Council "waives" $20,000 for Habitat

A request from Habitat for Humanity of the Cottage Grove City Council on Monday night came down to semantics: waive or pay.

The nonprofit organization came before the board asking that System Development Charges (SDC) and other construction and development fees be waived. However, state law prohibits governing bodies from doing so.

"Some cities will say they're waiving them but really what they're doing is paying them and then putting a lien on the property," said Cottage Grove City Manager Richard Meyers and then he asked the council: What do you want to do.

Several options were up for debate with councilors floating the idea of "waiving" the entire $20,000 in fees by placing a lien on the property that would come due upon the sale of the house by the first owner after Habitat for Humanity.

Lucky house 13 is slated to begin construction once permits are returned from the city but according to project manager Joe Herman, the associate construction fees could break the project before it gets started.

"Our budget is $90,000 to $100,000," he told the council. "No where can you build a house for that and when you take $20,000 from the budget, that's a hit."

Mike Fleck made the motion to gift $12,500 in SDC fees to the project and lien the remaining $7,000.

Councilor Jake Boone was the sole vote against the motion noting that a previous action by the board of a similar nature was to provide housing for multiple individuals
