The Spartans, who have historically been successful in the Sky-Em, went 5-5 last season and were ranked 13th at the 5A level. The Spartans return Jacob Husk who was named honorable mention at linebacker last season. While they are rejoining the league, Graves and Giffen have some level of familiarity with the team after playing on a seven-on-seven team with a number of Spartans during the offseason.

and it was fun because they're really good players and they made some tremendous plays. We're in a group chat with them...so we fire shots at each other back and forth but it's like no hard feelings. But we definitely know it's going to be a great game," said Graves.

The Spartans and Lions will face each in the regular season on September 28. The two teams are also scheduled to face each other in Friday's jamboree game at CGHS.

OSAA to launch OSAAtoday

WILSONVILLE (August 14, 2018) – The Oregon School Activities Association is excited to announce that it will provide original Oregon high school activity news content on its website (www.osaa.org/today) beginning with the 2018-19 school year.

The content, to appear under the banner OSAAtoday, will include news, event coverage, features, polls and more. Historical pieces commemorating the OSAA's 100-year Centennial will be among the recurring features. OSAAtoday's aim will be the production of high-quality and insightful content covering the entire state, every classification and every activity.

The content will be produced through a partnership with Jerry Ulmer, longtime prep writer at The Oregonian, and John Tawa, founder of PrepVolleyball.com and former managing editor at Student Sports Magazine. In addition to the content produced by OSAAtoday, they will also work with the Association's member schools to develop a network of student contributors whose work could be highlighted on the OSAA website.

OSAAtoday will be an additional platform in Oregon to promote the tremendous benefits of interscholastic activities.

The OSAA hopes that OSAAtoday will quickly become an invaluable resource for all involved in the state's passionate high school activities community.

"The OSAA is extremely excited to partner with these two exceptional writers that have such extensive experience in the Oregon prep space," said Peter Weber, OSAA Executive Director. "We are also thrilled to be able to provide an educational component to this initiative with our student contributors. We feel this will be a great resource to get journalism and yearbook classes involved in their local communities."
