

Season's Streamings

BY GEORGE DICKIE

"A Christmas Prince"

(Netflix, now streaming):

Filmed in Romania, this Netflix original comedy movie stars Rose McIver ("iZombie," "Once Upon a Time") as an aspiring young New York journalist who is sent to Europe to get the scoop on a handsome prince who is about to be crowned king. Sarah Douglas ("Stargate: SG-1," "Superman II"), Alice Krige ("The OA," "Thor: The Dark World"), Theo Devaney ("Supernatural," "Becoming Sophie") and Honor Kneafsey ("Sherlock," "Miss You Already") are also in the cast.

"Christmas Eve"

(Hulu, now streaming):

Six groups of New Yorkers find themselves trapped in elevators when a power failure strikes on Christmas Eve, forcing them to interact with one another to comedic, romantic and transcendent effect in this comedy movie. Patrick Stewart ("Blunt Talk"), Gary Cole ("Veep"), James Roday ("Psych"), Jon Heder ("Napoleon Dynamite") and Cheryl Hines ("Curb Your Enthusiasm") are among those in the large cast.

"Christmas, Again"

(Sundance now streaming):

This independent romance movie stars Kentucker Audley ("Ain't Them Bodies Saints") as a broken-hearted Christmas tree salesman who returns to his hometown of New York City to put the past behind him. Working the night shift and living in a trailer, his future looks ever dimmer until his rescue of a mysterious woman and the appearance of some colorful customers snap him out of his funk. Hannah Gross ("Mindhunter"), Craig Butta and Martin Courtney head a cast of unknowns.

"Click Clack Moo: Christmas at the Farm"

(Amazon, now streaming):

In this animated children's special, it's Christmas at the farm and the animals are getting together to get Farmer Brown the gift of his dreams – the Tumbletron 300 clothes dryer. It's a race against time for them – and for Duck, who needs to bump up his "nice" numbers to get off Santa's naughty list.

A Festivus for the rest of us

The "Seinfeld" episode "The Strike," which originally aired in 1997, sees Kramer going back to work after a (12-year) long strike from the bagel shop and Elaine accidentally giving out a fake phone number on the back of a free sandwich coupon. But what makes this a real classic holiday episode revolves around George and his father celebrating an alternative holiday called Festivus that they created together many years ago.

Watch on TBS Dec. 22 2:30p; Dec. 23 8p; Dec. 26 12a; Also streaming on Hulu and Crackle

