

Our favorite holiday TV

Ginger- "I still go back to 'A Christmas Story.' I have great nostalgia for it. My grandmother and my aunt and I always watched it together. My grandmother was such a funny woman, and that was the epitome of her humor. It really meant something to our family."

Carol- "It's a Wonderful Life' ... with my favorite movie star, Jimmy (Stewart). It was his favorite movie, and it was also (director) Frank Capra's favorite movie that he did."

Katharine- "It would probably be 'Love Actually.' That's a pretty good one."

Jack-
"Nightmare Before Christmas!!"

Ozzy -
"Bad Santa"

"There's something about the message of 'A Charlie Brown Christmas' that's really beautiful. It's just a special one; I still get emotional about it. Also, National Lampoon's 'Christmas Vacation' ... I can recite every word of that one, and it still cracks me up to this day. And I love 'It's a Wonderful Life,' too; that's really a year-round movie, though it has to do with Christmas."- Maggie

Robert Taylor
"Longmire" Netflix

"Ever hear of a movie called 'Withnail and I'? It's about two young actors in London in the late '60s, and I watch that once a year. It always makes me laugh. There's a whole cult of people who know every word in that movie."- Robert

Tony Denison
"Major Crimes" TNT

"It would have to be 'It's a Wonderful Life.' As I watched that movie and the older I got, I would start crying sooner and sooner and sooner in the movie. Now the last time I watched, I started crying when the pharmacist smacks George Bailey in the ear. And from that point on, I start to cry ... "- Tony
