Spray and he has decided to give it a trial Saturday, April 17. Farmers are invited to list with him anything which they wish to dispose of. Full particulars are given elsewhere in the advertising columns.

Taxes Are Going to Come Down.

In both Oregon and Washington appropriations have been reduced, offices are being abolished and official salaries reduced. Officials, boards and institutions in both states will not be allowed the freedom of the past in disbursing public funds.

A good precedent was established by Governor Withycombe of Oregon in promoting County Judge Daly of Lakeview to be circuit judge for keeping down taxes and getting his county out of debt.

Field engineers in the service of the water board are reduced in salary from $150 to $125 per month. The office of state architect was abolished, as he would have drawn a salary of $4500 for three years and the work could be done cheaper on a commission basis. Governor Withycombe vetoed creation of three new judicial districts.

Mrs. Ellen Bidwell Dies.

The funeral of Mrs. Ellen Bidwell, who died Monday after a lingering illness, was held yesterday from the Mills chapel, Rev. McDonald officiating. Interment was made in the A. F. & A. M. cemetery.

Mrs. Bidwell was born at Sutter's Fort, Calif., in 1846 and was 69 years of age at the time of death. She was one of the first white children born in California. When two months old she went to Oregon City, Oregon, with her parents. A few months later the family moved to Marion County, near Hubbard, where Mrs. Bidwell was married at the age of 19. She and her husband lived three years in Portland, going from there to Douglas County, where they took up a homestead and lived for thirty years. They moved from there to Cottage Grove, Mr. Bidwell dying here in 1900. Seven children survive. They are: Wm. and John and Mrs. I. C. Ritchey of Cottage Grove, Mrs. Fred Bachert of Aurora, Ill., Mrs. Chas. Davis and Mrs. John Rice of Tacoma, Mrs. Ora Swearingen of Drain. Twenty-three grandchildren and six great grandchildren also survive.

A Pretty Experiment.

How quickly the body eliminates waste matter may be seen by the following simple and pretty experiment:

Take a tablet of lithium citrate. Then take a clean platinum wire, hold it in a colorless flame of a Bunsen burner and note that it gives no coloration to the flame. Now cool the wire and pass it along the skin of the forehead, or after rinsing the hand in distilled water draw the wire across the palm and again hold it to the colorless Bunsen flame. Note the beautiful yellow color, due to the presence of the sodium. Next take blue glass and observe the yellow flame through this. The cobalt glass absorbs the yellow sodium rays, and the lilac flame of potassium now shows. About a half hour after taking the lithium tablet make the same test as above with a clean platinum wire. The vivid red flame of lithium is now obtained. In one short half hour the lithium entering at the mouth has been absorbed into the blood and carried to all parts of the body and is being excreted through the skin.—New York World.

Bell Tents.

The interior of a bell tent is full of surprises for the new hand. He begins by expecting it to be the airiest of lodgings; it is really the stuffiest. Unless the flaps at the entrance are left open or the apron around the foot lifted it soon becomes insufferable if there are many men sleeping in it, and it is possible to sleep ten or a dozen men or more in a bell tent, with feet to the pole, of course, and heads to the canvas. Another surprise is that there is nowhere to hang anything up. It is contrary to regulations to drive nails into the tent pole. The official way is a ring with hooks on it to be clamped around the pole, but old campaigners say that the supply of these is never anything like equal to the number of tents and that only the lucky ones get them. With all this a bell tent is the cheapest and most comfortable of temporary homes for a party of three or four once they get used to its little ways and cease to mislay things in its featureless circularity.—Liverpool Mercury.

A Story of Dickens.

M. Anatole France has an amusing reminiscence of Dickens—of whom he is a great admirer—in his "Vie Littéraire." One wonders whether it is autobiographical. "A Frenchman who made the journey to London," he writes, "went one day to see the great Charles Dickens. He was admitted and expressed his admiration as an excuse for thus trespassing on the precious time of such a being. 'Your fame,' he added, 'and the universal sympathy you inspire doubtless expose you to innumerable intrusions. Your door is always besieged. You must be visited every day by princes, statesmen, scholars, writers, artists and even madmen. 'Yes, madmen, madmen' cried Dickens, carried away by the agitation which toward the end of his life often moved him. 'Madmen! They alone amuse me.' And he pushed his astonished visitor out by the shoulders."

His Last Look.

A church in the north of Scotland requiring a pastor had a bundle who took an active interest in all that concerned the church. One of the candidates after the last service for the day was over stepped into the vestry to put off his gown. He thought he would have a look at the church and meet the worthy beadle putting things to rights, said. "I was just taking a look at the church." "Aye, tak' a guid look at it," said the beadle, "for it's no likely ye'll ever see't again."—Dundee Advertiser.

Immunity of Children.

Professor Armstrong asserts that the reason very young children are relatively immune to infectious diseases is that their hearts beat so much more rapidly than those of older persons that the blood flows swiftly through the arteries, and this swiftness of flow makes it difficult for micro-organisms to gain a foothold in the blood stream.—New York World.

One Danger.

"Have you fastened the windows, dear?" she asked as they were about to retire for the night.

"No. What's the use? I gave you the last dollar I had to buy that new hat, and we needn't fear burglars."

"But they might sit down on the hat, you know."—Washington Post.

Between Citizens.

He was abusing things in general. "Have you registered?" asked the other man.

"N-o-n-o."

"A citizen should always register your vote will do more to correct matters than your criticism."—Pittsburgh Post.

Musical Note.

"Say, Hiram, what do they mean by a 'Stradevarius'?"

"Oh, a Stradevarius is the Latin name for a fiddle."—Musical Courier.

Common Course.

Hi—What course is Sarah studying at that boarding school? Si—I can't remember, but I think it's cosmetics.—Stamford Chaparral.

The only failure a man ought to fear is failure in cleaving to the purpose he sees to be best.—George Elliot.

Sheriff's Sale on Foreclosure.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of an Execution and Order of Sale issued out of the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for Lane County, on the 8th day of March, 1915, on a judgment rendered in said Court on the twenty-fifth day of February, 1915, in a suit in said Court wherein Gottfried Graber was plaintiff and Daisy A. Cobb and F. E. Rosenberg were defendants, in which said suit the said plaintiff, Gottfried Graber, recovered judgment against the said defendants, Daisy A. Cobb and F. E. Rosenberg, for the sum of Two Hundred Fifty ($250.00) Dollars with interest thereon from said 25th day of September, 1913, at the rate of 8 per cent per annum, and Fifty ($50.00) Dollars attorney's fees, and the further sum of Thirty ($30.00) Dollars costs, which judgment was entered and docketed in the Clerk's office of said Court in said County on the 8th day of March, 1915, and said Execution to me directed commanding me in the name of the State of Oregon in order to satisfy said judgment, attorney's fees, cost and accruing costs to sell the following described property, to-wit:

Beginning at the Southeast corner of the Southeast quarter (¼) of the Northeast quarter (¼) of Section 24, and running thence North 20 rods; thence West 80 rods; thence South 20 rods, and thence East 80 rods to the place of beginning, containing 16 acres of land, all in Section 24, Township 21 South, Range 4 West of W. M. in Lane County, State of Oregon.

Now, therefore, in the name of the State of Oregon and in compliance with said Execution and Order of Sale, I will on Saturday, the tenth day of April, 1915, between the hours of 9 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m., to-wit, at one o'clock p. m., on said day at the Southwest door of the County Court House in Eugene, Lane County, Oregon, offer for sale for cash subject to redemption, all the right, title and interest of said defendants, Daisy A. Cobb and F. E. Rosenberg, in and to the above described real property.

JAMES C. PARKER,
Sheriff of Lane County, Oregon.

Chemical Prints.

Here is a way to take a picture in the dark: Draw a picture on a piece of paper, using sulphate of quinine in making the outlines. Expose the paper to the sun for a few minutes, then place the paper face down on a piece of sensitive paper, like that used by photographers, and place the two sheets between the leaves of a book. If the sheets are removed from the book a few hours later you will find that an exact reproduction of the drawing will have been impressed on the sensitive paper. Designs of any sort can be copied in this way, or you may trace over a printed picture or design with sulphate of quinine and by the same process produce a faithful copy of the print.

Clever Pigeons.

A close observer writes that he has noticed a smart trick again and again on the part of pigeons in Palace yard, London. A dozen or more of them will gather under the nosebag of a horse. Suddenly, and evidently by prearrangement, all the birds fly up. The horse, being startled, tosses his head, out comes some of the grain, and the pigeons settle down to eat. It is probable that pigeons elsewhere have learned the same trick.

Yellowjack.

Not only is yellowjack a popular term in some places for molasses candy, but it is a common nickname among seamen for the dreaded yellow fever. Probably the phrase originated in the use of the yellow jack or flag by naval vessels in quarantine to indicate contagious disease aboard.

Taken Literally.

"Are you saving up something for a rainy day?"

"No," replied Farmer Cornloss. "What we're troubled with out this way is an annual drought. If we had more rainy days everybody would save money."—Washington Star.

Right in the Family.

"Are you family friends of the Wombats?"

"I presume I might say so. They don't hesitate to quarrel with me."—Louisville Courier-Journal.
