

HOW ABOUT YOUR BOY?

MORALISTS as a rule have a great deal to say about girls and too little to say about boys. Probably most of the moralists are men and the girls appeal to them more than the boys.

Then, too, but unfairly so, immorality on the part of the boy is condoned while that of his feminine partner in sin is condemned.

However, one who reads the newspaper at all carefully is left in no doubt as to the need of looking after our boys more carefully—if not for their own sake, then for the sake of our daughters and the daughters of other parents, and for the sake of generations yet unborn.

IN a juvenile court a few days ago a boy was brought before the judge. He was 18 years of age, but at that age he was a wife deserter.

Every parent should have heard his story. His parents were good people but of the kind that are too good to their children.

From the age of 11 this boy, according to his own story, had been allowed to pick his own companions and to choose his own hours for coming home at night.

Before he had reached 18 years of age he was compelled to marry.

He did not love the girl, he said. "I could not love such a girl," were his words. She was good enough for a plaything but for a wife he wanted a different kind of a girl. And under our double standard of morals one of the other kind would have married him—and he would have brought into the life of a sweet, pure girl a life-long sorrow.

When the baby was born it was blind and deformed.

The boy had had the manhood to remain and marry the girl who had given herself to him even before marriage.

But when the baby was born—when he saw what a helpless thing it was—what a burden it was to be—what a life-long sorrow it was to be—he could stand it no longer and deserted its mother. He left her to bear the terrible burden alone.

Whose fault was it that the baby was blind and deformed—a helpless burden for a lifetime?

The news item did not state, but those who have studied social hygiene know what is too frequently a cause of such things.

It is more than probable that the same burden would have been brought into the life of the sweet, pure young girl this young man would have chosen for a wife.

 This was such an unusual case that the judge asked many questions. He delved down into the life of this young man.

One of the questions he asked was how he came to do the things that brought so many sorrows into his life.

His reply was that he listened to his companions brag of the things they had done, or pretended they had done, that they taunted him of his virtue and told him he would not be a man unless he did as they did. So he went to a big city with them and there found the things his companions had told him of. Once having tasted of the forbidden fruit his intimacy with a little girl in his home town followed as a matter of course.

THIS all happened a long ways from Cottage Grove, but it might easily have happened here. Such things probably have happened here with results not so sad as in this case. If they haven't happened they are likely to happen any time.

Probably some boy who now bids fair to grow to strong and healthy manhood, a fit mate for any girl, is being taunted by companions and being falsely led to believe that he must do certain things to develop his manhood.

Fathers who have been out in the world very much know how easily such information may be secured, know how easy it is to put into practice the false advice given, and have seen the serious consequences thereof.

An all-wise creator arranged things so that there is no reason why a young man may not go to the altar with a young woman, himself just as pure as she demands that she shall be.

If young men must sow wild oats there must be a field in which to sow and to keep our girls pure our boys also must be kept pure.

If we can keep our boys pure, we will have little need to ask, "How about our girls?"

THE LAND GRANT CASE.

HOWEVER the people of Oregon may feel towards the Southern Pacific Railway they can not help but see that the state is to be greatly benefited by the Supreme Court's decision refusing to revoke the title of the railway to its extensive land holdings in Oregon. The only way to keep these lands on the tax roll is to leave title in the railway. The only way to provide for their immediate development is to leave title in the railway.

If the lands had reverted to the government they would have been covered into the forest reserve. As the railway owns only the odd sections, with-drawing the lands from settlement would have also tied up the intervening sections. Over half the state is now tied up in forest reserves. We have no desire to add several million acres to that already not on the tax rolls.

The original grant provided that the lands should be sold for not less than $2.50 an acre. The railroad has undoubtedly paid much more than this in taxes upon the property. The matter is now up to congress and it is probable that, despite the failure of the railroad to abide by the provisions of the grant, the railroad will not at this time be dealt with in a manner to work a hardship upon the people of Oregon. New terms will probably be made for the disposal of the lands that will take into consideration the money the railroad has expended in retaining them, but it is equally certain that the railway will be compelled to sell the lands to actual settlers at reasonable prices. "No Trespassing" signs for sale at The Sentinel office.
