COMMISSION WOULD AVERT CAR SHORTAGE

Shippers Asked to Load to Maximum and to Release Cars as Fast as Possible.

The Oregon railroad commission has just issued an appeal to railroads and shippers to co-operate in an effort to minimize the threatened car shortage in Oregon. Owing to the location of Oregon at the ends of transcontinental lines and to the unprecedented scarcity of ocean carriers, the shortage promises to be very serious as soon as crops begin to be ready for market. In order to prevent as far as possible the demoralization of business that attends these car shortages, the railroads are asked to place and to move cars as rapidly as possible. Shippers are requested:

To load and unload all freight with the utmost promptness, regardless of the 48 hours' free time limit permitted by our demurrage rules.

To load cars to full capacity (10 per cent above marked capacity.)

To order no more cars than are absolutely needed.

To give the railroad company immediate notice when cars are released.

To order cars in writing, stating number wanted, time when and place where desired, kind of freight to be shipped, and the final destination.

To bear in mind freight cars are for transportation of goods and are not warehouses, and while they are idle waiting for loading and unloading, from the standpoint of efficiency they might as well be out of existence.

Jesse Thornton Buried.

The funeral of Jesse V. Thornton was held Friday afternoon from the Mills chapel, Rev. H. W. Aldrich officiating. The Masons had charge of the services at the grave.

The following obituary, read at the funeral, gives some information not published in The Sentinel last week:

Jesse Van Beber Thornton was born in Mayson county, Virginia, November 11, 1848, and moved with his parents in 1861 to Wayne county, Iowa. The family crossed the plains to Oregon behind mule and ox teams in 1862, leaving Iowa May 5 and arriving in Portland, Ore., on October 11, 1862. The severe hardships of the early pioneers were shared by this family, the six months' travel on the journey west being extremely arduous, especially for the parents with a family of small children, but these hardships were more than compensated, as they often remarked by the pleasure of life and prosperity found in Oregon. Mr. Thornton was married to Miss Martha Jane Spray at Amity, Ore., November 4, 1869, and to this union were born four children: Charles L., Manly Jessup, Mrs. Minnie Bell Plaster and Mrs. Mabel Clair Thompson, all of whom were in attendance at the funeral service except Manly Jessup Thornton, who died in 1876 at the age of two years. In 1885 Mr. Thornton and family moved from Amity to this neighborhood, where they have since resided. Mr. Thornton and wife conducting the Thornton hotel in this city for many years and were later engaged in the confectionery business here.

Decensed had been a member of the Masonic fraternity 34 years and a member of the I. O. O. F. about 12 years. Mr. Thornton united with the Methodist church in Yamhill county when 20 years of age and retained his membership in this church up to the time of his death.

The Valley Progress is the name of a new paper at Junction City, edited by A. K. Mickey. While we would not discourage anyone, it puzzles us how Mr. Mickey could see a field for a second paper in a town hardly large enough for one paper—and the first paper a pretty live one. But maybe he knows better than we do. We extend the hand of fellowship and invite him to join in and be one of the fellows.
