Real estate in south Lane continues active and Californians continue to buy here. Many new buildings are being erected by new arrivals.

The Wilbur Kelly 74-acre ranch on Mosby creek has been sold to James A. Scott of Cottage Grove, who has taken possession, will erect a new dwelling, make other improvements, and hold as an investment.

The Clarence N. Miller 20-acre ranch three miles southeast of Cottage Grove has been sold to Clarence Turner of Los Angeles, who will take possession in the spring and go into the chicken and vegetable business. Mr. and Mrs. Miller have not made future plans.

A home on south Sixth Street owned by the Fidelity Building & Loan association has been sold to Mrs. Barbara C. Juel of St. Paul, Neb., mother of P.S. Bukowski. She visited here recently, will return here soon and will improve the place and make it her home.

The Nina S. Quimby home and half-acre ground on south River road has been sold to W.T. Bussear of Port Orchard, Wash., who will bring his family here at once to improve the place and make it his home.

All of these deals were handled by the Hall & Johnston Realty Company.

OSHA courtesy inspection

On Tuesday and Wednesday of last week, Oregon Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) performed a courtesy inspection of the City Shop, Middlefield Golf Course Maintenance and Pro Shops, Wastewater Treatment Plant, City Hall, Community Center Therapy Pool and Row River Water Treatment Plant. The City said its staff requested the courtesy inspection to help identify and address potential OSHA violations before they become an enforcement issue. This was a health and safety assessment focused on personal protective equipment, noise and environmental exposures, ergonomics, proper chemical labeling, storage and identification and proper record keeping. The two-day inspection also served as a safety training opportunity for the various supervisors and staff. No major safety lapses were identified. However, there were numerous small corrective actions and improvements that were identified at each of the inspected facilities. The City will receive a summary report from the OSHA Inspector detailing the recommended corrective actions.

Classic film festival

On Monday, Nov 30 the Library will host a free screening of the classic film "Mister Roberts" starring Henry Fonda, James Cagney, William Powell and Jack Lemon. "Mister Roberts" has moments of unforgettable hilarity, but the comedy is tempered by sadness. The screening will include popcorn and beverage.

Oregon Battle of the Books

The Cottage Grove Public Library will be coaching a third to fifth-grade Oregon Battle of the Books (OBOB) team. OBOB is a statewide voluntary reading program and competition that is sponsored by the Oregon Association of School Libraries. OBOB teams are organized by the school district to represent schools within the district. Currently the team representing Harrison School and surrounding area is practicing at the Library. Any other third to fifth-grade aged children that live in the Harrison School area and are interested in participating in OBOB are welcome to join the library practices. Harrison team meetings will be held at the library on the first and third Saturdays of the month from 3:30-4:30 p.m. The regional competition will be in early March, 2016. Other schools that have registered teams to compete in OBOB this year are Bohemia and Latham, so home schooled children that live in the area around those schools, should contact the schools for practice times and locations.

Sponsor a state book

In December the Cottage Grove Public Library will be having a fundraising drive to replace its children's state book collection, which it said is outdated and worn out. For a $20 donation, interested donors can choose which state they would like to sponsor. The Library will purchase the book and add a gift plate to the inside cover thanking the individual or family for their donation. All donations are tax deductible.
