FELIX CURRIN DROPS DEAD TODAY

From Oregonians in California. Los Angeles, Jan. 3, 1916.—Editor Bode: Thinking maybe you would like a word from the Oregon wanderers, I thought I would add a few lines to Charlie's symposium. I also wish to add my hearty congratulations to you and your firm stand for temperance. Just please consider that I have given you a real good old-fashioned hand clap on the question. As far as I know, all the Oregonians in this section are in fine health. We, in company with Venski's family, ate a fine picnic Christmas dinner on the Redondo Beach. New Year's day we attended the rose tournament at Pasadena, but the day was not so fine, as there was a continuous fine rain falling, accompanied with quite a cool breeze and the sunshine was nil. Sunday was a regular Oregon winter day with a nice warm quiet rain falling and it made me feel so good and so much at home that I walked nearly a mile to church services. Cala lilies and narcissus are in bloom, also roses, chrysanthemums, violets, etc. Everything is beautiful to the eye, but give me the whole-souled, kind-hearted bluff, friendly people of Oregon and especially Cottage Grove every time and all the time. Wishing you all a successful and happy new year, I am, yours, etc., MRS. IDA B. CALDWELL.

Felix Currin, a native of Cottage Grove and one of the best known characters of this section, died suddenly early this morning. He arose as usual and was apparently in the best of health. He built two of the fires and sat down in a chair to split some more kindling wood. Mrs. Currin heard one blow of the ax. Investigating to see why he stopped, Mrs. Currin found her husband dead. Apoplexy or some other trouble with the heart was the cause. Mr. Currin would have been 69 years of age in July and is well known throughout the state and Pacific northwest because of his agricultural activities and experiments. He had done much work for the experiment stations of the United States government and but recently returned from a trip to Washington and Idaho, where he treated grain for smut by a method said to be known only to himself, and with which he was remarkably successful. He owned a large farm up the Row River. The wife and four children survive. The children are Mrs. Vernon Fields of Gaston, George, Lynch and Homer of this city. The funeral arrangements have not been completed.
