South Lane TV Turns 60!

In this age of instant communications, it is hard for folks to remember a time when local television was all broadcast from Portland. And it's hard to remember how poor the reception from Portland was, even with a huge antenna on the roof! And then when KVAL went on the air in 1954, it was obvious that even a "local" station performed less than ideally due to our mountainous terrain.

Cottage Grove was not alone. Throughout the mountainous American West, communities were up in arms with the FCC, demanding a way for local communities to enjoy what their counterparts in the cities of America had: good television. Cottage Grove played an active role in demanding the FCC adopt the then-new translator technology. The idea that distant TV stations could be picked up on a hill or mountain, and then rebroadcast to a community below, wasn't an easy fight, but the FCC eventually agreed to license translators.

So in February, 1957, the group incorporated as South Lane Television, Inc., a 501 (c) (4), non-profit organization. SLTV applied for and received construction permits for three of the earliest translator licenses issued by the FCC. Donations and pledges were quickly received from a sufficient number of Cottage Grove businesses and households to cover expenses. Over the years, SLTV expanded several times until eventually reaching a total of ten translators. More recently, the entire operation was converted to digital and the number of channels has increased to 36.We also serve London and Dorena/Culp Creek with two smaller rural systems.

Our goal is to continue to serve the community with the best television and radio system possible and to do it at no cost to the viewer. All you need is a good quality antenna aimed to our towers.

We're 60 and still going strong!
