Three cheers for the Helms and its owners. The decision in the circuit court means $55 to those in the district.

Cottage Grove people who visited Roseburg during the celebrated Helms law suit, speak highly of Roseburg, of her people and of the treatment they received while there.

If there was ever a doubt about it, it is now assured that Oregon will go republican—Bryan is going to visit this state again—what better republican argument could be forthcoming?

The Guard is trying to make a hero out of Attorney L. Bilyen because he happened to stop a gentle horse driven by a couple of Eugene ladies who were riding and broke a line. Lark always was somewhat heroic.

It is said that Judge Hamilton threw out most of Warner's evidence. It is alleged that he crossed himself in nearly every instance and perjured himself repeatedly—its a wonder he wasn't ordered thrown out of the window.

It is to be regretted that Harvey, who is implicated in the Thorne rape case, and it is alleged one of the foremost principals, could not have been tried this term of court. If he had his just deserts he would look through prison bars for the next 10 years.

Herbert Leigh made the remark at Roseburg the other day that when he returned to Cottage Grove he would start a grave yard. It would be a splendid chance for some tombstone agent to get in on the ground floor. Wonder what dim novel Herbert has been reading.

It is intimated since hearing the remarks that were made at Roseburg regarding the skum and s—bs of Cottage Grove being witnesses in the Jennings trial that eggs are cheap, and that a greater value is put upon those that have been in stock for several weeks—the older they are the better, you know, for some purposes.

The Oregonian repeatedly refers to Blue river and Bohemia Mining Districts as in Southern Oregon. In the Mineowners Club report in last Sunday's Oregonian it spoke of the mining in Southern Oregon near Eugene. For general information the Oregonian might tell how it figures Eugene and the Willamette and McKinzie rivers in Southern Oregon.

The city authorities should provide a way by which drunken men shall be kept off the streets. As a rule Cottage Grove is free from the drunken class, and no doubt this is the reason no more rigid rules have been adopted by the city authorities. However occasionally a drunk gets out on the street and the sight to say the least is a repulsive one, and always to be regretted.

The Cottage Grovites and Bohemialites have returned from Roseburg. It is reported that the Roseburg people were much surprised at the good behavior of our people. They had been educated by the Roseburg Review to believe that the Bohemia miners were lawless and disorderly people, when as a matter of fact a better class of people never earned an honest living in a mining district than these self same miners who came out from Bohemia and visited Roseburg last week, and whom the Roseburg Review on several occasions has cast a slur not easily overlooked.

ON ORES OF OREGON.

The first of a series of informal talks on mines and mining of the Northwest, given last evening at the Miners' Club, in the Imperial Hotel, was most instructive than was anticipated. Pursuant to the purpose of the club miners representing several districts of the Northwest were present, and each was called on for remarks bearing on his particular work and the character of the mines worked by him.

Paul Bammel, assayer of Portland, spoke at great length on the character of Oregon ores, treating the subject in detail and furnishing much of interest concerning the differences found in various counties of the state.

In the absence of President P. J. Jennings, Vice-President A. Newlands presided. A unique badge of office was a gavel composed of a large chunk of ore from the Goldfields mine. Vice-President Newlands briefly reviewed the purpose of the club at the opening, explaining the value of gathering mining men together, and introduced the first speaker, Paul Bammel. George M. Williams, now engaged in applying the Australian and New-Zealand dredge system to Southern Oregon, spoke in a very entertaining manner of that work. He said in New Zealand to-day there are 200 dredges on a single river, and expressed the belief that this system is the only one by which great tracts of low land can be successfully worked.

Mr. Percell said he would confine his remarks to one single district in Oregon—the Blue River basin. In introducing him, the chair announced him as a mining engineer of vast experience, and the speaker said whatever credit was given him he wished to use to bring forth the promising field of mining in Southern Oregon near Eugene. He predicted for the Blue River a future that would not fall second to any district in the state. Sumpter not excepted. Capital, he said, is only needed to conduct intelligent development work, and it is working its way there.

A. W. Ellis, of Sumpter, said a few words of that vast mineral belt, which Mr. Reintree had predicted would be great, as far back as 15 years ago. Milo P. Ward, who has considerable interests in Southern Oregon mines, gave a few hints on placer work, and closed with an emphatic request that miners come forward to support the club recently organized for the comfort and enlightenment of all interested in that work. The last speaker was the stand-by Colonel F. V. Drake, who counseled exploitation of Oregon's mineral resources along legitimate lines, and with a spirit of live and let live. Capital had been bitten in the past, which had done more to increase its timidity than all else, and those now at work should heed this setback by doing good honest work.

Refreshments were served to the club's guests by order of Secretary F. J. Hard; mining literature and maps were discussed, and the remainder of the evening was spent in a social communion, wherein the champions of the various districts in the Northwest fought over their causes with great hilarity.—Oregonian.

The mining litigation is settled beyond a reasonable doubt and the Helms under the able management of Jennings, Ross, and Brunsen will begin to stamp out record breakers for Bohemia District.

A Copeland from Roseburg announces that Judge Hamilton has denied G. G. Warner et al a new trial in the Helms case and has dissolved the injunction. Messrs. Jennings and Brunsen state that the Helms will be operated as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made, probably next week.

THE PRIMARIES.

The republican county primaries will be held March 26. Every republican should turn out and get acquainted with every other republican and help elect good, responsible men as delegates to the county convention. This would be a good place to talk over this registration law. And explain the necessity of every voter registering. Remember that the law is not intended to prevent a legally entitled voter from voting, but on the contrary, to prevent those who always wish to vote who are not entitled to do so.
