FRIDAY, OCT. 27, 1899.

A newspaper of the populist persuasion, whatever its name, is evidently making a determined effort to devote a quarter of its pages to unbecoming attacks on the administration of the Republican party. But the effort is a most laudable one, for it has given us an opportunity to point out the results of a policy which is clearly designed to oppose the administration of the party of which we are the self-styled advocates.

It is very Hawai, in fact, almost as Japanese, to have to face this constant field of attack on the administration of the party which we are trying to build up. It is true that the administration has made some mistakes, but the mistakes are not the result of any design to bring about a policy of opposition. They are the result of the inherent weaknesses of the party which we are trying to build up.

It is only fair to say that the administration has made some mistakes, but the mistakes are not the result of any design to bring about a policy of opposition. They are the result of the inherent weaknesses of the party which we are trying to build up.
