

Gravity is Not the Test for Gasoline

"The specific gravity test is worthless, as a test of gasoline quality."

So says the U. S. Bureau of Standards. Boiling points comprise the only real test, because easy starting, quick acceleration, maximum power, depend absolutely on boiling points. The gravity-hydrometer tells you nothing about the boiling points of gasoline.

RED CROWN
the Gasoline of Quality

It is straight-distilled, and thus has its boiling points in a gradually rising, unbroken chain—low boiling points for easy starting, medium boiling points for quick and smooth acceleration, high boiling points for power and mileage.

No mixture can contain an unbroken chain of boiling points—the hundreds of intermediate points are missing. Be sure and get Red Crown. It's pure gasoline—not a mixture.

FEWER MEN REGISTER THAN WAS EXPECTED

Discrepancies Between Number Who Register and Census Estimates Revealed.

Washington.—Startling discrepancies between the number of men who registered for war service and the number the census bureau estimated would register, were revealed when returns from the states were received at the provost marshal general's office.

The total discrepancy so far is well over 500,000.

Officials are undecided whether this means that many states padded their 1910 census figures, upon which the bureau's estimates were based, or whether the returns indicate a large number of slackers without comment.

Orders for the arrest of every man between the ages of 21 and 30, inclusive, who cannot show a certificate of registration for war service have been issued by the provost marshal general.

Arrest and possibly a year's imprisonment threatens men of registration age who have failed to enroll for army conscription. Governors had orders from the war department to cease extending leniency to those who did not register, and to prosecute violators vigorously. The early publication of lists of registered men is expected to aid in the detection of shirkers.

General Crowder, provost general, in a statement, shows that the number of young men of Oregon who registered are 57.9 of the number estimated by the census bureau as being of military age, while in the state of Washington the number who registered are but 50.9 per cent of the estimate.

Washington's registration was relatively further below the census estimates than that of any other state.

WAR BILLS MAY PASS CONGRESS THIS WEEK

Washington.—Resigned to another hot weather session, congress plans this week to dispose finally of important war measures long pending and to begin consideration of legislation promising at least a month or six weeks more work.

Before the week ends it is hoped to send the delayed war budget and espionage bill to President Wilson. In the meantime the senate finance committee will continue revising the war tax bill, expecting to have it ready for debate in the senate the first of next week.

On the house side, discussion of the river and harbor bill will be resumed and the agricultural committee will complete its draft of the food control bill, to be submitted.

The railroad bill, giving the president authority to order preferential handling of food and other necessities is meeting opposition from a few senators, but its passage without delay is generally expected.
