Let's donate a few dollars to building a roof over a pile of county rock. The editor of this paper will guarantee to shingle one day.

The Oregonian's Special New Year Edition is out and generally circulated throughout Oregon. It is a masterpiece in the matter of photographic and mechanical art, and a splendid advertisement for the great State of Oregon.

Congressman Tongue has expressed an opinion that there will be a river and harbor bill. When Mr. Tongue comes out flat footed and makes an assertion you can usually depend that he has a pretty good basis upon which to back his opinion.

The fact that we are buying bonds, instead of issuing them, shows another of the marked differences between the present administration, and the last one. And there are so many other agreeable differences that it would require a catalogue of many pages in which to detail them.—Denver Times Sun.

The Salem Statesman ever alive to the necessity of putting forth great efforts for Salem and surrounding country is out with a beautifully designed New Year edition, containing much information of benefit to the seekers of homes in this state. It is a great improvement over their last year's edition and in matter of style is the equal of the Oregonian.

Ira D. Shankey, speaking of the death of his evangelist partner, the late Dwight L. Moody, pays the great Christian worker the following tribute: "In the death of Mr. Moody the world has lost one of the greatest and noblest men of the age. I have labored with him for the last twenty-seven years, traveled with him by land and by sea, and by water."

Get the book to the ready. This book is demanding considerable attention and should be thoroughly circulated. The issue consists of 1900, and each copy if judiciously handled can be of benefit to Bohemia District, and that means benefit to Cottage Grove. We have gone to considerable expense, and trouble to put the book up—now let every man who has the interest of Cottage Grove and Bohemia at heart, get in and supply his friends with a copy. The cost of the book is 15 cents per copy—bearly the cost of the stock and ink. Three hundred of these books remain unsold. If you want them order them. If not, when we are sure that no one cares for them, they will make excellent kindling wood. Expensive half tone work burns well. Come up gentlemen and buy a dozen.

Marshal Miller has taken to running in some of the tough element that takes possession of the streets of Cottage Grove especially after night fall, who put in most of their time using boistrous, profane and abusive language. He is on the right track. Every man or boy he finds on the streets of Cottage Grove who purposely and willfully commits these misdemeanors or otherwise disregards the laws of decency, should be promptly arraigned, and then Judge Medley and Squire Vaughn will do their duty. The city should look into the matter and erect a good water proof roof over an immense pile of country rock and then convert these violators of good order and decency into stamp mills and start the stamps to droppin'. We need plenty of crushed rock on our streets and this is a good way to get some of it. This patting a man on the back when he's drunk and disorderly because he's a rattling "good feller" when he's sober well never give this city an enviable reputation abroad, nor gravel your streets.

Quite a little county political stir is now on—the Junction Times edited by Moorehead, one of the foremost republicans in the county—having published a few ideas as to which way the cat is going to jump. It is intimated that Judge Potter will not allow his name to come up, likewise Commissioner Bailey. The Times says that the democrats were, up to the time Day got his money mixed with the county's funds, grooming Fred Fisk for sheriff, expecting to turn Withers down on the plea that he was elected on the populist ticket, and by right of fusion, the next nomination for sheriff should be democratic, Withers being elected as a populist. The democrats are wise if they get this idea out of their heads and tie to Withers, who is the only man in Lane county that has a fighting show for election to office of sheriff on any ticket except the republican, and if he does not get the vote from the same sources that he manipulated at the last election, he will never officiate again. He must not only get the same vote but it must be greatly increased. The election of county officers in Lane county will be an interesting one this season, as no matter how the scales there may be tipped when they come to the polls, the democrats are decidedly in the lead. They are fully justified in the selection of the party. Simply benighted and mighty good that he is.

TO BE REGRETTED.

It is to be regretted that there is a class of young men who make it a business of coming into church late in the service and usually during the most interesting part, and disturbing the entire audience say nothing of interrupting the speaker. If young men have not sufficient respect for the feelings of those who attend church in true sincerity, to come and sit through a service in good behavior, they should at least have decency enough to stay out. There are a few—to the credit of the town be it said, a few—who make it a business to either come early, take a back seat and giggle
