Mesdames Miller, Cruson and Nichols entertained yesterday afternoon with a valentine party. Several contests were the diversion of the afternoon and dainty refreshments were served. A second party is being held this afternoon.

The Social Twelve club meets tomorrow with Mrs. A. L. Monroe.

The B. Y. P. U. of the Baptist church gave a valentine party last night at the new Rozine home. There was a mixed program, after which lunch was served cafeteria style. The receipts were very satisfactory and will be used in the purchase of a new organ.

The M. F. G. club meets next Tuesday with Mrs. Chas. Adams.

The choir of the Presbyterian church was entertained at a 6:30 luncheon at the Silsby home Monday evening by Miss Silsby, Mrs. Chas. Beidler, Miss Curran, Miss Ruth Robinson and Ernest Wyatt. The valentine idea was carried out. The evening was spent with music and games.

One of the largest and most enjoyable valentine parties of the season was given Feb. 11 and 12 by Mesdames C. E. Frost, E. Bede, Van Allison and C. A. Burkholder. The guests followed the sign of the heart to Frost's apartments, which were decorated with kewpies and hearts. Diversions of Friday afternoon were fancy work and guessing contests. Prizes were awarded Mrs. C. M. Shinn and Mrs. A. Brund. The diversion of Saturday was "500." Honors were won by Mrs. B. K. Lawson. Each afternoon at 4:30 automobiles were in waiting to convey guests to the home of Mrs. Burkholder, where a dainty three-course dinner was served. The rooms were tastefully decorated with festoons of cedar and ivy, small hearts and kewpies. The following were invited guests: Mesdames Nicholas, George Hall, Joe Porter, Dunton, Wright, A. Brund, J. Richmond, C. M. Shinn, C. A. Beidler, E. A. Gleason, O. Spear, Over, Fishburn, Adams, Job, A. Wynne, Kerr, Helen Silsby, J. M. Stouffer, Cooper, B. Trask, Aldrich, Kem, Geo. Atkinson, H. Cochran, Ida Veatch, J. Silsby, C. Beals, Geo. Scott, J. H. Chambers, Abrams, H. J. Shinn, Roy Short, Eakin, Hill, Watson, Mackin, Lurch, Benson, D. Griggs, H. A. Miller, Medley, W. P. Hall, Graham, Mills, Bader, Hellwell, Vandenberg, Potts, McQueen, Cruson, Beager, Monroe, Durham, Dean, Heine, Swengel, H. H. Veatch, DesLarzes, Lawson, Hemenway, A. Powell, Brand, Knowles, Bishy, Metcalf, Misses Josephine Wright, Esther Silsby, Nova Perkins, Lulu Curran, Eunice Vandenberg, Belle Burkholder, Della Atkinson.

W. O. W.'s Hold Roll Call.
The W. O. W. lodge held a largely attended roll call meeting Friday evening at which about 90 members were present, which was followed with a banquet. Consul J. W. Veatch presided and talks were made by D. J. Beakey, district organizer, J. S. Medley, who was the first consul commander 21 years ago, Ben Lurch, C. H. Van Denburg, K. K. Mills, H. F. Wynne, Fred Barkels and others.

Saturday was Mrs. J. H. Shortridge's eighty-first birthday anniversary and in honor of the occasion fourteen of the children, grandchildren and great grandchildren gathered at the Shortridge home Sunday, according to their usual custom. Those present were the John Warden family, the Clyde Langdon family and the Orville Spear family.

The ladies' aid of the Presbyterian church held an interesting meeting in the church parlors last Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Oliver Veatch, Mrs. W. W. Oglesby, Mrs. Ida Stocks and Mrs. M. M. Wheeler were hostesses. They were assisted by Mrs. J. P. Graham and Mrs. Roy Short. The afternoon was taken up with needle work, a valentine program and a short musical program. Refreshments were served. About 40 were present.

The Eastern Star had a special program at the meeting Friday evening, those whose birthdays come in February having charge. They were Mrs. H. H. Veatch, Mrs. Joe Porter and Miss Esther Silsby. The program consisted largely of valentine stunts.

The Constellation club was entertained Thursday at Masonic hall by Mrs. H. A. Miller and Mrs. Geo. Knowles. A delightful luncheon was served.

At the meeting of the W. R. C. Saturday afternoon a program was rendered, all numbers being appropriate to Lincoln day. Dinner was served at 12 o'clock preceding the program.

The Emanuel club meets tomorrow with Mrs. S. L. Mackin.

FADS AND FANCIES.

If paraffin is rubbed on the heels and toes of stockings it will go a long way toward keeping them from wearing out. Keep a piece of paraffin in your darning basket and rub the heels and toes of the family's stockings as you look them over each week.

Rust can be removed from steel by covering it with sweet oil for a day, then rubbing it with a lump of fresh lime and polishing in the ordinary way.

For a cure of creaking boots and shoes insert an awl carefully between the layers of leather in the sole, and, with the machine oil can, oil the sole through the little opening thus produced.

Pour melted paraffin over the runners of sleds and skates, and the steel portions will not rust.

One of the most trying household duties is dusting surfaces. Use a long (12 inch) handled dish mop and you will find it a great labor saver. The mop may be oiled or used dry.

All store cupboards and shelves should be frequently turned out and cleaned scrupulously, and new papers laid on them, as the germs which cause decomposition love dirty places and undisturbed corners.

Bread pans should be frequently emptied and washed, then put to air in the sun.

Mother-of-pearl articles that have become dull and blurred may be restored by cleaning them with pure olive oil, then applying ordinary nail brush and rubbing with chamois.

To prevent stoppers from sticking in necks of bottles run a little oil on them. This is good for both glass and cork stoppers.

A special "hint" from a friend is worth trying.
I bought a cheap, tin coffee pot, into which I put my squares of paraffin. I set the pot on the back of the stove until the wax melted, then I can easily pour the desired quantity over my glass of jelly. The covered pot, set away, keeps the paraffin free from dust until I need it again next time.

TESTED RECIPES.

Oyster Omelet: Blanch eight or a dozen large oysters in their own liquor until their edges begin to curl. Season them with salt, red pepper and two drops of lemon juice. Then prepare a plain omelet with six eggs, pour in the hot oysters when the lower half is cooked, fold over the top, slide on a hot dish, baste with butter and serve immediately.

Eggs and Tomato en Casserole:—Scald and peel the tomatoes, cut them up and put them in a casserole with a cover, seasoning with salt, paprika and a tablespoonful of onion juice or a sliver of garlic. Stew the tomatoes in the usual way, also adding the common pinch of sugar if they are tart. When they are cooked, break eggs on top—enough to cover the surface—sprinkle them with a dust of salt and paprika and set the casserole uncovered in the oven for the eggs to set as with poaching. A green pepper denuded of seeds and cut in half, will be an addition to this dish, this cooked first with the tomatoes. The helpings should be put on thin crisps of toast.

Peppers in Tomato Baskets:—Take medium sized deep tomatoes and cut them into handle basket form, and hollow out the center, chop a red and green pepper with a little celery and one cucumber after removing its seeds, mix with mayonnaise to which the juice of an onion has been added and fill the baskets with the mixture, place on lettuce leaves and serve with cheese straws. These make a dainty and attractive salad.

COLORS OF METEORS.

Three Stages Through Which They Pass to Reach the Earth.

An article by Alfred Wegener in the Scientific American offers an explanation of the marked difference of color observed in meteors. Up to an altitude of about forty-five miles the principal constituent of the earth's atmosphere is nitrogen. A second stratum of the atmosphere, extending up to about 125 miles, consists mainly of hydrogen. Still higher, Wegener himself has sought to prove the existence of a stratum consisting of an excessively light gas which he calls "geocoronium."

When entering the atmosphere from outer space meteors do not become luminous in the very tenuous "geocoronium sphere," but only when they enter the "hydrogen sphere," and most of them are dissipated before reaching the nitrogen atmosphere. The largest fireballs, however, penetrate deeper and may reach the earth or explode not far above it.

Dr. Wegener finds that the meteors that penetrate deep enough pass through three color stages—viz, yellow, green and deep red. The great majority exhibit only the first stage, in which the color (white, yellow, sometimes reddish) is that of the incandescent meteor itself. The green stage Wegener believes to be due to the incandescence of the hydrogen through which the meteor is passing, while the deep red stage is due to the incandescence of nitrogen in the lower atmosphere.

Thrill of Being Wet.
There is something rudimentary and fundamental about having water splashed down upon one and getting completely and deliciously wet—not damp, not moist, but wet, wringing wet. You yourself when a child never enjoyed anything so much as your first drenching in an unforeseen and unavoidable rainstorm—the thrill of being wet, the cool drive of the water on your nose, into your sleeves and down your neck, and the joyous splash of soaked, water logged boots. Even the tedium of being rubbed with alcohol, bundled up and warned you would catch your death did not diminish the event. You voted it better than the time you fell off the boat dock; it lasted longer.—Atlantic.

CAMELS OF THE DESERT.

Their Peculiar Adaptability to Life in the Sandy Wastes.

The camel thrives only in desert regions. And herein lies its usefulness to man, for by its means alone is he enabled to cross barren tracts otherwise impassable. This ability to live without water and with little food for long periods is due to two natural reservoirs. Water is stored in special pockets in the lining of the stomach, while a large mass of fat is stored on the back, forming the characteristic hump, though, according to popular belief, it is here that the water is held.

Though it will manage to subsist for long periods on the thorny scrub such as forms the only vegetation of desert areas and with very little water, its complacency in these matters may be overtaxed, as was disastrously shown during the first expedition to Khartum.

Two other factors in the adaptability of the camel to a desert life have to be taken into account. These are the feet and nostrils. The first named have but two toes, protected by very thick, horny pads to resist the burning sand, while the nostrils are long and slitlike and can be closed at will, thereby enabling the animal to survive the awful sandstorms which so frequently endanger the lives of travelers in these inhospitable regions.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

ATLAS AND HIS LOAD.

It Was the Heavens, Not the Earth, the Titan of Mythology Upheld.

Strictly speaking, "atlas" is a misnomer for a map book, since it was not the world, but the heavens, that the Atlas of mythology upheld. Mercurator, the famous Dutch geographer, who made globes for Emperor Charles V. of Germany, was the first to use the name in this connection, choosing it as a convenient and in some sort an appropriate title, because Atlas, the demigod, figures with a world upon his shoulders as a frontispiece of some early works on geography.

Atlas, it was said, made war with other Titans upon Zeus and, being conquered, was condemned to bear heaven upon his head and hands. Later tradition represented him as a man changed by means of Medusa's head into a mountain, upon which rested heaven and all its stars.

In any case, Atlas was always associated with a heavy burden strongly borne. Thus Shakespeare makes Warwick say to Gloucester, "Thou art no Atlas for so great a weight."

It is not difficult to see how by an association of ideas this came to be chosen as the name for a book of maps which upholds and exhibits to us the whole world.

An Eccentric Bishop.

Bishop Wilson of California had as housekeeper a venerable lady who remembered the duel between Sir Philip Francis and Warren Hastings on Aug. 17, 1780. On entering the cathedral on a Sunday morning, fully robed, lawn sleeves and all, and passing the pew where the old lady sat he would pause and give her the "kiss of peace" before all the congregation, and this although he had met her at breakfast.

His sermons, too, were racy. Preaching against dishonesty, especially in horseflesh, as one of the great English fallings in India, he went on, "Nor are we, servants of the altar, free from yielding to this temptation." Pointing to the occupant of the reading desk below him: "There is my dear and venerable brother, the archdeacon, down there. He is an instance of it. He once sold me a horse. It was unsound. I was a stranger, and he took me in."

Golf Defined.

On the terrace of a country club a group of nongolfers were taking tea. A male nongolfer said thoughtfully: "Golf might be defined as billiards gone to grass."

"Spleen on the green, I'd call it," said a female nongolfer.

"Or the last flicker in the dying fire of athletics," sneered a young football player.

"The misuse of land and language," suggested a tennis champion.

"No, no; you're all wrong," said a famous angler. "Golf is simply a game wherein the ball lies ladsly and the player well."—Washington Post.

The Burglar's Prayer.

Sir Herbert Hilsley, speaking of the castles of eastern Bengal at a meeting of the Royal Anthropological Institute, said a curious system of religious worship prevailed among a caste who were professional burglars. They made a space in the ground, and a man then cut his arm and prayed to one of the earth gods that there might be a dark night and that he might succeed in obtaining great booty and escape capture.—London Standard.

That Face!

"Look me straight in the face and tell me really love me," he said warmly to the sweet young thing who stood in front of him with downcast eyes.

"Oh, I couldn't do that," came from the lips of the clever girl.—Yonkers Statesman.

The Cause.

"What is the cause of social unrest?" "The desire," replied Mr. Dustin Stax, "of the workman for leisure and of the leisurely man for something to keep him busy."—Washington Star.

So Thoughtful.

Tailor—How many pockets in your trousers? Customer—Only one, please. My wife is a busy woman, and I want to save her time when she goes through them.—Buffalo Courier.

SUICIDE CHANGED MIND.

Taste of Carbolic Acid Showed Smith He Didn't Want to Die.

Indianapolis.—Edward G. Smith, aged twenty-five, of 652 North Jefferson avenue, decided to commit suicide, but quickly changed his mind after he had tasted a small quantity of carbolic acid.

The customary fateful note, in which he attributed his despondency to a quarrel with his wife, was found in his pocket.

Smith staged his attempt at suicide in a drug store at Illinois and Washington streets. After the clerk had sold him the acid he turned around and held the upturned bottle to his lips. A moment later he gave out a shriek, threw the bottle and remaining bit of acid at the clerk and then fell against the counter. An ambulance took him to the city hospital.

Physicians at the hospital said that Smith's tongue was slightly burned, but that he had not swallowed any of the acid.

ONE LOOK WAS ENOUGH.

Farmer Flees When He Sees Bride by Mail Got Off Train.

Kansas City.—When Timothy Riley, farmer, got one look at his bride to be the romance was "busted." Riley drove his brand new farm wagon up in front of the Union station, hitched the team and then stood guard at the exit door. He wore a red carnation, by which sign the bride to be was to know him. All the love making having been done by mail. The bride, who was to have come from Nevada, was to wear a Palm Beach suit.

A few moments later a Palm Beach suit, garnished with numerous boxes and bundles, hove in sight. Riley took one look, snatched the carnation from his buttonhole and fled. The bride to be appeared to be fully twenty years older than he, which probably was the excuse for his hasty flight.

"TIPPERARY" SUNG IN LATIN IN NEW YORK

Night Pupils and Professor Collaborate on Songs.

New York.—You can't keep a good song down. When it has been translated into all the living languages it takes up the dead.

If whoever wrote "Tipperary" will visit the New York evening school in De Witt Clinton high school, Tenth avenue and Fifty-ninth street, he will hear there almost any night this lyric lilt—and wonder what has happened to the darling of his brain:

Longa via ad Tipperarium,
Longa via ibo,
Longa via ad Tipperarium,
Ad postum quam cognosco.

Vale Picidium,
Vale Leicester Forum
Longa via est ad Tipperarium
In est cor meum.

Also, if he listens longer, he will hear "I Didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier" and the other songs of the moment done into the purest Latin of Manhattan.

The explanation, if he asks one, is that Professor Horace C. Wait, teacher of Latin in both De Witt Clinton high and the evening school, has discovered the way to interest his pupils is to bring Latin up to date. Of course, Caesar's legions may have sung the same song as they realized how far it was from London town to Ireland, but even so, thinks Professor Wait, to put "Tipperary" into Horace's tongue brings the past more in line with the present.

For several seasons lately the boys and the professor have collaborated on the translations of popular songs and then have sung them to detect imperfections in the rhythm. They will continue to adapt Broadway's best singing songs to the Appian Way as long as the songs and the Latin verb hold out. As for "Tipperary," even the German lads in the class join in on the "Ad postum quam cognosco."

GIVES ADVICE IN WILL.

Among Many Items Testator Admonishes Children to Be Upright.

Winchester, Ind.—The will of James Tobin, a Union City resident, who died recently, has been filed here for probate in the circuit court. Among the many items the testator admonishes his children to walk uprightly and says: "In making this last will and testament and in making this disposition of my property I beg to leave this advice and admonition to my children and to each of them: "First.—Love, honor and obey your mother. "Second.—Be faithful to your religion. "Third.—Love one another. "Fourth.—Be honest, upright and truthful."

Eighty Chickens in Pie.

Pomona, Cal.—In order to feed 350 members of the Loyal Men's Bible class of the First Christian church at a banquet Rev. C. R. Hudson had a local restaurant bake eighty hens in a chicken pie four feet wide, one hen deep and eleven feet long.

Paid $2,000 in Bounties.

Salem, Ore.—For 20,000 gopher and mole scalps, which were brought into the office of County Clerk Gehlhar residents of Marion county received $2,000.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.
