A look back at Sentinel stories from 30 and 60 years ago

August 8, 1927

Receipts High from Oregon Forest Reserve

The national forests of Oregon and Washington showed the largest receipts of any of the eight federal forest districts, taking in $1,309,173.16 during the fiscal year that ended June 30, 1927. This was a gain of $195,017.72 over the receipts for that district in the preceding fiscal year, according to the district forester in Portland. The California district was second in total receipts, taking in $1,162,581.38.

In sales of national forest timber, the cutting is done under the supervision of forest officers in such a way that the future timber production of the area will not be impaired. Grazing permits on the national forests likewise are issued with a due regard to permanent maintenance of the forage resources.

Under the federal law, 25 percent of all the gross receipts of the national forest is turned over to the states and counties in which these forests are located, to take the place of taxes which might be collected if the lands were in private ownership, government lands being exempt from taxation. These funds are used for schools and roads in the local communities.

August 1

Five teenagers ranging from 16 to 18 received minor in possession of marijuana charges after a neighbor on Grover Avenue reported that his underage neighbor was smoking weed in the back yard.

An individual reported a theft after his laptop was taken from the planter box that he had left it in at Walmart.

August 2

A man was reported to be unconscious in front of the toilets at All American Park.

August 3

Three subjects at All American park were seen shooting drugs into their legs.

A disturbance was reported off Hwy. 99 when an individual took a shovel off the porch and was walking around with it and yelling at people.

An individual was upset after a road rage incident on Thornton St. The man confronted a 75-year-old man, argued and then drove away.

August 4

An individual on main street was reportedly attempting to steal bags of ice from the store. She paid for three, took five and then threw the extra two at the individual who reported her.

August 5

An individual at Northwest Community Bank was seen trying to swipe 20-30 cards at the ATM over course of 20 minutes.

Shots were reportedly fired on Adams Ln. The neighbor noted that they were concerned for fire danger.

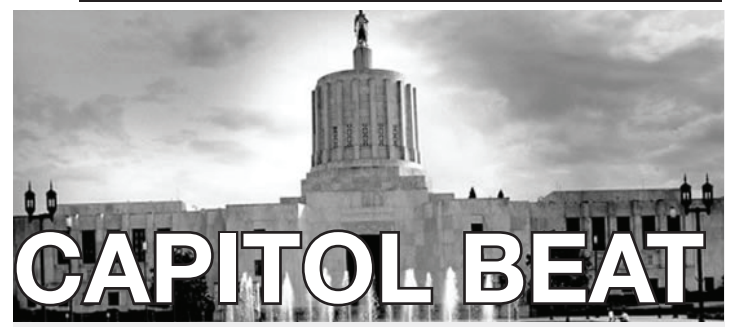

The Sentinel staff combs the police logs and finds odd calls and crimes. Each week, we will choose the one that most stands out and follow-up on the hijinks in the following edition.

This week's weirdest call of the week is:

August 6

A suitcase fell off of a car on 8th St. and the complainant was concerned that it may have drugs in it because she believes that her neighbor deals.

News from the state legislature and around Oregon

Around the state

On the tail of last week's heat wave in the state of Oregon, 17 wildfires now burn within its borders and just outside in Washington. LRAPA has issued dangerous air quality warnings for the most sensitive populations.

Oregon's steelhead are in trouble if sea lions keep their robust diets. Oregon Fish and Wildlife announced in a feasibility study earlier this week that the salmon could face extinction due to the nature of the sea lions' eating habits.

Danielle Outlaw, 41, is making headlines this week at Portland's first African-American woman to be selected as police chief. She was appointed by Portland Mayor Ted Wheeler and will head a 950-officer force. She was selected after a three-month search across the nation.

Oregon Senate Bill 719A is on Governor Kate Brown's desk for her signature. The controversial bill would make it legal for authorities to remove firearms from individuals who display or have proven mental illness or suicidal tendencies.

Around the nation

According to a report prepared by 13 governmental agencies which was obtained by the New York Times, the U.S. is experiencing rapid climate change and scientists that compiled the reports told the legacy newspaper they were concerned the Trump Administration would attempt to suppress the document.

20-year-old Michelle Carter was convicted and sentenced to just over two years in prison for her part in the suicide of her boyfriend. Prosecutors contended that Carter urged her boyfriend, Conrad Roy to get back into the trunk of the car he had climbed into in order to commit suicide when he had second thoughts.
