Where Did This-TV and Grit-TV Go?

 $\label{thm:continuous} \textit{Just like our viewers, SLTV was surprised by the unannounced disappearance of This-TV and Grit-TV on KVAL's digital}$ subchannels, 13.2 and 13.3. Two new networks were substituted. Both This-TV and Grit-TV were favorite channels for many SLTV viewers.

It appears that the reason for the change was pure economics. KVAL is a Sinclair Broadcasting station and both This-TV and Grit-TV are networks owned by other television organizations. Sinclair recently launched two new networks dubbed TBD and Charge!, and they wanted their networks on their local Eugene affiliate station.

Sinclair, in a press release, stated that the TBD network would be "reinvigorating traditional television for today's millennial audience," a demographic cohort that tends to enjoy video content on the internet as well as traditional broadcast television. This audience demographic, they believe, will make TBD unique in comparison to other networks that feature classic television programs and movies aimed toward older audiences. TBD's schedule features various web-originated films, along with some traditional full-length films and documentaries acquired as part of Sinclair's film carriage rights already existing with Sinclair's Comet network, a digital subchannel of Eugene's KMTR. Roberts Media, LLC owns KMTR, but Sinclair Broadcasting provides services to Channel 16, including their news, many features, and the Comet network on 16.3

Charge! is promoted as an action-based network with more than 2,000 movie titles from the MGM library, such as Dances with Wolves and Platoon and 2,300 hours of TV series content like In the Heat of the Night and The Magnificent Seven. Charge! will feature action and adventure content as well as movies from the MGM library including franchises such as Rocky and James Bond. "Action is a genre that viewers never seem to tire of watching, and we intend on bringing our best titles to Charge!," a Sinclair spokesman said in a press release.

SLTV is exploring the possibility of finding a new way to bring back This-TV and/or Grit-TV. We'll keep you posted on the progress -- so stay tuned!

WEEKDAY MORNING
