FADS AND FANCIES.

To insure a rich, brown color, brush pie crust with cream.

To get the greatest possible amount of juice from a lemon, heat it thoroughly before using.

Use porcelain jars for cooking acid fruits and they can be put away in the dish without danger of metal poison.

When ivory knife handles become discolored, rub them with a piece of lemon dipped in salt, then wash immediately in warm water.

A sure way to prevent eggs from sticking to the pan or breaking is to add a spoonful of flour to the grease in which they are fried.

After you have used all the ham that will cut nicely from the bone, and after chipping the remainder of the meat for fried ham, boil the bone with cabbage.

Boiling water will remove tea or coffee stains and many fruit stains if poured over them before any soap is used.

A raw potato cut in half will clean marks off black material. A black serge garment can be made spotless and as new, if washed in potato water.

A good pinch of salt improves any cake.

A paper over the top of a cake will keep the top from burning.

Half water instead of all milk makes a lighter cake.

The cause of large holes in a cake is too much baking powder.

To sprinkle flour in greased pans prevents a cake from sticking.

If your cake goes down in the middle the dough was too rich—too much sugar.

A pan of water in the bottom of the oven keeps the bottom of a cake from burning.

A teaspoonful of paregoric in a gill of water will clear a pantry of ants in one night.

Pulverized sugar and plaster of paris mixed will keep away ants.

As soon as you have any indication of hoarseness take a fresh lemon and bake it until it is soft, squeeze out the juice and sweeten. Take a spoonful every fifteen minutes until relieved.

When sleeping the head should always be uncovered and the hair will retain its beauty and luster much longer. Brush the hair thoroughly, then raise it nearly to the crown of the head and braid it in one long braid. It can then be thrown over the pillow and you can sleep on either side or the back without lying on the hair, and the hair is getting a good airing all night.

Soak two cupfuls of dried or evaporated apples in cold water over night. Chop them and stew in two cupfuls of molasses. Add one-half cup butter, one-half cup sugar, four cups flour, two eggs, one-half cup milk and two teaspoons soda; then stir in one cup raisins and one-half cup currants, which have been mixed with one cup flour; also one-half teaspoon each of cinnamon and cloves. Stir well and bake in a slow oven.

Place a layer of nicely cooked evaporated peaches in the bottom of a pudding dish; sprinkle them plentifully with sugar and strew a layer of bread crumbs on top. Sift a little cinnamon over this, then repeat until the dish is full. The last layer should be crumbs. Dot liberally with pieces of butter and pour as much of the peach juice over as will just cover the contents of the dish. Bake covered for half an hour, then remove the cover and brown. Serve with hard sauce.

Put one pound of prunes through the colander; sweeten with one-half cup of sugar. Soak one-half a box of gelatin in one cup of cold water for half an hour. Add one cup of boiling water, strain, add the prune pulp and turn in a ring mold to stiffen. Turn out and serve with whipped cream piled in the center of the ring.

Wagner and His Dog Peps.

Richard Wagner's fondness for his faithful dog Peps is well known. At the time when almost all the musical world had turned against him he would sometimes in his walks with the dog declaim aloud against his foes. Then the dog would rush backward and forward, barking and snapping, as if helping his master to defeat his enemies. When Wagner returned home from an excursion to some other city Peps would always receive a present as well as the other members of the family. "Peps received them joyfully," he writes to a friend after one of these excursions. When the time came for the little life to be ended Wagner scarcely left the dying dog's side. He even put off two days an important journey because of Peps' illness and death. He writes afterward to his friend Praeger: "He died in my arms on the night of the ninth, passing away without a sound, quietly and peacefully. On the morning we buried him in the garden beside the house. I cried much, and since then I have felt bitter pain and sorrow for the dear friend of the past thirteen years."—Argonaut.

Condensed Language.

"Samoa has an ideal language, and there it was I got my inspiration," says Gelett Burgess in "Burgess Unabridged." "Can't we make English as subtle as Samoa? I wondered. There they have a single word, meaning, 'A party is approaching which contains neither a clever man nor a pretty woman.' Another beautiful word describes 'A man who climbs out on the limbs of his own breadfruit tree to steal the breadfruit of his neighbor.' 'Sutia' means 'Change the subject you are on dangerous ground.' Another happy word expresses a familiar situation, 'To look on owl-eyed while others are getting gifts.' Have we anything in English as charmingly tactful as this? No, our tongue is almost as crude as pidgin English itself, where piano is 'Box-you-figh-tim-cry.'"

His Second Thought.

A politician named Blank got a place for a clerk during one of the sessions of the legislature of his state. The clerk was very grateful. At the end of the session he came around to Blank and said: "Mr. Blank, I want to tell you how much I am indebted to you for your kindness in getting me the place I have had. It meant more to me, Mr. Blank, than you may think. I thank you from the bottom of my heart. Also I want to say, Mr. Blank, that if there ever comes a time when I can do anything for you—anything at all—you are to command me. I will do anything you may ask me to do. I am at your service."

Blank thanked the man, and he started to go. As he reached the door he turned and said, "Of course, Mr. Blank, I would prefer that it should be something honorable."

FOR PRE-LENTEN DANCES.

Gown of Shimmering Silver Tissue Contrasted With Black Velvet.

FETCHING NEW PARTY GOWN

The gown pictured here is a shimmering affair of silver tissue, suggesting moonlight in effect. The bodice of shimmering black velvet is supported over the shoulders with straps of black jet and finished at the top with a narrow plaiting of the silver tissue. A silver cord encircles the waist. The skirt consists of a series of circular tunics. For the many social functions that will be crowded into the pre-Lenten season a gown of this sort is both modish and becoming for most women.

SELVAGE RUGS.

Handsome Floor Coverings That Are Easily Made and Cost Little.

When tailors make men's suits they first cut selvages from the materials used. These selvages make much better rugs than ordinary carpet rugs when woven in the usual manner, and they are warm and rich looking, especially if dark colored warp is used, says the Mother's Magazine. Another advantage in favor of selvages is that they come in long strips and require little work in preparation for the weaver.

In place of sewing the rugs in the usual fashion lay the end of one strip flat upon the end of another and sew together without doubling. Tailors usually throw away selvages and would therefore give them away upon request; others sell them to rag men for a few cents a pound.

If you wish to make braided rugs of selvage they must be used double.

KITCHEN FURNITURE.

Should Be Comfortable and Attractive, Yet Adapted to Use.

Every kitchen should boast at least one comfortable chair, for the competent cook can learn to perform many of her duties sitting as well as standing.

For greater efficiency and comfort the kitchen table is also of importance, for not only should it be strong and steady, but it should also be of the proper height for baking and kneading bread. It should have a deep drawer to hold agate and wooden spoons, forks and knives, cookie molds, etc.

Over the table either a convenient cabinet or a simple board may be nailed into place, upon which can be hung egg beaters, bread knives, measuring spoons—indeed, all those small things which will save a busy woman countless steps during the day's work.

LAVISH USE OF LACE.

There is a wide use of metal laces. Metal laces are used extensively for bodices and sleeves.

Two-tone net tops are among the most fashionable laces.

Net top lace with hand run design is likely to be much used.

Costumes of white net or lace are trimmed with ornaments of jet.

Tulle and lace are extensively used both for day and evening robes.

A very dashing novelty is a gold lace with the flower pattern in so light a silver as to look white.

Overdresses of lace hanging straight from the shoulders and fringed with beads are among the new fashion features.

Skirts of lace, tulle or chiffon in ivory, white, black or creamy tones may be worn with the same black velvet basque.

Wide black chantilly and fillet lace are for full skirted tunics, founcers and are mounted over taffets, but made separate from the foundation.

For the Children

When Old Boreas Blows He Makes Ice and Snow.

MISS EDNA HOYT COASTING.

Old Boreas has been asleep for a long time, but now his nap is over. Boreas, you know, is the North Wind, and Jack Frost is his son. When Boreas wakes up he sends Jack out to let people know that cold weather is on the way. Jack Frost is quite gentle when he starts out on his tour. He breathes on the flowers and trees and grass, and soon they go to sleep until spring shall awaken them. Then old Boreas opens his mouth and blows a tremendous blast. That is how winter begins. Snow and ice take the places of flowers and green trees. Little folks, however, are glad when Boreas wakes up, for he makes lots of splendid sport. Without the snow and ice there would be no skating or coasting—about the jolliest kind of fun there is. Here is the picture of a little girl who was caught by the photographer as she was coasting down a hillside in Central park, New York city. Her name is Edna Hoyt, and she is having a glorious time. Snow brings joy to thousands of kiddies all over this country and in others far away, although the war has saddened the winter for many children.

Fortune Telling Game.

Write on slips of paper the fortune, of which some examples will be given below, and place them in walnut shells, out of which the nut has been taken. Paste the two half shells together, and when your "party" is seated around the festive board hand them around. Here are a few fortunes: "You will hold a public position in the community in which you live." "Your lot is to bear other people's burdens. Your helpmate will share your troubles with you." "One year of your life will be spent in poverty. All the others will be prosperous." "You will marry a person of good family, fine appearance and extraordinary ability." "Few sorrows will come to you, but much happiness will be your lot through life." "Your relatives will envy you your fine helpmate and lovely family." "Your life will be a continuous climb. You will have ambition for your watchword."

Game For Boy Scouts.

The game of "spot your staves" is played in the same way as an ordinary paper chase, except that the staves are provided with a number of small circular gummed labels, such as are used by shopkeepers for marking the prices on goods. Every time the trail is dropped not more than two labels should be dropped with it. As soon as the trail is picked up by a scout he blows his whistle. The other scouts immediately proceed to the spot and search for the two labels. When found they should be stuck on to the finder's staff, and at the end of the chase the scout with the most labels wins. This tends to keep up the interest of the smaller scouts, who otherwise would soon be inclined to lag behind.—Scout.

Conundrums.

Why is a list of musical composers like a subpoena? Because it is incomplete without a Handel.

Why is the letter A like 12 o'clock? Because it comes in the middle of day.

When is a newspaper like a delicate child? When it appears weakly.

In what way should a man propose to his girl? He must do it in minor.

Why does a conductor punch a hole in your trousers? To let you pass through.

If all the big waters were dried up what would Neptune say? I really haven't an ocean in notion.

Weather Vanes.

That glitzer in the sun; I've watched them often windy days As round and round they've spun. There's one small eagle; there's a horse; I've counted seven cows, And ships with golden sails all set, And little spinning prows. Sometimes they hardly move a bit, All pointing to the west, Or else the east or north or south, Just where the wind thinks best. I imagine when I wake at night And hear a creaking vane, Perhaps it wants to rest and so it's trying to complain. Some day, when there's a splendid sun And wind to blow and blow, I'd like to climb the highest hill And see our town below. —Youth's Companion.
