

Tips to consider when choosing a honeymoon destination

Once couples have tied the knot, hit the reception dance floor and thanked their friends and family for joining them, their thoughts inevitably start looking ahead to their honeymoons.

Statistics vary in regard to how much couples spend on their honeymoons, but those heading overseas can expect to pay thousands of dollars on such getaways. Couples planning their honeymoons want to get the most for their money while also ensuring their first trip together as newlyweds is as memorable as possible. The destination couples choose can go a long way toward making that happen, and people can consider various factors as they work together to choose a locale for their honeymoons.

Activity level

Some couples might want their honeymoons to be filled with activities, while others might prefer more low-key trips spent relaxing at seaside resorts. Couples can discuss which types of trips they prefer and be willing to compromise if their desires differ.

Travel

Some couples want to travel during their honeymoons, while others may want to stay at the same resort for the duration of their trips. Couples who want to travel may find a backpacking trip to Europe is a romantic way to indulge their sense of adventure, while those who prefer something more quiet may find a beach resort more to their liking.

Budget

Budget is a strong consideration for many couples as they plan their honeymoons. Because honeymoons can be expensive, couples who don't want to sacrifice on their first trip together as a married couple can begin planning their trips early, even looking for ways to cut costs on their ceremonies and receptions if their honeymoons are a bigger priority.

When planning their honeymoons, couples also can take steps to save money. For example, delaying a trip until a few months after the wedding can help couples get back on their financial feet and enjoy their dream getaways. Couples visiting resorts also may want to opt for all-inclusive packages, which can provide great value, particularly on food and beverages. — Metro

Rustic bouquets add natural flair

Couples opting to get back to basics, streamline their nuptials and create more intimate and less superficial affairs often gravitate toward rustic celebrations to showcase their ideals. Rustic weddings also may appeal to environmentalists and men and women who want their weddings to be as eco-friendly as possible.

Rustic weddings may include those ceremonies and receptions that take place outdoors or in abodes, such as barns, wineries, castles, or converted silos or town factories. In fact, Bridal Guide says that barn weddings have never been more popular — among both urban and rural couples alike.

Coordinating a rustic wedding may mean letting go of perceived notions of how everything from food to favors to flowers should be. In fact, one way to describe rustic weddings — and especially the floral arrangements that adorn them — is “purposely imperfect.”

Rustic wedding bouquets may seem like they were plucked right out of the garden or grabbed through a stroll in a meadow. They're rarely symmetrical or feature the customary flowers of more formal wedding celebrations.

When designing rustic bouquets, florists may keep the stems of wildflowers or other blooms untethered for a relaxed feel. Long stemmed arrangements are quite popular, and trends point toward bouquets that are loosely tied with raffia, twine, vines and other natural materials rather than more refined ribbon.

Another way rustic bouquets set themselves apart is with the introduction of other elements into the arrangements. Not merely blooms and greenery, rustic pieces may feature twigs, vines, berries, scabiosa pods, ivy, and feathery ferns. The heights of elements in the bouquet are varied, and the bouquets will not have an overly uniform shape. Rustic bouquets are far from pretentious, and brides shouldn't feel that these bouquets are delicate or will fall apart when handled.

When planning a rustic wedding, couples can work with their florists to create bouquets and arrangements that fit with their visions. — Metro

Florence Antiques & Coast Jewelers offers engagement and Valentine's Day jewelry

Located at 1220 Bay St., Suite 100, Coast Jewelers is back in town to continue a decades-long tradition of offering fine engagement, wedding and Valentine's Day jewelry. We proudly specialize in pre-owned and vintage estate jewelry (and higher end antiques) offered at very reasonable prices.

Shop around town or even in Eugene or Coos Bay and you are sure to find that perfect piece of jewelry right here in Florence. Remember to Shop Local.

Whether you are furnishing your home or looking for a wonderful, one-of-a-kind ring, necklace, brooch or bracelet in white or yellow gold or sterling silver we might just have exactly what you are looking for.

During the month of February, all of our wedding and engagement rings for brides and grooms, or the upgrading of original wedding sets for that special anniversary, will be 20 percent off.

As Liz Breon used to say, “You are unique and one of a kind, so your jewelry should be too!” Who you are, your life style and your dreams for the future all affect your choice of fine jewelry.

Please come in anytime Wednesday through Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. (or by appointment) and enjoy our new location on Bay Street and the always pleasant experience of shopping in our store, voted “Florence's Best” for the last two years.

We hope that we offer a touch of class to you and our wonderful city of Florence.

