You wouldn't live in a community that didn't have a newspaper. Are you doing your part to keep a newspaper in the community?

Familiar, but Unseen.

Things we see but don't notice were under discussion at the club luncheon table. This was the opportunity of the member who took pride in his superlative powers of observation. Taking from his note case a crisp one pound note, he laid it on a plate and offered its equivalent to every member at the table who could answer correctly the following simple everyday questions: (1) On looking at the face of a penny with the dated side toward you and the date at the bottom, does the head of the image on the coin face toward your left hand or toward your right? (2) How many ribs are there in the cover of an umbrella? (3) In a pack of cards one of the kings has only one eye visible—that is, his profile only is portrayed—which of the kings is it? (4) Which way do the seeds in the core of an apple point, toward the stem or opposite to it? The one pound note did not change hands.—London Standard.

A Once Legal Fiction.

In the legal calendar the 24th of October is worthy of notice, as on that day, in 1852, two individuals, though personally known to no one and enjoying an extensive reputation among lawyers, ceased to exist in England. These persons were John Doe and Richard Roe, and no two persons were more frequently referred to in legal documents. In every process of ejectment, instead of the real parties to the suit being named, John Doe, plaintiff, and Richard Roe, defendant. Their names were also inserted in criminal proceedings. This fiction was introduced into English legal practice in the time of Edward III, in consequence, it was said, of a provision in Magna Charta which required the production of witnesses before every criminal trial, and henceforth John Doe and Richard Roe were inserted as the names of the alleged witness, a custom which was carried across the Atlantic to this country.—Indianapolis News.

A Well Hated Landlord.

The most hated landlord in Ireland for the last 100 years, a miser known as "the parsimonious peer," was Hubert George de Burgh Canning, marquis of Clanricarde. He was unmarried, and with his death the marquisate became extinct. His Irish estate extended from Athenry, in Galway, to Woodford, twenty miles southeast, and it was said that anywhere along this route could be obtained a story of tragedy in the land war. Time and again the aid of the forces of the crown in evicting tenants had been refused. He was never seen in a vehicle. He took daily walks to Regent's park. There, on a public seat, not one of the chairs, for which he would have been charged a small fee, would sit this owner of 90,000 acres watching the squirrels. He was a noted collector of china and pictures, of which he was a wise buyer.—Chicago Journal.

According to Degree.

Horse breeding is an occupation which requires much learning, and a certain English farmer has a great reputation for his skill.

A neighbor of his who sought some advice on the cheap, asked the horse breeder's son one day:

"I say, Tommy, when one of your father's horses is ill what does he do?"

"Do you mean just slightly ill or real bad?" was the lad's cautious counter-question.

"Oh, seriously ill."

"Well," said the boy, "if a horse is only just a little ill, dad gives it some medicine, but if it is seriously ill he sells it."

Sacrificed Their Hats.

Many years ago the master butchers of Washington market, in New York city, used to kick their hats about the market at the close of business on Saturday night. Under the custom in the market it was considered a slighting of the profession for any butcher not to appear behind his counter with a high hat, and it was thought bad taste if the meat seller at the end of a prosperous week failed to destroy the hat. The apprentice butchers couldn't afford silk headgear and so used to gather up the broken hats and repair them for their own use.

All Pervasive.

The teacher's last question was meant to be a scientific poser.

"What is that which pervades all space," she said, "which no wall or door or other substance can shut out?"

No one had an answer ready but Freddy Sharpe.

"The smell of onions, miss," he said promptly.—New York Times.

A Ready Sealer.

For travelling carry a candle with you, and when about to make a jump, as the theatrical people say, seal your bottles with it. It takes only a minute to light the candle, turn it upside down and let the tallow drip around the cork of a bottle, but it insures perfect carriage of the fluid content.

Told Him Truly.

"Johnnie, how do you spell nickel?" the poor father asked.

"N-I-K-I-L-E," responded Johnnie.

"That is not the way the dictionary spells it," said the father.

"You didn't ask me that. You asked me how I spelled it."—Exchange.

Heartless.

"Why didn't Rastus marry dat Coonah gal?"

"Oh, she dun flunk at de last minute—wouldn't lend him a dollah for 't gitt de license wif."—Boston Transcript.

A slanderer and a snake of deadly poison each have two tongues.—Tamil Proverb.

Martin's Move to Round Prairie.

The Robert Martin family will move next week to Round Prairie, where Mr. Martin will have charge of a 3000-acre farm. B. K. Lawson has had charge of this farm, but will soon take up active duties in the federal army as a lieutenant-colonel when the militia is taken over by the federal government.

With the cost of everything entering into the making of a newspaper increasing, it is absolutely essential that all subscriptions be paid promptly. ***

Unshaken Testimony

Time is the test of truth. And Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test in Cottage Grove. No Cottage Grove resident who suffers backache, or annoying kidney and bladder ills can remain unconvinced by this twice-told testimony.

Mrs. M. Keibelbeck, Birch and J. Sts., Cottage Grove, says: "Whenever kidney complaint has troubled me, I have used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results. I am subject to kidney weakness and I was never able to find any medicine that would really help me until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. A short use of Doan's once in awhile keeps me free from all kidney complaint." (Statement given February 22, 1913.)

On March 27, 1916, Mrs. Keibelbeck said: "My estimation of Doan's Kidney Pills remains unchanged. I have never had them fail to give me satisfaction whenever I have used them."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Keibelbeck has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. jly12-19
