

Active Bohemia.

[From the Oregonian.]

The Grizzly group of five claims on the northwest slope of the mountain bearing that name, is a gold and copper property owned by Johnson, Klopfenstein and Byrnes Bros., who have been working on the property since October, 1898. They started on a raw prospect, have cut the ledge in many places, showing it to be strong and continuous for over 1500 feet. The ore gives an average assay the entire length of $40 per ton.

The Helena mine, located on the east slope of Grizzly mountain, is maintaining its reputation as development work continues. There are over 800 feet of tunnels and drifts on this property showing ore all through the mine, with over $10,000 worth of ore on one of the dumps without a wheelbarrow load of waste rock. There is over $50,000 worth of ore in sight. Free gold can be seen quite easily with the naked eye.

The Mayflower Mining Company owns a group of five claims on horse Heaven creek, which have been undergoing development work for over a year. Some large bodies of ore have been struck, running from $9 to $100 per ton.

Among the well-known properties of the camp is the Riverside group, consisting of seven claims owned by the Riverside Mining Company, recently incorporated. This group indicates two parallel ledges traversing the length of the claims, each ledge including three claims. Both ledges show conspicuously on the surface for the full length of the claims, and assay across the entire surface of the ledge 40 feet in width gave an average of $8 gold to the ton. Other assays were obtained of $75 and $100 gold to the ton. Loose surface quartz gave as high as $1300 gold to the ton. An immense boulder from the ledge found in the creek at the foot of the claim carries $35 gold and silver to the ton. These ledges have been prospected by 250 feet of tunnels, cross-cuts and open cuts, which prove them to be well defined, with decided walls and permanently in place, with proper dip and course. This company has on the Riverside claim a splendid water power having a fall of about 25 feet.

The Calapooia-Bohemia Gold Mining & Milling Company owns five quartz mining claims located near the junction of Windy and Horse Heaven creeks. They include two strong, prominent ledges of the camp, running parallel with each other about 600 feet apart, showing well-defined ledges, one averaging about three feet of pay ore, the other from 8 to 15 feet.

Adjoining the Calapooia group on the south lies the Confidence group, which one year ago was a raw prospect. Last fall and winter a drift 350 feet long was run on the ledge, on ore all the way, some places from three to five feet wide being nearly solid metal, as if the fissure had been filled with a molten charge from a smelter furnace. The ore ran high in gold, copper, lead and silver, some tests showing 33 per cent copper.

About one mile west of the Confidence group and joining the Musick, we come to the Wall Street group of six claims, which include five of the main fissure vein of the district. Development work has been continued on this property for over a year. Twenty places have been opened up on the surface showing paying ore, mostly free-milling. A cross-cut tunnel, which will afford drainage and deep workings for all the ledges, is now in 126 feet, having but 60 feet more to run before reaching the main ore body, which proved very rich on the surface and produced many specimens of quartz sprinkled with free gold. From the same property can be seen galena ore which came from within three feet of the surface. It assays $70 per ton, and carries 52 per cent lead. A 12-foot shaft on the property shows five feet wide of fine, honeycombed free ore. Another cut shows 10 feet of ore, with neither wall in sight. This group includes about 2900 feet of the east extension of the Vesuvius ledge.

The White Swan group of four claims on the southwest slope of Bohemia mountain is owned by the White Swan Gold Mining Company, recently incorporated. Although a new property, several hundred feet of ledge is uncovered up a steep mountain side, showing a wide vein all the way. One place faced up shows eight feet wide of solid ore.

The Champion mine owned by the Hartford Mining Company, of Chicago, has over 1000 feet of tunnel on the lower level, a raise of 200 feet to the surface and about 100 feet of drift on the upper level. There is a 10 stamp mill on the property. The mine has proved to be a rich one. The owners have a body of ore to work on this summer which is 4 feet wide and 100 feet long. It has been tapped at a depth of 200 feet, the ore assaying $40 gold to the ton.

The Noonday Mining Company, of Chicago, is preparing to start up its 20-stamp mill some time during July, as soon as the tram is in shape to work. This property is developed by over 4000 feet of tunnels and drifts. A great many very rich ore bodies have been blocked out, and it is the intention of the company to keep the mill running steadily the year around. No one knows just how much gold has been taken out of this mine, but, while it was being operated as the Annia mine, thousands of dollars were taken off the plates: It is predicted that this property will soon be a $1,000,000 proposition.

The Lizzie Bullock mine, joining the Sweepstake on the south, on a parallel ledge, at the bottom of a 25-foot shaft shows six feet of free milling ore. In another place a drift was run 35 feet showing eight feet of clean ore. A 50-ton mill test gave a return of $17 per ton free gold.

SHERIFF'S SALE ON FORECLOSURE.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of an execution duly issued out of the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, for the County of Lane, on the 14th day of July, 1899, on a judgment rendered in said Court on the 31st day of October, 1898, for the sum of Five Hundred and Sixty-four and 60/100 dollars, with interest thereon from said 31st day of October, 1898, at the rate of 8 per cent per annum, and $40 attorney's fees, and the further sum of $10 costs, also accruing costs, in a suit wherein W. S. Christman was plaintiff, and Louise Leonard was defendant, and on a decree of foreclosure and order of sale rendered in said court, commanding me, in order to satisfy said judgment and costs, to sell the following described real property, to-wit:

Lot one, two, three, four, five, six, seven and eight, in block No. 1, in Hazleton's Second Addition to Cottage Grove, Oregon, situated in Lane county, Oregon.

Now, therefore, in the name of the state of Oregon, in compliance with said writ, I will offer for sale the above described premises at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, subject to redemption, at the south door of the court house in Eugene, Lane county, Oregon, on Saturday the 26th day of August 1899, between the hours of 9 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m., to-wit, at 1 o'clock p. m., on said day.

Dated this 15th day of July, 1899.

W. W. WYTHES,
Sheriff of Lane County, Oregon.
By H. J. DAY, Deputy.

THE FIRST GRAVE.

[The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. L. Sweaney formerly of this place will regret to learn of the death of their little 3-year-old daughter, Blanchie, since their arrival at Emo, Ontario, Canada. The following touching article is explanatory:]

Of all the improvements we have made in the Rainy River Christian Colony the last one was the saddest, and only done when we were forced to it. On the 25th of March a committee of the colonists met to locate a cemetery. The ground kindly donated by Mr. Adam Donaldson was chosen, and it is a beautiful, level piece with a gentle slope in three directions affording natural drainage.

A more precious subject could not have been found to make the place sacred to us all. The first grave was made for Blanchie, the sweet little 3-year-old daughter of John L. and Grace Sweaney. She was taken with brain fever on Sunday, March 19th, and after untold suffering her spirit took its flight to where there is no suffering. On Sunday, March 26th, a large company of settlers came in from every direction to the residence and gave their sympathy and listened to a very able and touching discourse by T. L. Read. Then in sleds and on foot the company sadly wended their way to the new site for the "City of the Dead" and her little body, closeted in shroud and coffin prepared by Mr. Chas. Hughes who kindly acted the part of undertaker, was lowered into the grave.

Blanchie is sadly missed by us all, for she was everybody's pet. One more treasure laid up in heaven and one more charm to lure us on to the better land.

O list to Blanchie, mamma dear,
And do not shed another tear,
I'm here among the angels bright
And all the children robed in [white]

O papa, we shall meet again,
And free from toil and pain
You'll see the glory of the angel
[band,]
And ah! its music is so grand.

O grandpa, you are growing old;
Up here the streets are paved [with gold;]
Life's tree will heal your aches [and pain]
And you will never need your [cane.]

A stream is flowing pure and sweet
Beneath our loving Savior's [feet,]
And stately mansions always [bright,]
Because the Savior is their light.

And oh, how I shall miss Jerome
If he forgets to come up home,
And the children here would like [to see]
For he was always kind to me.
Up here there are so many joys,
I hope that all the boys
Will make their calling and [adoption sure;]
In heaven everything is pure.

"Of such is the kingdom-of heaven" says the Master, and if we become as pure and innocent as a little child we may enter in and enjoy their sweet presence forever.
