TESTED RECIPES

Meringue Cereal Cream with Dates—Use any cooked cereal enriched with chopped dates, and be sure that it is steamed until very soft and creamy. Then remove from the fire, and to each cupful stir in one heaping tablespoonful of stiffly whipped cream and the same amount of whipped egg white. Serve immediately, heaped in saucers and lightly dusted with sugar, and pour over each portion four tablespoonfuls of chilled cream. This forms one of the most delicious preparations of breakfast cereals.

◆ ◆ ◆

Vegetable Omelet—In making an omelet it is better not to use more than four eggs, as larger omelets are difficult to handle. Beat the whites and yolks separately and add to the latter one tablespoonful of cold water for each egg used, with a seasoning to taste of salt, paprika and celery salt; then fold the stiffly whipped whites into the yolks, mix lightly and turn into an omelet pan in which has been melted two tablespoonfuls of butter. (Clarified bacon drippings may be used instead of the butter.) Cook slowly until well risen and then spread over the top a layer of cooked chopped vegetables that have been slightly moistened with cream. Turn the omelet over into a neat half circle, cook for a couple of minutes on the under side and serve inverted on a hot platter.

Shows Why It Pays to Trade at Home.

To demonstrate the advisability of keeping home money at home, the Ostego County Advance, Gaylord, Mich., put a silver dollar in a leather case and spent it with a local merchant. It was requested that this merchant pay some local bill with it and the recipient pay another bill or use it in making change—any way, just so the dollar was kept at home. A record of its "wanderings" is being kept and published weekly in The Advance. The idea is a good one and the weekly stories of the work it has done will be surprising to every reader. Metropolitan papers have tried out the plan with success, and when a dollar can be traced in a big city, surely it can be in a smaller one.

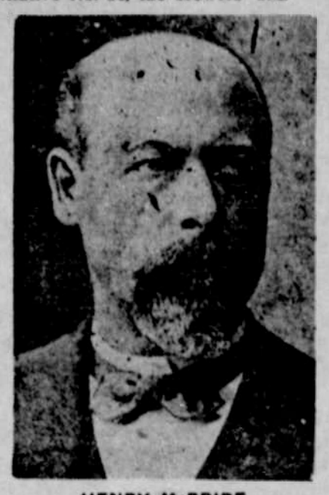
WILSON APPARENTLY WINS WASHINGTON

Lister, In Late Spurt, Passes McBride for Governor---Poindexter Has Lead.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 8.—Reports from all over the state indicate that a heavy vote has been cast, with President Wilson maintaining a consistent lead over the republican nominee, Charles Evans Hughes.

The surprise of the vote so far is the strength of Governor Ernest Lister, democrat, who in a late spurt passed Henry McBride, republican.

United States Senator Miles Poindexter will be re-elected by about 35,000 plurality over his democratic opponent, former United States Senator George Turner. Defeat overwhelming is indicated for both initiative No. 18, the so-called hotel liquor bill, and initiative No. 24, the brewers' bill.



HENRY McBRIDE

Probably Elected Governor in the State of Washington.

Representatives in congress, Albert Johnson, in the third district; Lin Hadley, in the second, and W. L. La Follette, in the fourth, will be re-elected, all republicans. The republicans will have two more in John F. Miller, from the first district, and Tom Corkery, in the fifth.

The cities seem to be inclined to Wilson, although giving the republican nominees for governor and senator good leads.

In Seattle 190 voting machines were used for the first time, and the results were attended with the usual confusion. Some voters took as long as 10 and 12 minutes in spite of the fact that the regulations gave the election officials authority to order the voter out unless he could mark his vote in two minutes. Where voters had studied the operation of the machines before they entered booths the results were satisfactory.

HUGHES' MAJORITY IN ILLINOIS 150,000

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Illinois is back in the republican column, and by a majority sufficient to dispose of any grounds for argument. Hughes has carried the state by at least 150,000. Frank O. Lowden, for governor, has defeated Edward F. Dunne, the democratic incumbent, by about the same figure.

The outstanding surprise in Illinois, more especially in Chicago and other big industrial centers, was the vote for Hughes by the workmen. Democratic leaders had confidently expected that the labor vote would go practically solid for Wilson and Dunne. Republicans would not concede this claim but expected a majority of the working people's votes, especially the labor union element subject to the influence of Gompers, would swing to Wilson. To the surprise of managers on both sides, the labor votes appear to have gone to Hughes. This explains why Chicago has given Hughes a majority, when all calculations were based on Wilson carrying the city by at least 60,000.

Still another surprise was the big vote given Hughes by the women of the state. Democratic managers had claimed they were sure of a big majority of the women's vote on the "he kept us out of war" argument. Republican managers admitted this would have its effect, especially upon women whose husbands and sons were of military age or who would be subject to call in case of a war a few years hence.

The returns show that the women of Illinois look at conditions from practically the same viewpoint as the men. They appear to have gone along with the men and the sole result is a greatly augmented total vote for the state, with no change in the political complexion.

Hughes Wins Home Precinct.

Bridgehampton, L. I., Nov. 8.—The summer home of Mr. Hughes gives him 212 votes out of 289.

MAY ANYONE FERMENT AND DRINK OWN WINE

This Interesting Question Is Up for Decision in the Circuit Court of Multnomah County.

Manufacture of wine for home consumption is a constitutional right with which the prohibition law cannot interfere, is the contention of a test case filed in the circuit court of Multnomah county to determine the status of hundreds of Multnomah county residents who are accustomed to light wines for family use and have continued to drink that which they themselves make of grapejuice.

The action is filed by Attorneys M. G. Montrezza, G. E. Hamaker and E. P. Slovarp for A. Lima, a man threatened with prosecution for the making of wine for his family use, and a perpetual restraining order is asked against District Attorney Evans and Sheriff Hurlburt.

Mr. Lima, it appears, is a married man with several children. He has on hand some 20 gallons of unfermented wine, which he pressed by hand from grapes he himself had grown. This wine is valued at about $1 a gallon. The plaintiff asserts that the wine is intended for personal use and as a food. Its possession, as yet, is not forbidden by the dry law, for it is unfermented.

But to be of any food value, the wine should be aged several weeks at least, maintains Mr. Lima. In the aging process it will become fermented. When it reaches that state he is threatened, so he asserts, with arrest and prosecution for violation of the dry law.

The fermentation, so the plaintiff contends, cannot be prevented if the wine is to retain its food value. To prevent fermentation would mean that the wine would have no food value and be of little use, is an assertion with which the state will undoubtedly take issue.

The prohibition law quite clearly forbids the manufacture within the state of any beverage containing alcohol in excess of one-half of one per cent. Unfermented wine is permitted, but unfermented wine is only grapejuice, and does not fill the wants of some.

Mr. Lima asserts that there are several thousand others in the state situated similarly to himself, who would like an interpretation of the dry law on the question of wine manufacture. He says that he has no intention of disposing of the 20 gallons he has outside of his family, and that to prevent his manufacturing the wine is an unwarranted interference with the personal liberty endowed by the constitution of the United States.

MANY WOMEN WANT PETTICOATS FOR DIME

Minneapolis Postoffice Is Flooded With Letters Containing Money.

Despite newspaper warnings thousands of women are continuing to send their dimes to the National Mail Order Brokerage, Minneapolis, Minn., in the hopes of getting a silk petticoat for that amount. A fraud order has been issued against the concern by the postoffice department and the flood of letters going to the Minneapolis postoffice may be stopped. Each woman sending a dime for one of the petticoats must also write several chain letters to her friends and by this method the number of dimes that have been sent in has reached the hundreds of thousands. A number of chain letters has been received here but it is not known whether or not any of them has been answered. The number of dime letters received daily at the Minneapolis postoffice has passed the 30,000 a day mark and is entailing a tremendous expense upon the postoffice department.
