

MEASURES from A1

said yes to Measure 102 Tuesday night.

Currently, the Oregon Constitution bars local government from loaning credit or raising money for private businesses.

Measure 102 would add an exception to the rule for housing developers, allowing private entities a tool to help pay for affordable housing projects.

Affordable housing has been described as a "crisis" statewide. According to data released by Oregon Housing and Community Services, the state has a deficit of almost 90,000 housing units for residents who earn less than 50 percent of the state's median income currently estimated at just over $60,000 a year.

The measure passed statewide with 56.02 percent of the vote and 56.71 percent in Lane County.

The measure was aimed at reducing the housing deficit. Potential bonds would still be subject to a public vote with municipalities having to pose the question

• STAR Voting: Would have changed the way county residents vote by adopting a "score then runoff" election method: FAILED (52.71% to 47.29%) to the electorate before instituting the bond.

Measure 103 (Failed): The state's constitution will not be changed to prohibit the taxation of groceries after voters rejected the measure 65.28 percent to 34.72 percent.

Proponents of the measure noted that it would keep groceries tax free unless the constitution was altered again. Opponents noted that the bill included soda, meaning future efforts to impose a "sin" tax would be hampered. Public unions around the state donated heavily in opposition of the measure.

Measure 104 (Failed): 65.30 percent of Oregon voters rejected the measure that would have amended the state constitution expanding the application of requirement that a three-fifths legislative majority would be required to approve bills that raised revenue for the state. The measure, essentially, would have made it more difficult to raise taxes.

Measure 105 (Failed): A 31-year-old law prohibiting state resources from being utilized to apprehend individuals who have committed no other crime other than entering the country illegally, will stand after voters rejected Measure 105. It was defeated 62.66 percent to 37.34 percent statewide and voters in Lane County voted 68 percent in favor of retaining the state's sanctuary status.

The measure was set to repeal Oregon's sanctuary state status proponents like Stop Oregon Sanctuaries arguing that enforcement of the country's immigration laws were part of the duties prescribed to local law enforcement.

Oregon was the first state in the nation to adopt a sanctuary law in 1987 after four men of Hispanic descent were approached at a restaurant in Independence 10 years prior.

The men were interrogated about their immigration and one man was grabbed by a deputy and forced to stand in the middle of the restaurant. The officers did not identify themselves. One of the men, Delmiro Trevino, filed a class action lawsuit. The lawyer who represented Trevino, later served in the state legislature and helped pass the sanctuary state law.

Measure 106 (Failed): Tax funds will not be prohibited in paying for abortion services after 64.45 percent of voters opted to allow the practice to continue. Measure 106 would have prevented public employees from receiving coverage for abortions as part of their medical insurance and stopped public funds being used to pay for abortions of low-income women except in specific instances.

LIBRARY from A1

and that, finally, the building they were gathered around had been funded in part by a 1983, $260,000 gift from Mildred Whipple — her grandmother.

Campbell and dozens of volunteers, including former Drain librarian Valarie Johns, clocked more than 1,000 hours in the last six weeks cleaning and barcoding books ahead of Saturday's opening which was navigated, in part, by newly paid staff members, including a temporary librarian.

"When the county closed the library, our community was devastated," Campbell said. However, in campaigning ahead of the May vote, the group saw a community that missed its meeting place and was willing to pay to have it return. The library is scheduled to be open 24 hours a week and all children in city limits and outside — as long as they are students in the school district — will receive a library card. Johns noted that most of the collection was ready to be checked-out on Saturday with the exception of DVDs and that the shelves now housed newly published books as well as books from the existing collection.

The Mildred Whipple Library was scheduled to open after the new year with several items on the to-do list including replacing the public computers repossessed by the county after the system closed.

However, after receiving a $25,000 donation from the Whipple Foundation Fund, the library was able to open two months ahead of schedule.

"It's great," said Johns, who received special recognition from the library group on Saturday as one of the leaders of the grassroots effort that saw the measure land on the 2018 ballot. "It's such an exciting day."
