UNDER THE BIG DOME AT SALEM

By ELBERT BEDE

State Capitol, Salem, Ore., Feb. 4.—(Special to The Sentinel)—As predicted in my last letter, the passage of the "Bone Dry" bill proved to be a cut and dried affair. Of course, it must not be taken for granted that all those who voted for the measure personally favored it or expressed by their vote their own personal convictions. It was frequently stated that 37 members of the lower house were personally opposed to the bill. Although this is no way disconnected its sponsors, it is more than likely that there was some truth in the statement, but it was a foregone conclusion in advance that no great number of votes against the measure would be recorded. Some of those opposed were honestly opposed to prohibition in any form, but the greater number were opposed to certain features of the bill. Some of these opposed to features of the bill were genuine prohibitionists.

It was predicted in one of my letters that road legislation was likely to encounter some chuckholes. Recent events show the accuracy of that forecast. Two weeks ago most of the members would have said that road legislation was as certain as anything could be. Today the chances seem to be somewhere near even that there will be none at all.

There are two distinct road programs under consideration. One was proposed by the Oregon Good Roads association, made up of members of the grange, farmers' union, federated labor, taxpayers' league, hotelmen's association, Portland Automobile club, Portland Hotelmen's association, State Editorial association and banker's association. This program is embodied in house bill No. 215, introduced by Mr. Schimpff. This bill provides for a commission, of which the state engineer shall be a member, the other members to be appointed by the governor from a list selected by the Oregon Good Roads association. This manner of selection does not suit the governor, and the presence of the state engineer on the board is thought to be one particularly disagreeable feature to the governor. His announcement that he will veto any measure providing for a commission created in this manner has caused consternation in the camp of the lobbyists for the bill. While said lobbyists are apparently anxious for an opportunity to work in harmony with the governor, it seems unlikely that such men as C. E. Spence, master of the state grange and master lobbyist, are likely to give up what they consider one of the strongest features of the bill. Whether or not there are enough votes to carry the bill over a veto is a doubtful question. Even were there sufficient votes to do this, it is doubtful if the measure can be enacted in time to get it back and re-pass it.

The object of restricting appointments to a selected list is thought to be to prevent the appointment of so called "bugs", but charges and countercharges are beginning to fly so thick, and there are so many grudges and ambitions to be satisfied, that no one not within the inner circle can feel certain that he has the right "dope" as to the different influences directing certain moves. That someone is trying to put someone else in the hole seems to be more than a probability. The manner in which a certain Portland paper has entered into the fight lends credence to this belief and the support of this paper is endangering the support of other influences and has unquestionably had much to do in making the success of this particular road code uncertain.

Another complete road program is being engineered by Representative Laugaard, of Portland. It is embodied in several bills, any one of which may be adopted separately and any one of which is designed to provide a complete road program as far as it goes. For example, one bill may provide for a complete state road system, another for a complete county system, etc. One of Mr. Laugaard's bills provides for dividing counties into commissioner districts.

The commissioner district plan was endorsed at a recent meeting of the Southern Lane County Taxpayers' league. At the instance of this league a resolution endorsing commissioner districts was introduced at the recent meeting of the State Taxpayers' league and lacked but one vote of the two-thirds necessary to adopt.

Lane county is well represented by those interested in road legislation. Representative Bean is taking an active part in legislation of this nature and E. J. Adams, of Eugene, has been here for the express purpose of looking after road legislation. Walter Griffin, ex-officio senator, is also keeping track of things in that line.

Of course, it would not be possible for any road legislation to be considered without charges that the paying interests are on hand attempting to insert their little jokers wherever they may serve a purpose. It is vaguely hinted that this intermeddling is going to be the cause of some pyrotechnical displays before the session is over.

Considering all the talk heard about the exorbitant salaries paid state officials, it is refreshing to find two who are working every day without knowing whether or not they are going to be paid for their services. The salaries for Messrs. Harrington and Maris, in the industrial club work, stopped January 1. With the probability of the discontinuation of extension work and the lopping off of every possible appropriation, there is more than a probability that these two men may not get paid for the work they are now doing. However, many letters are being received urging the continuation of this work. Mr. Harrington is a former resident of Creswell.

The fish bills are taking up the usual amount of time, both in committee and upon the floor.

The first straight county division bill to be acted upon by the legislature for several sessions is the one which proposes to create Cascade county out of the eastern portion of Clackamas. It passed the house with 15 votes to spare but may have rougher sledding in the senate.

C. C. Chapman, for many years master lobbyist from the Portland commercial club, is here again this session but in an entirely new role, that of an editor. He seems to be carefree and to enjoy the novelty. His editorial references to the action of the legislature are eagerly read and show they are from the pen of one familiar with the ways of that august body. Instead of hustling about marshaling his forces and exhorting the efforts of others, "Chap" takes it easy at his desk in the lobby and plays the game of chess board. The chess lobby is becoming quite an important body and is attaining a respectable membership—not to infer that the membership hasn't been respectable.

Representative Jones, of Lane, has not only outstripped the combined efforts of the other members of the delegation in the introduction of bills but he is one of the leaders of the entire house with 19 bills to his credit. Only two members have a greater number. They are Scott, of Multnomah, with 24, and Crandall, of Malheur, with 20. Several of Mr. Jones' bills have already been signed by the governor. His bill to increase the salary of the county commissioners from $3.00 to $5.00 a day will probably become a law.

Representative Bean, of Lane, is quite frequently referred to as one of the strong members and is considered quite a likely congressional candidate.

It will probably take until the last moment for the ways and means committee to decide finally just where the slashing must be done. This may depend somewhat upon what consolidations are effected, and this latter program is not going along any too rapidly. At any rate the 6 per cent tax limitation law is going to save the state a bunch of money, whether wisely or not.

Both houses are behind last session with their work, due to the large number of bills up for consideration and the lengthy consideration necessary in committee.

UNIVERSITY TO GET STATUE OF PIONEER

Joseph N. Teal, of Portland, has commissioned A. Phinister Proctor, the distinguished eastern sculptor, to model a statue "typifying the real pioneer of the west" to be erected at a suitable location on the campus of the University. The ceremony of unveiling will take place sometime within a year and a half if Mr. Teal's estimate of the time necessary for the completion of the memorial proves correct.

"It has long been my desire to express my admiration and respect for the Oregon pioneer," says Mr. Teal in a letter to Judge R. S. Bean, chairman of the University board of regents. Mr. Teal himself was born in Oregon. His parents were among the pathfinders of the west.

Bethlehem's Bid on Shells for the United States Navy

To the American People:
The Secretary of the Navy has awarded contracts amounting to over $3,000,000 to a British bidder for 14 and 16-inch projectiles for the Navy because of very much lower prices offered by the English bidders.

We know nothing of the basis upon which the British bids were made, but the public is entitled to know the facts upon which we ourselves bid for this work.

Two years ago we took contracts to make 4,200 14-inch shells at a price of $1,515,000. Up to now not a single shell has been accepted by the Government, although we have expended, in wages, materials, etc., on these orders $522,381, and we have not received a SINGLE DOLLAR on these contracts.

In addition, a literal interpretation of the contract might make us liable for penalties amounting to $678,916.

In the light of our experience, and having no other basis, we bid for 16-inch shells approximately the same rate per pound as that which the Navy Department actually awarded a 14-inch shell contract one year ago.
