KNND FM TRANSLATOR AWAITING FCC LICENSE

KNND's new FM translator will soon be on-the-air! Between having to relocate the KNND studio a year-and-a-half ago, followed by many months of COVID disruption, the engineering, relocation of equipment, and a new antenna installation have all been completed. Testing has shown the construction is ready for FCC approval. That approval is expected by about the time you are reading this.

"Cameron is only waiting for the FCC to approve the installation and convert the construction permit to a permanent translator license," reports Lloyd Williams, President of South Lane Television, referring to KNND owner and manager Cameron Reiten. Williams continues, saying, "KNND will be rebroadcast on our main Hansen Butte translator system on FM Channel 99.7." Engineering studies show the signal to be outstanding considering our topography.

Like television channels, FM is "line of site" transmission, whereas AM (Amplitude Modulation) rolls over most obstacles in its path, something FM can't do. "For this reason, listeners may find that as they travel the area in their car, they may wish to leave the car radio on AM, where reception allows, but remembering the FM signal has better fidelity", Williams explains. "If you find a weak signal in a Cottage Grove home, the FM signal may need boost from an inexpensive dipole antenna. For more challenged reception issues, an outdoor FM antenna may work better."

KNND will also continue to be rebroadcast on SLTV's TV Channel 47.4.

Stay tuned!
