

Then

Located on River Road this scene clearly shows the old water hose tower. This scene is described as just north of the silk creek bridge.

Now

Looking North along River Road today provides a much different scene. The hose tower is gone, though a replica of it resides in All America Square on Main Street.

River Road just north of the Silk Creek Bridge

Then

The Bartell Hotel was where Buster and the crew stayed during filming. The top left picture is from a collection of 'behind the scene' pictures from the time of the filming. The picture to the right was taken in 1930 and helps us see that the top picture is indeed from the front of the Bartell Hotel. Notice trim on awning and windows above the door.

Picture courtesy of Dr. Anne Millbrooke

Now

No longer a hotel, the building remains, housing apartments upstairs and businesses at street level. One current business, Busters Café, has embraced the historical connection providing a fun film décor as well as delicious meals.

Picture courtesy of Dr. Anne Millbrooke

Cottage Grove Hotel (Bartell Hotel)