South Lane Fire and Rescue raised $8,816 in support of the Leukemia & Lymphoma Society by climbing the Columbia Center in downtown Seattle. The local team raised $2,521 through community donations and raised the remainder by reaching out to family and friends. The annual event raises money for cancer therapies and other support for those battling blood cancer. Pictured right is local South Lane Fire and Rescue team member preparing to climb. Community Sharing relies on several funding sources, including government grants. "Not to get political but we don't know what's going to still be available or how things are going to work moving forward," Fleck said, noting the current tug-of-war over funding at the federal level.

The organization provides basic needs for low-income and homeless individuals including food, clothes, housing assistance and other necessities.

The fundraiser attracted 211 residents and provided a choice between 13 soups.

"It really was a great event," Fleck said.

The Souper fundraiser raised over $9,000 during its annual event which drew 211 residents and 13 different soups. All of the money raised will go to Community Sharing.
