

BIKING from B1

Four years ago, Strahan bought his own paint and started going along the trail and painting bumps and deformities in the trail to make sure riders could remain safe on their bikes.

The trail is his canvas and his yellow paint his masterpiece. It even got to the point that when a woman who was visiting from the East Coast stopped along the trail to talk about how much she enjoyed it, she called him "Yellow Picasso."

In a continued effort for the well-being of the trail, Strahan also volunteers with the city to bring toilet paper to the various bathrooms along the route.

He does it all. With my own personal tour guide leading the way, we took a Sunday to travel down the trail. The beauty of the Row River Trail cannot be understated.

A sunny day along a trail that winds its way through trees and next to Dorena Reservoir makes you feel like you are living in your very own "Visit Cottage Grove" advertisement.

From the start of the trail on 10th and Main to the end at Culp Creek is just over 16 miles that stays flat. For bikers of all abilities, it would be easy to carve out as many or few miles that you would want to ride.

On the return trip, we elected to stray off the trail to go past the Dorena Covered Bridge before taking the rolling hills along Shoreview Drive that gave us the view from the other side of the reservoir before we hopped back on the Row River Trail to complete our 34-mile trip.

It was exciting, it was thrilling, it was a great time to ride a bike.

Young me would be so proud.

CGS from B1

and took care of business the rest of the way to earn his first CGS win of 2018. Luckman was second with Albany veteran Craig Hanson getting third. Bryan Norton, now residing in Salem, finished the night fourth and behind him, in fifth, was Lebanon's Josh Sim.

Lastly in the Quality RV Repair Hornets it was Josh Corley out if front most of the way. After seizing the lead on lap eight from Jasper's Gene Ashley the Oakridge gasser, of Corley, Corley had no issues and went on to win for the fifth occasion this season at the Grove.

Graig Osborne, from Creswell, was the runner-up and Eric Ashley, also from Jasper, was third. Gene Ashley finished fourth, followed by Brad Moffatt, of Eugene in fifth.

Cottage Grove Speedway held more racing last Saturday, July 7, during the Herz Precision Parts Wingless Nationals. The night featured the Wingless Sprint Series, Mohawk Metal IMCA Modifieds, IMCA Sport Mods, and Quality RV Repair Hornets.
