A KENTUCKY FEUD.

The most graphic description of the modern Kentucky feud yet published is found in the Pickneyville, Ill., Democrat of recent date, as follows:

"Man born in the wilds of Kentucky is of feud days and easy virtue. He fisheth, fiddleth and fighteth all the days of his life. He shuns water as a mad dog and drinketh much bad whiskey. When he desireth to raise hades he planteth a neighbor, and lol he reapeth twenty-fold. He raiseth even from his cradle to seek scalp of his grandsires enemy, and bringeth home in his carcass the ammunition of his neighbor's wife's cousin's uncle's father-in-law, who avengeth the deed. Yea, verily, his life is uncertain, and he knoweth not the hour when he may be jerked hence.

"He goeth forth on a journey 'half shot' and he cometh home on a shutter shot! He getteth up in the night to let the cat out and it taketh nine doctors three days to pick the buckshot from his person. He goeth forth in joy and gladness and cometh home in scraps and fragments. He refers to his neighbor as a liar, and goeth filled with scrap iron, even to the fourth generation. A cyclone bloweth him into the bosom of his neighbor's wife and his neighbor wife's husband followeth him into the bosom of Father Abraham before he hath time to explain. He emptieth a demijohn into himself and a shot gun into his enemy, and his enemies'
