ly reduced and packing out what you pack in is a huge help to park rangers.

- With the weather heating up, campfire restrictions may be in effect in some state parks. Check campground and trailhead notice boards for posted fire restrictions, or call ahead to double check. Fireworks are never allowed in state parks or on the ocean shore.

Reduced services

We have far fewer staff than we normally do for the busy summer season. Park rangers will be focused on essential duties to keep you safe, so other typical services may fall by the wayside. Events and programs will be canceled, ice or firewood sales may be suspended, and grounds maintenance and trash pickup will be less frequent. Service availability may change quickly.

Many facilities will be closed or have sharply reduced hours. Shower/restroom facilities, ranger booths, welcome centers, and other places will be affected. Go to the webpage for the park you plan to visit before you leave to learn what's open and what's closed. When you arrive at the park, scope out the open facilities.

Don't forget: normal park rules still apply. Visit the state parks recreation FAQ for a refresher.

es, the facility would offer a full range of swimming activities from lap swim to recreational, swim lessons, club activities and warm water therapy classes. Due to social distancing guidelines outlined by the governor's office, the pool will be limited to lap swim and exercise in the warm water therapy pool and hours will be shortened to the morning only. These changes are in line with how other pools in the county have approached their own reopenings.

"We're only going to be open until 1 p.m. for the first week or so as we get started," McCasline said. "Regulations from the governor for swimming pools say we're only allowed to have one person per lane and we can have, based on square footage of the warm water pool, about 15 people in there, but they kind of have to stay in their area and not be swimming around too much."

While this does put restrictions on how many visitors can use the facility on a day-to-day basis, it's a vast improvement from no services at all and pool staff are placing worker and patron health and safety above all else.

In addition to typical staffing — front desk and life guard duties — the Daugherty Center, per state instructions, will also have an additional person on hand to act as a social distance monitor, reminding visitors to maintain safe spacing between other patrons when necessary.

Staff will be required to wear masks while working and the pool is asking patrons to wear one as well.

The pool is hoping that improvement in the COVID-19 situation and facility safety protocols will help them get back to scenes like this sooner rather than later.

Locker rooms, which will be open for use, will be regularly sanitized and visitors are asked to exit the facility through one of two side doors so as to limit foot traffic in the lobby.

If all goes according to plan after July 2, then Cottage Grove residents and pool users from around the area can look forward to further reopening of services.

"We plan on expanding our hours, back into evening hours, after we give our staff a little bit of time to adjust to the new protocols," McCasline said. "Once we can safely open swim lessons and family swim, we'll do so. But, we have to follow the guidance from the state and the Oregon Health Authority which tends to change frequently."

Perhaps the biggest challenge of getting back to business will be making
