

VOLLEYBALL from B1

Cottage Grove's Cassidy Herbert sends a spike over the outstretched arms of a pair of Marist blockers last Thursday.

"She played really well. She's just been really working hard and I think last year she really came along quickly. And so I think she's starting to get that groove again and reading the hitters. There's a lot of quick sets back and forth and she's having to make good, smart decisions but she's going up strong and she's just a naturally good blocker," said Anderson.

In full control, the Lions were able to cruise in the fourth set to finish and on to a victory. This game marked the halfway point in league-play for the Lions who are focused on cleaning up the little things for the rest of league and beyond.

"It's just upping a little bit the fine tuning. The fine tuning the blocks, fine tuning when they have a big hitter that we need to stack on them," said Anderson. "And I think the feedback from the girls there, that involvement is really important. Because they know the game really well. They know the game and they know each other now and so I think that part as they're working together as coaches and team will continue to get better.

"That's the thing, we've got to keep getting better."
