This week Bohemia Nugget put a representative in the field, with the view of increasing the circulation of the Nugget, in the person of W. E. Bowen, who is a practical newspaper man and who has had a number of years experience in the matter of soliciting. It is the aim of the management of this paper to increase the circulation at least 250 between now and January 1st if possible. In order to do this, owing to the limited field, it has been deemed advisable to send a man direct to the people with whom we desire to do business. The Nugget is devoted to the upbuilding of this locality and is deserving of your support; and as the support to the paper grows so will the paper grow. Mr. Bowen will be able to give you rates that cannot help but please you and any favors shown him will be appreciated by Bohemia Nugget.

At the Oregon Baptist Ministerial Conference held at Portland on the 16, Dr. King devoted his energies to pleading for "a revival in every church," sending a chilling icicle of cold facts down the collars of his listeners by announcing that of 100 Baptist churches in the state over one third had no conversions to record during 1898. He appealed for more life and earnest effort in the work of the church, asserting that too much lethargy existed among the members. This doctor is right, and he should be congratulated and supported by his co-workers, for being brave enough to speak his honest convictions. If a church grows and builds up in any community, the supporters of that church must rustle for it, just as they would in their individual business. When a man joins a church if he is sincere, he should expect to devote a little of his time and influence to the upbuilding of his church, and if he don't do it he isn't doing his duty, any more than if he neglected his part of the work in a partnership business and depended upon his partner to wiggle through it some way or other. If a man believes in God through the church, he should do his duty to the church. Don't figure on God being benevolent enough to forgive you of all your cussedness on this earth, to furnish you with a plan of salvation, to prepare a home for you way up yonder, and then expect him to do that which you have obligated yourself to do here on this earth. He may forgive you the sins you committed before you crawled under his blanket, but if you don't come to the center after that he will run his "blue pencil" from one end of the page of your life's history to the other.

Another month and people will be heard making "broad" remarks with reference to the condition of Main street; farmers will be complaining of the roads; and all because we do not give the question of road making proper attention, and fail to provide adequate ways and means to put them in decent condition.

Oregon excels in nearly every industrial pursuit—even to raising umbrellas.

Thursday's Oregonian announces that the U S grand jury has found indictments against R. J. Jennings and J. J. Jennings for preventing Deputy U. S. Surveyor Collier from surveying a private land claim.

In conversation Mr. C. H. Park, the well known mining man now interested in the Vesuvius and Stocks & Harlow mine, remarked that in all his mining experience he had never visit a more promising mining district than Bohemia, judging from the character of ores and adequate supplies of timber and water.

While the average American cannot help feeling admiration for the Shamrock and her clever crew and skipper, still all sport-loving natives of this side of the big pond are shaking hands with themselves on account of the Columbia's easy victory thus far in the great yacht race. The Shamrock was calculated for a winner and she "looked the part" so well that many of Columbia's proud admirers were a little uneasy as to the result; but the uneasiness is off. Columbia will win; the cup is still worth keeping another year, and Sir Thomas Lipton can go home and build another craft with which to lift (?) the cup next year.

DEWEY AND HIS YELLOW SHOES.

October Ladies Home Journal: When russet shoes of a bright yellow hue were introduced, Dewey wore the first pair that was seen in Washington. They at once became the subject of jest of all the officers of the navy department. Early in the afternoon one of Dewey's feet began to swell and his suffering from his new shoes was acute. In the interval between the call of friends, who were still "running" him on his shoes the commodore sought his chief clerk's room. He walked with a limp, and finally loosened the strings, to relieve his feet.

"I suppose I can't take these things off now," he remarked with a bitter smile, "for those fellows'll think they have driven me to it."

And for hours the commodore sat at his desk in perfect torture.

No matter what you want we have it at Cumming & Sehr.
