Society

If you know of a society item and do not inform the newspaper, it is your own fault if it is not printed.

On Saturday afternoon about twenty-five ladies gathered at the hospitable Swengel home and were entertained by several spirited guessing contests. Mrs. Geo. Kerr was the winner in a novel popcorn-ball guessing contest, being awarded the popcorn-ball and its contents, and Miss Esther Silsby was the fortunate recipient of a tatted table pad for guessing the number of beans in a bottle.

On Tuesday afternoon another group of friends were entertained in a similar manner, Mrs. H. J. Shinn being the successful one in the popcorn-ball contest and Mrs. George Knowles in the bean guessing, while Mrs. Horace Cochran received a consolation prize. TESTED RECIPES

Sweet Fruit Salad—Three ripe yellow pears, one bunch of white grapes, one blood orange, two red bananas, one glass of maraschino cordial, or the same quantity of rum, and sugar to taste. Peel the pears and quarter them, taking out seeds; seed the grapes, peel and slice the bananas, and cut the orange in slices through the skin, dividing the slices then or leaving them whole. Put all the fruit together and sugar it liberally, then put it away on the ice; when ready to serve, put on the liquor used. If this salad is served in a bowl, and the red orange slices are left whole, the effect will be very ornamental.

Baptist Cakes—These are especially good on a dark, wet morning when there is a slight chill in the air. Scald a pint of milk in the upper part of the double boiler, adding half a teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of butter, the same of lard and one teaspoonful of sugar. Remove from the fire as soon as the butter and lard are melted, cool to blood heat, and stir in three-quarters of a yeast cake dissolved in three table-spoonfuls of tepid water and sufficient sifted flour to form a soft dough. Mix well and set in a warm place over night. In the morning break well, break off tiny bits of dough, roll between the hands to the thickness of a lead pencil (they should measure about three and a half inches long) and let them rise again. Fry in deep hot fat to a rich brown, drain on brown paper for a couple of minutes and roll in powdered sugar. These are delicious with coffee.

FADS AND FANCIES

A piece of savory cold meat is always a great help in warm weather to the housekeeper, as not only may it be served sliced cold for luncheon or supper, but used as a filling for sandwiches a savory addition to an omelet, utilized in a browned hash, or mixed with bread crumbs and baked as a forcement in tomatoes and green peppers. A piece of the lower part of the round of beef is the best for this method of cooking, and as the meat is all lean it should be larded with tiny strips of salt pork or bacon to render it juicy when cooked. This your butcher will generally attend to, without extra charge, provided it is requested when the meat is purchased.

Some traveling hints well worth remembering. I have proved the value in peace of mind and convince of the following ideas.

I mark my bag or trunk with a marker of red, be it a bit of ribbon or a cord tacked on, so that in identifying my baggage among dozens of others I can instantly point out to the baggage man "that one with the red marker."

I take black elastic one-half to one inch wide and make a belt around my waist, through which I slip the loop of my small bag in which I carry my tickets and change or any small conveniences. I thus have it always safely at hand and yet not in hand.

I make a similar "garter" of elastic which I put around my traveling coat, slipping the arm which carries it through the elastic; I feel sure that it cannot slip off my arm in the bustle of changing cars.

When tying up crocks of fruit butter or pickles wet the string or twine. This will prevent slipping when trying it and be tighter, as the twine will shrink.

This will be useful next summer. For removing seeds from cherries try this: Into an ordinary pen handle set a clean pen with the point reversed. This part of the pen will slip around the pits and remove them easily.

Wooden sandals to keep the feet dry when working on a damp floor are made of a piece of wood three-quarters of an inch thick, shaped like the shoe soles with straps to attach them to the shoes. Two cleats, one inch wide, are fastened to the bottom of the wood sole to raise the shoe high enough to keep it out of the water.

Moisten a small portion of cornmeal with vinegar and rub the hands thoroughly with this mixture. It will remove the stains and leave the hands feeling soft, smooth and comfortable.

Add a cupful of boiled rice to lyonnaise potatoes just before you take them from the fire; they will go farther, and the rice kernels will add a distinctly pleasing flavor.

Save all nutmeg scraps too small to grate and put them into a coffee mill or the butter blade of a food chopper.

Butter potatoes when putting them into the oven to bake, as the fat softens the skin and makes a more attractive vegetable to serve.

If your typewriter at home proves expensive by reason of the ribbons drying and fading out before showing signs of wear, try dropping a tiny drop of typewriter oil along the upper edge of the ribbon at intervals of about six inches, then wind tightly on one spool and let it stand several days, or at least over night before using.

There is satisfaction in having a letterhead that has the appearance of being "right up to snuff." There is satisfaction to The Sentinel in doing printing for those who want that kind.

SHOE PRICES MAKE HUGE BOUNDS

Leather and Hide Advances Are Greater Proportionally Than Those of Finished Goods.

An interesting feature of shoe prices, now so high as to seem almost prohibitive to many, is that the prices of leather range upward as they run back from the consumer to the producer, rather than vice versa as is usually the case in manufactured goods. For example, since 1908 upper leather hides have advanced in price 371 per cent; upper leather 235 per cent, the advance on hides, therefore, exceeding the advance on leather by 136 per cent. Sole leather hides have advanced, since 1908, 250 per cent, and on sole leather only 179 per cent, the advance on hides being 71 per cent greater than on sole leather.

Manufacturers claim that advances in shoes are not nearly as great as advances on hides and leather would justify.

Recently the U. S. government opened competitive bids for marine shoes, the specifications of which were precisely the same as on September 1, 1916, and the lowest bidders' price was $1.71 a pair higher than the September 1 bid. This means that under the keenest competition by the biggest concerns, a man's plain regular cut shoe has advanced, in about 90 days, $1.71 a pair, based on the lowest bid submitted, while the average advance asked was $2 a pair.

During war times the waste is reckless and extravagant and as European powers are buying up leather in large quantities at practically any price, the prospect for lower priced shoes is not encouraging.

FREEZING WEATHER IS OF BENEFIT TO FARMERS

Some Damage May, However, Have Resulted to Winter Gratz.

That the recent freezing weather was of some real benefit to crops is the current opinion among farmers. It was valuable in holding back fruit buds, so that they will be late enough, in all likelihood, to escape damage from any late frosts that may occur and in that it broke up the soil making it light and pulverized, tillable and increasingly productive.

However, it did some harm to winter grain, which on account of the dry autumn did not develop a sufficient root system to prevent its being uprooted by the action of the freezing.

It is thought that the good done, however, greatly exceeds the probable damage.

Wildwood Spellers Average High.

Ten out of twelve pupils were correct spellers in the recent spelling contest held at the Wildwood school.

They are Mable Finley, Hazel Simmons, Helen Whitcomb, Paul Simmons, Bertha Damewood, Avanel Whitlock, Virgil Damewood, Mary Simmons, Jesse Simmons and Bernice Damewood.

The other two pupils taking the contest scored 94 per cent and 98 per cent. Edith Messenger is teaching in this district.
