Walmart Wellness Day focuses on immunizations

Oregonians can visit local participating Walmart pharmacies on Sept. 25 to access a variety of free and affordable immunizations, from the COVID-19 vaccine to the flu shot and more.

As the country continues to make health and safety a top priority in the midst of the COVID-19 pandemic and with the anticipation of a busy flu season, Walmart is focused on providing accessible and affordable immunizations and vaccines for customers. Walmart's quarterly Wellness Day on Saturday, Sept. 25 will turn into a special immunization event in more than 4,700 pharmacies across the country.

Customers can walk in to receive a variety of immunizations from COVID-19 to flu.

The company's goal is to make access easy and convenient. Insurance is not required to receive a COVID-19 vaccination, which is available at no cost, and other vaccines are covered under most major insurance plans.

During this one-day event, families can get all the below in one location:

Flu shots and no-cost COVID-19 vaccines

Affordable immunizations, including measles, mumps, rubella (MMR), varicella (chicken pox), HPV, tetanus, whooping cough (TDAP) and more at pharmacies nationwide.

Wellness resources such as an opportunity to talk with pharmacists

Those interested can find a free event near them at Walmart.com/wellnesshub.

RV Park, which provides an affordable housing option for its residents.

Still, the fate of the rest of the facility has yet to be decided.

"The Village Green Hotel main building, including the restaurant, may be retained if a new business owner is found that can economically operate a smaller scale hotel in a sustained manner," states the release. "It is also possible that this portion of the site will be redeveloped for a new multi-story hotel with modern amenities."

A number of issues with the property have impacted the new owners' decision to renovate.

There are buildings formerly used by the hotel on its northern side, for instance, that are in deteriorating or substandard conditions. One building has been stripped down to just skeletal remains while another has been hidden behind so much garden and bush debris that the hotel rooms are inaccessible.

The release also lists some key problems, namely: that the hotel is not operating in a sustainable manner due to a substantial decline in the hotel and tourist industry; increased hotel competition in the region; insufficient modern amenities; several substandard or blighted buildings; and maintenance of the 6.5-acre garden, seasonal pool and hot tub is too high of an operational cost to be financially viable.

To complete this project, the new owners will likely have to go through an approval process, including applying for permits. This process will go to through Planning Commission and possibly the Cottage Grove City Council for approval, where there will public hearings.

"So, there's a public process to come depending on what they plan to do," said Public Works and Development Director Stewart. "It sounds like they're going to make some changes, so that will likely be required."
