Bohemia Nugget agrees with the West when that esteemed paper in its remarks with reference to railroads gaining right of way through property, say that "The right of way for a railroad through a ranch means not only the giving up of the land, but often endless inconvenience to the owner, and this should be taken into consideration in fixing the value of property, as well as the benefits to be derived from the mills and railroads. The Nugget is not in favor of giving the railroad anything, and as a rule the railroad is willing to pay a fair price, but not willing to pay a price for right of way that cannot be realized upon the property perhaps in ten years after the railroad is built. The building of a railroad always stimulates the price of farm property. It makes the county; and in the case of the proposed Booth-Kelly Company Mohawk railroad, it will clean up the brush and timber land and make the property valuable. When you consider the right of way without prejudice, it is fair to presume that the increase in the value of the property through which right of way is given, and the general improvement in a commercial sense of the community, will more than off-set the inconvenience occasioned by the granting of a right of way. Land is not so valuable in Lane county that the most of us cannot give a few of the broad acres, that a railroad may be built, which in the end will increase the value of our land possessions 100 per cent. The salvation of Florence lies in the possibility that she may in time be connected with the Willamette valley by railroad, thus tapping the valley and per chance, Eastern Oregon, making the Siuslaw river the commercial exit and entrance for a large acreage of Oregon. To do this first, upon application by a syndicate, a right of way must be granted, and no corporation is going to give excessive prices for right of way through a county, through which they cannot figure upon running expenses for at least a number of years, after the completion of the road.

Professor T. M. Martin one of the oldest and best known teachers of this county, died at his home south of Florence last week. For a number of years Mr. Martin had led a somewhat retired life at his country home, but for all of that he was not forgotten by hundreds who had through his many years of educational work come in contact with him, and his many friends for many miles flocked to his funeral to mourn the loss of a noble, generous companion. Professor Martin while a man of rare education, was a man who bent toward, and gathered to him, the common people. He walked in the humbler walks of life, not that his ability was not such as would have secured him attention and prominence in higher walks, but that he was an admirer of nature, of sympathy, of truthfulness. He was ever a true friend to the struggling student who longed for learning, and few are those who were under him in the school room who have not retained an affectionate thought for him.

SPECIAL MEETING.

The Council Does Some Good Work in Special Meeting Assembled.

Last Monday evening the city council met in special session and transacted business of general interest as follows: Bicycles were prohibited running upon the walks between the depot and west corner of De Wall's residence on Main and Wall streets, also from Bohemia Nugget office to A. F. Johnson's property on Main and River streets.

A standing order excluding bicycles from north side of Wall street during the months of June, July and August was issued.

An ordinance passed second reading establishing the grade and grading from the depot to Fourth street and Fourth to Kansas.

The recorder was authorized to draft ordinance for the grading of Main and Wall streets and for academizing the same with crushed rock.

The ordinance regulating the date of regular meetings of the city council was amended establishing the first Monday instead of the second Tuesday of each month as the regular meeting night.

"Cattle and sheep on the hoof are bringing higher prices now, says the Baker City Republican, with very few fat stock to ship. Mr. William Pollman said recently, "Cattle are high now, steers bringing $4 to $4.50 and cows $3.50 to $4. All the fat stock have been shipped and only a few head are being fed for the home market. Sheep are high and no fat stock are left for shipment. Shipments are now being made from The Dalles and that territory. A large train load of sheep from there went through Baker City recently for the Chicago market."

Chas. H. Chapman, ex-president of the University of Oregon has departed for pastures new, leaving Eugene with few if any friends to bid him good-bye, good-luck and well wishes. Mr. Chapman was a man spoiled by education. He had the education 'tis true, but conceit, arrogance and, it is alleged, deceit had him. Here the bubble burst, and he can now start over again.

Bicyclists should use a little more care in crossing the bridge in this city. Many of them speed through at a break-neck pace, and some day they will collide with a foot passenger and one or both will receive serious damage; and in such cases the unfortunate thing about it is that the reckless wheelman always gets the least hurt.

A report reached the Nugget office at press hour last night that the residence of Mr. Davis at Loran had been burned. It was a nice home and the loss is a heavy one.

A maiden, fair, with sun-kissed hair came tripping down the street: with face serene—her age sixteen—gee whiz! but she was sweet! On a banana peel sleek she came down with a jolt that shook her curls; but the words that she used must be excused, for she's one of our nicest girls. The naughty young chap who saw the mishap and smiled with fiendish delight, will regret the same when he finds his game is "Pants" next Saturday night.—Ex.

These are the days wherein the chittum bark peeler preambulateth himself into the fastness of Oregon climate, pulleth off his coat and proceedeth to yank off great strips of little early risers, and selleth the same to the compounder of vile stuff, who laugheth with great delight when he compoundeth a concoction that causeth a man to crave quinine to take the taste out of his mouth—or words to that effect.

THE RAIN DOPS.

Did you ever consider the effect of the rain drops on Mother Earth and her vegetation? As they descend from the clouds they are charged with the gasses of the air. Thus they carry life's own energy to the soil and all vegetation. Radams' Microbe Killer, a combination of disinfecting gasses and water, has the same effect upon the human body, that the rain drops have upon the soil and vegetation. Call of send for pamphlet.
