TROUBLESOME SCALES.

Oyster Shell and Scurfy Scale Most Disastrous Next to San Jose. [Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

Next to the San Jose scale orchardists appear to be more troubled by the oyster shell and the scurfy scale than by any other insects of this character. These two scales frequently kill individual branches and stunt whole trees. They winter in the egg stage under their protecting scales and for this reason are less susceptible to washes than the San Jose scale. In most cases, however, the treatment for the latter will hold the oyster shell and the scurfy scale in check as well.

The oyster shell is found in nearly every state in the country. It attacks apple, maple, horse chestnut, poplar, willow, lilac and other trees. Shade trees which are not often sprayed are especially susceptible to attack. This insect resembles somewhat a long narrow oyster shell, under which the eggs are concealed. These hatch at varying times, but usually through the months of April, May and June.

EXAMPLE OF OYSTER SCALE.

The scurfy scale is especially common on apple, pear, cherry and peach trees. It is less widely distributed than the oyster shell and is regarded as less harmful. Where orchards are pruned and sprayed regularly for the San Jose scale during the dormant period no additional measures for protection against the oyster shell and scurfy scale are usually necessary. Additional spraying, however, may be needed if an abundance of young scales hatch in the spring. These may be killed by kerosene emulsion or other contact sprays. Infested trees should be carefully watched during the spring and early summer in order to discover the insects as soon as they hatch and to apply the spray at once.

Following are directions for making the kerosene emulsion and the lime-sulphur mixture used for spraying for San Jose scale, as well as for the oyster shell and scurfy scale.

Kerosene emulsion is made after the following formula: Kerosene (one oil lamp oil), two gallons; fish oil or laundry soap (or a quart of soft soap), half a pound; water, one gallon.

First dissolve the soap in boiling water, then remove the vessel from the fire. Immediately add the kerosene and thoroughly agitate the mixture until a creamy solution results. The stock emulsion may be more conveniently made by pouring the mixture into the tank of a spray pump and pumping the liquid through the nozzle back into the tank for some minutes.

The stock solution, if well made, will keep for some months and is to be diluted before use. To make a 10 per cent spray (the strength for trees in foliage) add to each gallon of the stock solution about five and two-thirds gallons of water. For 20 and 25 per cent emulsions (for use on dormant trees and plants), use respectively about two and a third and one and two-thirds gallons of water for each gallon of stock emulsion. Agitate the mixture in all cases, after adding the water. The preparation of the emulsion will be simplified by the use of a naphtha soap. No heat will be required, as the kerosene will combine readily with the naphtha soap in water when thoroughly agitated. Double the quantity of naphtha soap given in the above formula, however, will be required, and soft or rain water should be used in making the emulsion. In regions where the water is "hard" this should first be broken with a little caustic potash or soda, as common lye, before use for dilution to prevent the soap from combining with the lime or magnesia present, thus liberating some of the kerosene, or rainwater may be employed.

A good lime-sulphur wash may be made for immediate use by the following formula: Stone lime, 20 pounds; sulphur (flour or flowers), 15 pounds; water to make 50 gallons.

The Limousine Look. Perhaps it is hypercritical of us riding in a limousine is a magnificent and awful thing, and how should any plain mortal be expected to endure it without amendment to his soul? Still, from our sidewalk, we do observe and protest. Can no human being, even though to the limousine born, learn to ride in a closed car and avoid the closed face, that blank, top lofty aloofness of expression so alien to normal American worry and cheerfulness?

The limousine look attacks any happy, laughing debutante or bank president the instant the door slams and they sink back in what is technically known in motorcar literature as "mildad's drawing room on wheels." It comes on or off the face very much as do the detachable tops that convert an ordinary touring car of commerce into a miniature palace fit to stand before the blinding glory of an opera house with unformed attendant handling in a very charming and expensive wife—New York Tribune.

A Japanese Composing Room. The most interesting department of a Japanese printing plant is the composing room. Great cases of type of all sizes extend the whole length of the mammoth room. As the Chinese and Japanese characters used in a printing office run far into the tens of thousands, the life of the compositor must be a continual search for the letter he desires to use.

The compositors were scuffling around the aisles of the room hunting for these characters and all singing at the tops of their voices, which apparently caused them to forget the terrors of their work. There seemed to be hundreds of them, and the din was deafening.

After the proof is finally corrected the forms are made up, quite as they are in an American newspaper office, stereotyped and sent down to big cylinder presses.—Archie Bell in World Outlook.

Harriman Told Him. Harriman had an almost supernatural instinct for knowing what was going on and who was doing it in the mysteries of stock manipulation. Once when Southern Pacific had been going up fast, Harriman and various banking houses buying in concert, he called up on the telephone one of his private brokers. "Somebody is selling," he said. "Yes, sir," was the answer. "Well, hand the market 25,000 for me." Immediately he called up the head of a banking firm much interested in the market. "Who's selling Southern Pacific?" he asked. "I don't know. We haven't been able to find out," was the answer. "I'll tell you," snapped Harriman; "it's your house." And he cut off the connection before any reply to him could be made.—Exchange.

Somewhat Different. Fred—There are times when I care nothing for riches, when I would not so much as put forth a hand to receive millions.

Kittie—Indeed! That must be when you are tired of the world and its struggles and vanities, when your soul yearns for higher and nobler things is it not? "No; you are wrong." "Then when is it?" "When I'm sleeping"—London Mail.

Success or Failure. "How's that young doctor getting along in your neighborhood?" "It depends." "On what?" "If that crowd that visits his office daily are patients he's doing very well; if they're bill collectors he's having a hard time of it."—Detroit Free Press.

An Easy Task. Lover (mournfully)—Have you learned to love another? Flirt (who had just broken off her engagement with him)—Oh, no, George. I didn't have to learn. The man is very, very wealthy, and the love came spontaneously.

Raised the Ante. Small Elmer—Papa, give me a nickel. Papa—Why, Elmer, you are most too old to be begging for a nickel. Small Elmer—I guess you're right, papa. Make it a dime.—Chicago News

 PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.  Boils and Carbuncles. The appearance of boils in crops is mainly an indication of impaired health. Single boils are generally due to local irritation. The location of the boil or carbuncle determines the amount of danger it may be to the patient. If a boil or carbuncle occurs in a locality where there are rich blood and lymphatic area it at once becomes a source of danger because the vessels spread the infection. Boils and carbuncles are due to infection by the streptococci microbe. This means there are inflammation and pus present in these affections. Unless active treatment is instituted at the very beginning of inflammation there will be grave constitution-al involvement which cannot be checked. To avoid serious results it should be impressed upon every one suffering from boils or carbuncles the imperative need of having a physician at the first appearance of the affection. Delay will cause destruction of tissue or bone, deformity of a part or systematic infection, which results in loss of life. *****
