her plate one half dozen silver salad forks, with compliments from the Emanon Club. Among the well-known members present were Mesdames Nelson Durham, Frank Knox, Roy Short, Chas. Beidler, Geo. Scott, Clyde Umphrey, S. L. Mackin, Short and Bede. Mrs. James Potts was an invited guest. The club will hold its next meeting Thursday with Mrs. Geo. Scott instead of with Mrs. Stanley Martin as had been announced.

Mrs. N. E. Compton will entertain the Social Twelve Thursday afternoon.

A family birthday dinner was served Saturday evening by Mrs. James Hemeway in honor of the eighty-third birthday anniversary of Wm. Hemeway, father of James Hemeway.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Christian Church meets Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. L. Zacharias.

Mrs. Elbert Bede entertained informally a few friends Monday afternoon in honor of Mrs. W. H. Abrams of Eugene, who spent a few days at the Bede home this week.

The Masonic lodge gave a farewell stag party last Wednesday evening in the lodge club room for Wm. Saunders, who, with his family left last week for the East. Cards and music were the diversion of the evening. A feature was the accordion music furnished by Ben Lurech. Refreshments were served.

A marriage license was issued last week to George W. Gilchrist and Martha Wooley, both of this city.

William Bradford of Noti and Miss Anna Yancey of this city were married at Eugene Tuesday. Justice of the Peace J. S. Wills, officiating.
