UNDER THE BIG DOME AT SALEM

By ELBERT BEDE
State Capitol, Salem, Ore. Feb. 10.—(Special to The Sentinel.)—With but about a week in which to handle more than half of the real legislation of the session, members who have been spending late hours at committee meetings, who have had a number of their bills defeated, who think they have been double-crossed by their friends, who are tired of grand-standing which delays real action, and who are anxious to get action upon some of the important measures yet to come, are getting somewhat irritable and in their high-strung condition it is a wonder that sharp remarks are not more frequent.

Those who are about the capitol only during sessions realize but little of the things the legislators have to put up with. They see the members come to their seats at 10 o'clock in the morning and see many of them disappear as soon as the session is over. They say, "pretty soft to get three plunks a day for four or five hours' work." They don't know that when a member disappears after a session he goes up stairs to a committee room to work possibly until midnight, they know little of the aggravations of committee meetings, where the courtesy of a hearing is granted to everyone interested one way or another in a bill under consideration. They have not had to sit in a hard-seated chair listening perhaps for hours to arguments pro and con while anxious to get to the consideration of 25 or 30 other bills equally as important. Often such hearings are wearisome in the extreme, often they do not enlighten, often members know in advance just what the report will be, a condition which does not tend to lighten the nerve strain. Whether or not the arguments are pertinent, whether or not they are desired, the whole performance is nerve-racking and must be gone through night after night. Especially is this true of important committees, and members of this committee are usually also among the busiest members on the floors. They are the ones most sought by lobbyists and others interested in important legislation.

It is no wonder that as the end of the session draws near members become irritable and say things on the floor that they may afterwards regret.

How much such circumstances had to do with the warm remarks of Representative Jones, of Lane, when another of his bills came out of committee with an unfavorable report I do not know, but Jones was emphatic in his statement that the education committee was playing horse with him and that he was not getting a square deal. The education committee holds its session in the office of the state superintendent. Jones and the state superintendent have not been eating out of the same dish for some time and Jones denounced the alleged activity of the said gentleman in directing legislation and in suggesting committee reports. Representative Lafferty, chairman of the committee, replied to Mr. Jones in a pleasant manner, but the remarks only served to further roll the fiery Lane county legislator, who left the legislative hall with a declaration of things he was going to do to show up some things in the state superintendent's office which he alleged are in need of legislative attention.

I have attended many banquets, and have enjoyed some of them. I have seen some out-of-the-ordinary stunts pulled off upon such occasions, but never before have I seen anything to equal the affair given by Mayor Harley, of Astoria, at the Marion hotel, night before last, at which the members of the legislature were his invited guests. I may have a rather vivid imagination but this affair surpassed anything that ever occurred to me in my most unreasonable flights of fancy. There are no words in the English language to fully describe the affair and to convey to those not present a really intelligent description of what was pulled off.

Mayor Harley is a big man with a bellowing voice. While the feed was progressing he had himself introduced for a speech. Some of the things he said may have been the truth. I am inclined to believe that he intends to be truthful, for one of his first remarks was to the effect that he had no political ambitions and the remarks that followed bore him out in that contention. After a few pleasant opening remarks that were well received he made an appeal against legislation that will tend to advertise Oregon as an undesirable place to come to. Then he proceeded to ridicule the actions of his guests in putting over the bone-dry bill, the anti-cigarette bill and other drastic legislation. It was supposed that Mr. Harley's banquet was for the purpose of boosting for highway legislation which Astoria and Clatsop county desires but that must have been a mistaken impression.

While many recognized the extreme and cutting humor of the occasion, roared with laughter at the incongruity of the situation and saw the vaudeville through, there were some to whom the affair was no joke and only the fact that the guests recognized the courtesy due a host, even if he did not recognize the courtesy due them, prevented a free expression of what they thought of a man who would invite the state lawmakers to banquet for the purpose of treating them like a bunch of kindergarten pupils.

I have seen many wonderful feats of magic within the confines of a black curtained stage. I have seen a woman change to a statue of marble and the marble in turn changed to the living flesh, but never before did I ever see anyone in the open glare of the spotlight make so many different kinds of a fool of himself in such a short space of time.

Fortunately members of the legislature do not judge Clatsop county by the ill-bred, ridiculous conduct of Astoria's mayor. Fortunately for Clatsop county members of the legislature are well-bred men, men of character and ability, men so popular with their colleagues that they offset this insulting performance by Astoria's ranting, bellowing mayor.

While drastic anti-cigarette legislation has passed the house, there is considerable doubt if it will get by the senate. Many of the house members were stampeded by feminine lobbyists, and in trying to make a play for the feminine vote have again passed the buck up to the senate. This may be part of the truth, but I do not believe it is the whole truth. I believe many of the votes were for the purpose of throwing a scare into the tobacco manufacturers, a representative of whom had made an unfortunate remark which had been misconstrued.

The compromise road code has passed the house and will have smooth sailing in the senate. The governor won his fight to have a free hand in appointing highway commission.

The paving companies are being slapped on both sides of the face and some interesting disclosures are expected before the end of the session.

In the event of hostilities between the United States and Germany we may expect announcements from that much maligned nation to the effect that the Imperial government of Germany has done everything in its power to prevent war between the two countries and solemnly calling upon God and all other nations of the world to witness that the responsibility for such hostilities rests wholly upon the United States.

Favors Agricultural Fair.
Wm. H. Wheeler, of Eugene, writing to the Eugene Register, has the following to say in favor of a strictly agricultural fair at the county seat:

"It is announced that there will not be a repetition of the round-up at the fair next fall. Let us hope that we may also do without any 'hoss trot' or any other monkey show to which the farm exhibits so often appear as a side attraction. It seems as if the industry which exceeds all others in importance, in value of products and in the number of persons engaged in it, as well as in the amount that may be added to the general prosperity, by lessons learned at the fair, might be able to stand alone before the public. Let the fair be devoted to the improvement of production in lines that will be of more practical value, in these days of farm-raised beef and automobiles, than of pert cattle-ropers or fast trotting horses. It might pay. We cannot tell until we try it once."

Apply for Citizenship.
Wednesday, February 21, is regular naturalization day in court, at which ten applicants for citizenship will be examined by a government agent before Judge Skipworth as to their qualification for citizenship.

Among the applicants are the names of Alfred Jury and Hiram Landwehr, of Cottage Grove.

Prior to a comparatively recent ruling that second papers were necessary in registering for election, Mr. Jury had voted for a number of years, and only after a diligent search for the document did he recall the fact that it had not been secured.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I wish to announce that I have opened offices in the Taylor building, corner of Main and Seventh, for the practice of medicine and surgery. Any and all cases treated, calls answered day or night, but special attention is given to general surgery and diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat. The hospital which will be in connection with my office rooms is nearing completion rapidly and expect all to be ready to receive patients by the first of next week. Telephone office 2, Residence 120.

Respectfully,
