

THE DAY OF HER DEBUT.

TO THE white-gloved ebony statue at the door this was only another of Stark's teas. Stark was the caterer. His punchbowl, his waiters, his salted almonds, and his bill went from house to house during the season. The man at the door wished Stark would get a new punchbowl. If it were not for the different faces that appeared behind it at every house life to him would be one long, unending party. From his post he could see the table in the dining-room, and he knew from the height of the candles that it was nearly 6. The men would be coming soon.

Matronly women in long fur wraps were waiting for their carriages, and girls in picture hats and trailing silks slipped through the throng into the drawing-room. A sweet-faced young girl in white chiffon, with her arms full of pink roses, stood before a mantle banked with flowers, at the left of a stately woman in lavender. It was the girl's first bow to society, and the woman by her side was still young enough to feel old when men stopped to make pretty speeches to her daughter. Mrs. Howe felt that having a debutante daughter was almost as bad as finding the first white hairs. The men were arriving now: the elder ones alone—the young fellows from the university re-enforced by one or two companions. Near the door was a great, broad-shouldered athlete, supported by a little blonde man with a confident air.

The big fellow kept saying: "Now, King, don't bolt and leave me alone. I'm getting more hands and feet every minute. I'll soon be like that chap about in Latin."

"Don't you?"

"My line."

"Does happen."

"o. She."

"fellow."

"week."

"last."

"black."

"a red."

"and seen."

Bob laughed, twisted his neck, and looked at my dear child. "I must be tired," said Mr. Fields, won't the dining-room a coffee or something?"

Bob thanked her with a gracious look, and the two disappeared on their way to the dining-room. There are one end of the table was a limp-looking girl with pale yellow hair and loose gloves on her thin arms. In front of her were a large samovar and an array of cups. She had been pouring chocolate and tea for the last ten years, and was growing old in the service. The silver candelabra at either end of the table proudly held up the half-burned pink candles with pink shades, and the cut-glass dishes of pink bonbons sparkled in their light. The waiters hurried here and there, bringing in plates of salad and ices. Pretty girls in dainty dresses served the guests standing about the room. When Dolly and Bob came in a girl in a much-beruffled pink silk rushed to them with a smile that showed all her dimples.

"Oh, Dolly, you're simply perfect. I wanted to talk to you when I came in, but there were so many people. My dear, your dress is a dream! And those roses! I was awfully late. I came right out here. I hope I've done some good. Why, Mr. Fields, I'm so glad you could come," she rattled on. "How is the sprained knee? We were all so proud of you last Thursday. Dolly, what do you suppose I heard this morning? I went up to see Alice Avery. You know she came home from New York last night. Well, she is engaged. She met the man at the springs last summer. He lives in Atlanta, and his name is Vernon Pierce. Didn't you meet a Mr. Pierce from Atlanta over there at the springs?"

Dolly knew her face was hot and flushed. She hoped Bob wouldn't notice it. "Yes, I think so," she said, trying to smile.

The other girl went on: "Alice confessed that he was a great flirt. She must be going to be married soon, or she would not announce her engagement. My dear, you look simply worn out. But you will get used to these teas and dances and things by the end of the winter," said the girl with the social experience of two seasons to her account. She smiled and glanced up at Bob, and showed all her dimples again.

The football player led Dolly to a little cushioned seat in an alcove. There was an orchestra behind a screen of palms. Now they were playing "La Paloma" with a mystical Mexican jingle. Dolly looked down at the great bunch of roses in her lap. They had come that morning—with Vernon Pierce's card. She was no longer there in the heated hall of her city home, with Bob, dear old stupid, tiresome Bob, by her side. It was moonlight, and she felt the air of a summer night on her face. They had been dancing and now they could hear the strains of "Forever and Forever." In the light from a window some one was standing before her. His voice was low and he was slinging the words of a waltz. "Oh, bid me hope to call thee mine, forever and forever."

She could remember all that he said that night at Greenbriar, and she remembered that she had laughed at him. Yes, she had laughed, and now she was glad. Of course he said the same things to Alice the next week. Alice went up there to the springs just after Dolly came home.

The man at the door came over and gave a handful of letters to Dolly. "These came in the afternoon mail," he said.

"You can read those, Bob," she said as she tossed her companion a pile of small envelopes. She knew they were regrets and things. There was one letter from postmastered Atlanta, and a strong, masculine "reply." "I ran," "I wanted to talk with the roses, but I risk it to the careless. Of course, I am in my disappointment in up to your 'coming out.' It depends entirely upon you to this—I shall come up on holidays. I don't know Miss Avery has announced, or not, but she is engaged to in. By the way, we both have the name. They will be married last of December, and I am best man—if you will let me to you what I tried so to understand last sum-each one to straighten a cane in the score above them. He hook his head at the face reflected in the mirror and murmured, "Not in my line. Not in my line."

Dolly looked up into his face smiling, but he knew that the light in her eyes was not for him.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Feminine Savagery.
European women have a craze for tattooing at the moment. They cause themselves to be decorated with dragons, serpents, griffins and such things, and call the figures tatoographs. The Queen of Greece is said to have had her ankles tattooed with some small figure, and a Parisian woman, hearing of this, went her one better and had a spider web tattooed on her shoulder. She claims to be delighted with the result, for she says when in full dress the "tatoograph" gives her an air of mystery, and attracts people to her shoulder if not to her side. It is not stated that the mouse has become a popular figure. A woman who could be guilty of such folly is not far removed from a savage, and it is safe to say that this fad will not be adopted by American women.

Macaulay's Memory.
Archdeacon Farrar in a recent reminiscence says that when a young man he had heard Macaulay name every woman who had been executed in England. He was then asked if he could name all of the archbishops. "Oh, yes," he replied, "any schoolboy could do that." The Archdeacon says that Macaulay's memory made him the most wonderfully informed man that ever lived.

Honest Boy.
"I am glad there are a few honest people left. Two years ago I sent a boy around the corner to buy a postal card. I have never seen the boy to this day."
"You don't call that boy honest?"
"Yes sir! This morning I received a postal with this on the back: 'Dear Sir: Here is your postal. I started in business with the penny you gave me and have prospered. Thanks.'"—Chicago Evening News.

England's Armored Trains.
The magnificent armored trains used by England in her war with the Boers will protect her troops in about the same way that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters drives dyspepsia from the human stomach, and then mounts guard that it does not return. The bitters has won in every case of indigestion, constipation, liver and kidney trouble for fifty years.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

"Nature Abhors a Vacuum."

Nothing in the world stands still. If you are well and strong day by day the blood supplies its tide of vigor. If you are ill, the blood is wrong and carries increasing quantities of diseased germs. You cannot change Nature, but you can aid her by keeping the blood pure. Hood's Sarsaparilla does this as nothing else can. Be sure to get Hood's, because

The January Century will contain a poem by Rudyard Kipling, "In the Matter of One Compass." Dr. Mitchell's story, "The Autobiography of a Quack," ends in that issue, but another serial by Dr. Mitchell will begin in the March number. It is called "Dr. North and His Friends," and one who has read the manuscript calls it "an epitome of the science, culture and common sense of the nineteenth century."

are packed away in your insides and must be kept clean, in order and doing business.

It's a long way, with many turns and pitfalls to catch the refuse and clog the channel if not most carefully cleaned out every day.

When this long canal is blockaded, look out for trouble—furred tongue, bad breath, belching of gases, yellow spots, pimples and boils, headaches, spitting up of food after eating,—an all-around disgusting nuisance.

Violent pill poisons or gripping salts are dangerous to use for cleaning out the bowels. They force out the obstruction by causing violent spasms of the bowels, but they leave the intestines weak and even less able to keep up regular movements than before, and make a larger dose necessary next time.

Then you have the pill habit, which kills more people than the morphine and whiskey habits combined.

The only safe, gentle but certain bowel cleansers are sweet, fragrant CASCARETS, because they don't force out the foecal matter with violence, but act as a tonic on the whole 30 feet of bowel wall, strengthen the muscles and restore healthy, natural action. Buy and try them! You will find that in an entirely natural way your bowels will be promptly and permanently

5 DROPS

A MARVELOUS DISCOVERY
In Medical Science, Wonderful, Astonishing, Yet True.

CURES RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA AND SCIATICA.

By the introduction in the medical field, of our most wonderful "5 DROPS," a legacy of inestimable value has been bequeathed to mankind. Suffering humanity is no longer at the mercy of diseases which have always defied the skill of the medical profession, for now "5 DROPS" defies these diseases, and has robbed them of their terror. This is truly a God-given remedy, yet invented by man for the benefit of suffering mortals, and will be handed down to coming generations as the most wonderful production in medical science during the Nineteenth Century. This remedy is positively curing more people daily than all other remedies combined. We challenge the worst cases of Rheumatism in all its forms, Catarrh, Neuralgia, Asthma, La Grippe and kindred diseases as a test of what this remedy will do. It has positively cured in a short time many who were bed-ridden for years; others who could only walk by the use of crutches, and still others who had been given up by competent physicians to die. This is no exaggeration. We have the evidence in our possession to prove all we say and more.

"5 DROPS" positively cures the following diseases: RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, DYSPEPSIA, BACKACHE, RAY-FEVER, CATARRH, SLEEPING SICKNESS, NERVOUSNESS, HEART WEAKNESS, TOOTHACHE, EARACHE, CREEPING NUMBNESS, BRONCHITIS, LIVER AND KIDNEY DISEASES, and where one is cured by this remedy, they stay cured of these diseases, for it fortifies the system against any future attack. "5 DROPS" is the name and five drops the dose. Large bottles (300 doses) prepared free, or full box for 25c. Sample bottles, regular price, 25c., but for the next thirty days from the date of this paper, we will send sample bottles upon receipt of 10c each. No one can appreciate this wonderful remedy until they try it. Write today. Agents wanted.
