

North Douglas holds 2017 prom

King and queen named

Kalli Frieze and Brent Taylor were named prom king and queen during North Douglas' prom.

OSAA classification Continued from B1

the economic and academic impact of traveling for schools with higher SES factors and that some schools have fewer students participating due to lengthy travel," the statement continued.

Still, in the end there was not enough support to make the change. "While there is support from some Committee members for five classifications, the majority of the voting members of the committee are in favor of moving forward with a six classification approach. Based on testimony and written correspondence over the past several months, it's evident that a majority of schools believe that a six classification approach works best for the students, schools, and communities in our state."

The release also went on to say smaller classifications such as the 2A school's conversations centered around "belief it would be unfair from a competitive balance viewpoint to bring in a number of larger schools. It was also mentioned that some schools would face longer travel in a five classification system." 5A schools "contend that the six classification system isn't broken and, at most, needs a slight tweaking of cutoff points moving forward. This group believes that competitive balance is covered in the committee's charge and they don't see competitive balance occurring in a five classification approach."

The committee will meet May 22 to discuss what will be the cutoff of enrollment points for each classification, as well as which schools will go in what leagues moving forward.
