grab a good bird guide and optics, and go test your bird ID skills.

- Most years, herring come to spawn in Coos Bay in the early spring. These swarms of fish attract a variety of birds that congregate to feed on the herring and their eggs. See the SW viewing report for some viewing tips.

- Spring bird migration is well-underway at the Klamath Wildlife Area – sandhill cranes and Say’s phoebe are now common sights, and the first western King bird of the year has been spotted.

- At Summer Lake Wildlife Area, early migrating pintail and American wigeon ducks are gathering in the thousands, migrating swans number 2,000-3,000 (with more on the way) and the first Belding’s ground squirrels have emerged (look for yellow-bellied marmots to peek out soon).

- Sandhill cranes will be arriving at Ladd Marsh Wildlife Area any time now. Until then bald eagles are visiting the area and large flocks of American robins are searching out any remaining fruit from last fall.

Aqua Lions wrap up season at state

CGHS junior MJ Raade was the lone Lion to qualify for a finals event (the 500-yard freestyle) at last weekend’s OSAA State Championships, finishing sixth. Also qualifying for the state tournament in individual races were sophomore James Kelly (500 freestyle, 200 I.M.), junior Jairus Vanberg (200 freestyle) and senior Iverson Bascue (100 backstroke). The Lions also qualified three girls’ and one boys’ relay teams that included the aforementioned swimmers as well as freshmen Kassidy Poetzl and Kalee Walter, sophomores Peyton Baird and Kajsa Merz and seniors Mikayla Baird and Emma Burleson on the girls’ side. Junior Fisher Nash joined his three above teammates for the 200 medley relay on the boys’ side.
