TESTED RECIPES

Beefsteak Pie—Cut two pounds of meat from the round or flank into pieces one inch square. Sprinkle with one tablespoonful flour, one tablespoonful parsley and one onion chopped fine, and brown thoroughly in two tablespoonfuls of butter.

Remove to a deep baking dish, pour one cupful of hot water or stock into the pan in which the meat was browned, thoroughly scrape up all rich meat juice, let come to a boil, then pour over the meat in the baking dish. Bake 45 minutes, then cover with a crust made as follows: Remove the membrane from a quarter pound of suet, chop fine, and add to gradually one cup flour; add one quarter teaspoonful of salt and enough ice water to moisten. Knead for a moment, then roll out into a sheet large enough to cover the top of the baking dish. Make a hole in the center of the crust for the escape of the steam. Before covering the meat with the crust, season with one teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper. Brush over the top of the crust with milk or beaten egg, and bake 45 minutes.

Chicken Marengo—Dress, clean and cut up a chicken for serving. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, dredge with flour and saute in hot salt pork fat, turning often to brown evenly. Remove to a stew pan and cover with tomato sauce; then allow to simmer slowly until the chicken is tender. Add one-half can of mushrooms cut in thin slices and continue cooking for five minutes. Place the chicken on a hot platter and surround with the sauce. Garnish with sprigs of parsley. Serve with rice croquettes.

FADS AND FANCIES

For Shiny Nose—For a shiny or oily nose bathe it daily in camphor of aconite. Also use borax in the water or corn meal or almond meal instead of soap. When the nose is red and shiny without being oily, bathe it in tepid water and cologne, dab it dry and rub in some good cream or oil. Allow this to remain for five minutes, remove most of the moisture and powder with rice powder or one which you know to be sygienically pure.

A Pretty Edging—A pretty edging for a handkerchief or other dainty article of wearing apparel, where a little edge is desired, one may be made as follows: Draw one or two threads, as for hemstitching, turn under and baste down the hem. With good thread, not too coarse, crochet over the hem into the place where the threads were drawn, skipping threads evenly and it will have the appearance of being hemstitched. Picot edging can be added.

A Buttonhole Device—When discarding old garments, I cut out all perfect buttonholes, leaving a little square of material which I hem on the machine. I then fasten them all together with a safety pin and put them away in my mending basket for future use. When making skirts for middies or separate waists, instead of putting on a band and making five buttonholes, I face the top of the skirt and attach my save-up buttonholes in front, back, and either side.

$100,000 IS LOSS IN BROWN SAW MILL FIRE

Flames Spread as if Shot From Cannon, Endangering Lives of the Fire Fighters

Incendiary Origin at First Suspected But That Idea Is Flouted by Manager Hill, His Foreman and Watchman

ready for the Southern Pacific. Two loaded Southern Pacific cars were destroyed. Several cars belonging to the Oregon Pacific & Eastern caught fire before they could be pulled out of reach of the flames, but the cars were but slightly damaged. The railway estimates its loss in the burning of the roundhouse at $500.

The fact that Fire Chief Woodruff knew of a standpipe located in about the center of the lumber yard at the south end of the mill resulted in the saving of this part of the yard. The pipe is one that was used by the old prune drier which was burned several years ago and had been almost forgotten. Had this part of the yard burned at the same time that the other flames were burning at their height it might have been impossible to have saved the electric light plant, which then would have been surrounded on three sides by flames. The hydrant which furnished the water that saved the electric light plant is one installed during the past year. Without this hydrant the city would doubtless now be without electric lights and power. The hydrant is at the corner in front of the Brown Lumber company's new office building, which was the only building belonging to the company that was saved.

It is a peculiar coincidence that in a fire that destroyed the electric light plant several years ago, the Brown mill was saved from destruction by a slab pile that acted as a barrier against the flames and as a protection for the firemen in the same manner that the electric light plant was saved in this fire.

Warren McFarland had a narrow escape from being steamed to death in the shaving bin of the electric light plant. He had been in the bin with a number of others throwing a stream of water on the burning shavings. Unnoticed by the others he had climbed on top of the shavings to see if he could locate further fire. While he was up there the others left the bin and closed the door and steam was turned into the bin through a pipe placed there for that purpose in case of emergencies. Mr. McFarland fought his way through the steam to the door and by pounding on the door attracted the attention of those on the outside, who released him from the trap. He was none the worse for the experience, although he had a bad scare.

Manager L. S. Hill, of the Brown Lumber company, was in Portland the night of the fire but hurried home upon receipt of a message telling of the fire. He states that the company is not ready to quit but that it has not yet formulated plans for rebuilding.

Sixty-eight men were on the mill's payroll and will be thrown out of work temporarily.

NEW FIREMEN REPORT AS THE FIRE SIREN IS SOUNDED

Raymond Veatch and Bill Bartels are two young men who had put in applications for membership in the fire company and who were attending their first drill at the time the whistle was blown for the fire which destroyed the mill of the Brown Lumber company. This was the hardest fire the fire company has ever had to fight and the firemen put in a strenuous night. Along in the wee sma' hours of the morning the two young men who had come out merely for practice stated that if that was what a drill was like they would not care about attending a regular fire.

MYSTERY OF WINTON SIX IS NOW SOLVED

The mystery of the Winton Six, wrecked at Judkins Point Wednesday night of last week, has been solved. The Winton passed another car just this side of Springfield, according to Julius Hieberg, who was arrested in Portland and brought to Eugene Sunday, and after they got past the other car turned a big searchlight on the Winton. The driver thought it was Sheriff Parker or his deputies and put on such a burst of speed to escape that he was not able to make the turn. Hieberg, who had no interest in the liquor, but was a passenger on the trip both ways, was fined $50 by Jesse G. Wells, in justice court at Eugene Monday.

BARTELL HAS CINCH BUT PAYS FOR SMOKES

C. A. Bartell put a good one over on himself this week. He saw a smooth stunt worked by a commercial traveler and thought he would pull it on some of his friends. He showed the "drummers" a 50-cent piece with a 25-cent piece on top of it, both with heads up, resting on the palm of one hand. He said "I'll pass my other hand over these a couple of times and then lift them up and show you that tails are up." The boys bit and Bart went through the mystic motions which were to reverse the designs on the money and lifted up the coins. The trick is to have a ten-cent piece concealed under the bigger coins, which is placed tails up, and when the larger coins are removed from the hand, the ten-cent piece shows tail up and wins the bet. Bart, however, had neglected to see that the 10-cent piece was placed with the right side up, and when the other two coins were removed it, too, showed heads up, and the smokes were on the house.

EUGENE HEN IS QUICK TO OVERCOME LEAD OF C. G. BIDDIE

Eugene Register: A short time ago a news item appeared in the papers telling of an egg weighing over three ounces which was laid by a Cottage Grove hen and which the owner of the chicken apparently considered phenomenal. Yesterday afternoon a hen's egg was brought to the office of the Morning Register by L. F. Straight, of 1212 High street, which appeared about twice the size of an ordinary egg and which weighed over four ounces. Mr. Straight stated that this particular member of his poultry family obviously takes delight in the unusual, as nearly every other day she brings forth an egg of the mammoth variety.

WINTER WHEAT WANTED; FARMERS GET GOOR PRICE

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Ore., Aug 27.—Oregon farmers having choice seed wheat of standard varieties will find the market profitable this year, says G. R. Hyslop, head of farm crops at O. A. C. By running the thresher at low speed the grains will not be cracked. The grain is then recleaned in the faning mill and should be sold at good seed prices. The varieties in best demand are White Winter, Prohibition, Rink, Little Club, Kinney and Foise, and should be placed on the market at once. White Winter barley and gray oats, sound, plump, heavy and clean, are also needed.

Inquiries for seed are already reaching the agricultural college at Corvallis and growers are urged to send in lists of these and all others for sale. The college will again keep lists of available seeds, which will be mailed on request.

H. S. Beers Dies.

The funeral of H. S. Beers, who died Saturday at the soldiers' home at Roseburg, was held here Tuesday, Rev. J. F. Smith, of Roseburg, conducting the services, which were under the auspices of the G. A. R. Interment was in the Brumbaugh cemetery, near the old home of the Beers family and beside the body of the wife, who died May 11, 1911. The cause of death was old age.

Mr. Beers was born in Yates county, N. Y., and was aged 79 years, 7 months, 22 days. He had lived here and at Roseburg for seven years or more. Mr. Beers was a veteran of the Civil war, being a corporal in company B, Sixth New York cavalry. He was twice wounded. Surviving children are A. B. Beers, of Centralia, Wash., George S. Beers, of Ostrander, Wash., and J. F. Beers, of Hornbrook, Calif.

Culvert Over Mill Race.

Work started Monday replacing the wooden bridge over the mill race south of the city on the Pacific highway with a concrete culvert, the work being done for the county by Walter Moore, of Eugene. Welcome Hubbell was first awarded the contract but gave it up.

While the work is being done there will be a temporary road through the Huff place. For a short time while the foundations are being placed the water will be turned out of the race, which will be dry for the first time in many years.

Finds Relative by Marrying.

As a result of the publication of the notice of his recent marriage, Boone Shortridge has learned of another relative of whom he had never heard. The relative is Mrs. Joe Ficklin, of Dimmond, Wash., who is a daughter of a sister of Mr. Shortridge's father. Boone says that is reversing the order of things because relatives, just after marriage, usually show up from the wife's side of the house.

Writes from Aerial Field.

Elwyn McCargar writes from the "Wilbur Wright Field" at Fairfield, Ohio, that that is one of the finest aerial fields in the United States and that work is progressing nicely. He says it is some relief to get to Ohio, after his experience in Texas. He says he receives The Sentinel each week and that the boys of Sixth company do not look forward to its coming any more eagerly than he does.

Smith Boy Buried Here.

Robert E. Smith, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Smith, of Marshfield, who died last week at the tuberculosis sanitarium at Salem, was buried here Friday afternoon, Rev. D. A. MacLeod conducting the service. The Smiths formerly lived here, Mr. Smith being a brother of D. A. Smith. He lost one of his hands in a mill accident here years ago but he now has the arm furnished with a hook which, in a great measure, takes the place of the hand he formerly had and is more powerful that the hand ever was.

Booze Car Owner Found.

The owner and occupants of the booze car which was wrecked by running into a telegraph post near Eugene, have been found out. One of the occupants of the car sustained injuries which made it necessary for him to go to a Eugene hospital for treatment. He confessed to receiving the injuries in the accident and gave the names of the owner and other occupants of the car.

FARMERS LOSE MEAT THROUGH CARELESSNESS

Food Commissioner Cautions Shippers of Dressed Animals.

"A great amount of meat prepared to be sold in Portland and other large cities of the state is condemned and ordered destroyed because of reaching the market in such a condition that it is unfit for food. This is not only a direct loss to the farmer who ships it, but in such times when we are exercising every effort in the line of food conservation, it is a loss to the consuming public, and we feel a great deal of such loss could be avoided if farmers and butchers would properly prepare their meats, taking necessary precaution to see that it reaches the market in the best possible condition," says J. D. Mickle, dairy and food commissioner.

"Dr. E. E. Chase, chief meat inspector of the city health department of Portland, informs me that during the last 16 months there has been condemned 18,426 pounds of meat that was killed and dressed by farmers, and this condemnation has not been on account of a diseased condition of the meat, but simply on account of what is termed 'spoiled meat.' We feel that if the farmers and butchers will observe the following requirements, much of this loss can be estimated:

"The carcasses of veal and hogs must be entirely free from animal heat before being offered to the transportation company for shipment.

"All carcasses of veal should have two sticks, one in the thoracic cavity, the other in the abdominal cavity, so as to spread the carcass and hold it apart. In hogs weighing over 200 pounds, it would be well to have them split through the hips and shoulders, as hogs sour very quickly during hot weather. Thoroughly wash the inside of the veal with hot water and wipe with a clean cloth until all slime and dampness is thoroughly removed; the sprinkling of cayenne pepper on the inside of the carcass tends to prevent the work of flies.

"All carcasses, except veal, must be wrapped in a clean cloth before being offered for shipment."

MOTORCYCLE SOLDIERS NOT STATIONED HERE

Forest Ranger Holderman Reports All Fires Out Except One.

Some of the motorcycle soldier boys sent out through the state to shoot on sight anyone setting forest fires, were in the city Sunday, but so far as known none have been detailed to look after the timber in this section. All the fires in the great body of timber in the Umpqua reserve east of here have been extinguished, with the exception of a bad fire on the steamboat. Forest Ranger Holderman has 33 men working on this side and a crew of men are working from the Douglas county side. This fire is not yet under control.

In many instances the fires have merely cleaned up underbrush and fallen timber, but in other places a large amount of green timber has been injured.

FOR FIRST TIME FINDS NEED OF IRRIGATION

P. A. Lindstrom, who was in from Divide Tuesday, reports that he has nothing to complain of in the way of crops. He has plenty of water with with to irrigate, but this is the first year in which he has found irrigation necessary. His crop consists almost entirely of potatoes and hay, and he will have a good yield of both.

Large Party Visits Hatchery.

A party of 27 from this vicinity visited the state fish hatchery on the McKenzie Sunday and enjoyed a picnic dinner on the island. In the party were Mr. and Mrs. Schneider and daughter Bernadine, Mr. and Mrs. William Dorward and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hands and daughter Edna, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McFarland and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Peek, Mrs. Martha Hughes, Almond Hemenway, Herman Rudolph, Miss Frieda Aubrey, Miss Hazel Ashby, Miss Forrest Schneider, Miss Emma Aubrey, Ralph Aubrey, William Kidd, Homer Kidd, George Myers, W. W. McFarland and I. T. Brumfield, the latter two driving the trucks. Mrs. Peek and Mrs. Hughes met their parents and brother, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Mayben and T. C. Mayben, who are spending the summer at the hatchery.

Benton Court Visits Lane County.

The Benton county court was here Tuesday viewing the work being done by Lane county on the Latham-Divide road. They were interested in the results obtained by the county's new combination of road machinery.

The rock crushers, which had to be moved in order to get satisfactory rock, have been set up at a quarry on the Boyd place and the work of placing the crushed rock will proceed rapidly from now on.

Contends for Bean Honors.

Dr. B. F. Fuller, not to be outdone by the Kentucky Wonder beans brought to The Sentinel office by C. M. Jockson, himself brought in some fully as large if not larger. He also brought a small branch of a grape vine which bore four fine bunches of grapes. The fruit is a pretty green color but he does not know the name of the variety.

Fire at Spriggs Home.

A roof fire at the John Spriggs home called out the fire department Thursday afternoon. The flames were extinguished with a garden hose before the arrival of the fire boys. A spark from the chimney is thought to have caused the blaze.

TALES OF THE TOWN

The name of Dr. D. L. Woods was unintentionally omitted from the list of members of the Red Cross furnished The Sentinel for publication last week.
