

GEN. JOE WHEELER PRAISES PERUNA, The Great Catarrh Cure.

JOE WHEELER'S CHARGE AT SAN JUAN HILL.

Major-General Joseph Wheeler, commanding the cavalry forces in front of Santiago and the author of "The Santiago Campaign," in speaking of the great catarrh remedy, Per-na, says: "I join with Senators Sullivan, Roach and McEnery in their good opinion of Per-na. It is recommended to me by those who have used it as an excellent tonic and particularly effective as a cure for catarrh."

United States Senator McEnery.
Hon. S. D. McEnery, United States Senator from Louisiana, says the following in regard to Per-na:
"Per-na is an excellent tonic. I have used it sufficiently to say that I believe it to be all that you claim for it."
—S. D. McEnery, New Orleans, Louisiana.

The microbes that cause chills and fever and malaria enter the system through mucous membranes made porous by catarrh. Per-na heals the mucous membranes and prevents the entrance of malarial germs, thus preventing and curing these affections.

United States Senator Sullivan.
"I desire to say that I have been taking Per-na for some time for catarrh, and have found it an excellent medicine, giving me more relief than anything I have ever taken."
—W. V. Sullivan, Oxford, Miss.

United States Senator Roach.
"Persuaded by a friend, I have used Per-na as a tonic, and am glad to testify that it has greatly helped me in strength and vigor and appetite. I have been advised by friends that it is remarkably efficacious as a cure for the almost universal complaint of catarrh."
—W. N. Roach, Larimore, North Dakota.

AN ODD SNAKE TRAP.

Next Tin and Its Own Temper Impersonate a Cobra.

Dr. Arthur Stradling, the celebrated snake expert who in his own person demonstrated hundreds of times the truth of the theory of immunity by inoculation in the case of snake-bites, bits of an odd kind of snake-trap that caught its victim securely. It was a biscuit tin, and in the bottom of it were some macaroons.

A cobra spied the tin, but a mouse was ahead of the cobra. The little thief was having a good time, regaling himself on macaroons, all unconscious that a snake was preparing to regale itself on mouse.

Into the tin went the head of the snake, but the head that went in was destined to come out less easily. The rough edges of the tin irritated the cobra, and involuntarily it dilated its hood. That made it a prisoner. With the hood dilated the head could not be withdrawn, and the cobra remained in its tin prison until morning, when it was easily captured and killed.

Dr. Stradling, who knows the natives of India as well as he knows the snakes of that land, tells of an interesting theory held by these people. They are firmly convinced that for every human being a snake bites it loses one joint. When the number of deaths the snake has caused equals the number of its joints, the venomous head alone remains. The snake has now reached the height of its wicked desires, and at this point it develops wings and triumphantly disappears.

An exception to this rule is found on the other side of the world, in the case of the rattlesnake, for the natives of some parts of America are said to believe that this snake gains a thimble for every man it kills. By counting these they can calculate with precision how many people a particular rattlesnake has bitten.

GET TIPS FROM CROOKS.

Bank Officials Take Means to Protect Their Treasure from Thieves.

It is said by a police official at City Hall headquarters that some of the city banks, whose hoard of surplus cash has been increasing largely of late, have been experimenting with an expedient long in use by Bank of England officials of paying known crooks for information of any contemplated raid upon their vaults. The Bank of England's first experiment of this kind dates from 1850, when the directors of the bank listened to a startling proposition made by a "ditch digger."

The laborer told the directors that he had discovered a new and unsuspected method of getting into the cellar vaults, where the gold and silver bars were kept, and that he would sell his secret to them for money. The directors hesitated, believing that they had taken every precaution against loss from the vaults in putting up heavy masonry, with plenty of iron bars, and by manning the building with armed watchmen. But finally they granted the man, who seemed to talk fairly, a chance to try his plan, and a night was named for the undertaking.

At the appointed time a committee of the directors descended to the cellar and heard a peculiar scratching sound under their feet. Two hours later the floor opened and the ditch digger bobbed up serenely, like the evil spirits in the spectacular drama. All around them lay bars of precious metal, totaling in value £3,000,000. The man explained satisfactorily how it was done, and as a reward the directors assured him an income for life on an investment of $10,000. The crook was content, and it is believed he remained honest ever afterward.

But other cracksmen were tempted by his luck to try the same game, and the directors were inundated with suggestions and tips on new methods of burglary and how to prevent them. Among other things, they paid $20,000 for a process, invented by a young chemist, for copying the ink, paper, watermarks and designs of the bank notes so perfectly as to defy detection. The directors found they could use his system more satisfactorily and more profitably than their own in the production of their currency.

Despite the fact that these expenditures have run up into big figures in the last half century, the directors of to-day say that all the money was well invested.—Chicago Chronicle.

HOME FOR INEBRIATE WOMEN.

Lady Somerset Makes New Departure at Duxhurst Retreat.

In her home for inebriate women at Duxhurst, Belgate, England, Lady Henry Somerset has put into operation several new plans which are expected to assist in the cure of those whom she calls her "patients." In the summer-time a number of occupations have been provided which will keep the patients employed out of doors. The farm has eleven hives of bees, and this year over 300 pounds of honey was gathered and sold, all the work being done by women. In the farm hothouses, which are 300 feet long, a good crop of tomatoes has been raised and disposed of. In the winter time the patients are kept busy at weaving fancy aprons and at knitting machines, on which underclothing is made to order. All kinds of plain and fancy needlework are also done by patients.

Extravagant Dress in England.

Members of the nobility in England make a great deal of pocket money by writing for the papers and magazines. One of these writers is Lady Violet Greville, and, according to her, the American women are responsible for the extravagance of English women today. Ten or fifteen years ago, she says, the American women, "fragile, beautiful creatures," appeared in England, wearing Paris gowns and beautifully coiffured, and society succumbed to them. That was the end of dinner dresses that lasted for years and tulle-trousseau gowns that were worn for a lifetime. Then was the beginning of frown and discontent, and debt on the part of the Englishman, but the English woman was patriotic—that's the way Lady Violet puts it—and was not to be outdone by the Yankee millionaires, and she took to good gowns.

Piso's Cure for Consumption has been a God-send to me.—Wm. R. McClellan, Chester, Florida, Sept. 17, 1895.

Cleveland high school teachers earn $800 a year.

The first Australian newspaper, the Sydney Gazette, was published March 5, 1803, 15 years after the rise of the colony. The delay was caused through there being no printers among the convicts, who represented every profession, including the legal. The plant was brought out in the first fleet, but it could not be used until the authorities caught a compositor.

When Pain Racks the Body

Frank Long, who lives near Lennon, Mich., says: "I was taken with a pain in my back, and I was obliged to take to my bed. The physician pronounced my case muscular rheumatism accompanied by lumbago."

"I gradually became worse, until I thought death would be welcome release. I was finally induced to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and after using five boxes, was entirely cured."

"I am confident that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved my life. I will gladly answer inquiries concerning my sickness and wonderful cure, provided stamp be enclosed for reply."

To Do Away With Ear Trumpets.

A telephone has been invented for deaf people which is intended to do away with the necessity of carrying large and clumsy ear trumpets which are now in common use. The new device consists of a small transmitter which is fastened to the coat, while the receiver can be carried in the pocket except when wanted. It is then to be placed to the ear exactly as is an ordinary telephone receiver. The whole apparatus is worked by a small electric battery, which also finds a place in the pocket. Not only is the new apparatus more convenient than the old-fashioned ear trumpet, but it is claimed by the inventor that it entirely does away with the necessity of talking in a loud tone of voice.—Chicago Tribune.
