The new Harrison Elementary School on Taylor Ave. is scheduled to be ready to receive students by Fall 2018. Demolition on the project started late last month with accessory buildings being torn down and initial plans underway. The school is set to house nearly double the number of students the current elementary school houses and has been designed with Pacific Northwest features, a new library and cafeteria space. Colors will guide students to the proper grade-level areas and final estimates have the school's construction costs clocking in at roughly $22 million. Photo courtesy South Lane School District.
