NATIONAL CONVENTION.

The National Convention in session at Philadelphia on Thursday, nominated Wm. McKinley for President, by acclamation, amidst enthusiasm unsurpassed. Governor Theodore Roosevelt of New York was chosen candidate for vice-President.

The great Republican National Convention for 1900 is a thing of the past and it goes into history as having named the two greatest national leaders for the two great offices within the gift of the American people, Wm. McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt.

The republican party could not have anticipated a better result. No political power in existence could keep Wm. McKinley out of the presidential chair, if nominated, but his ticket has been materially strengthened by the nomination of Governor Roosevelt for vice president.

The work of the convention will meet the approval of the national party without a dissenting voice. The success of the party in the November election is a foregone conclusion.

A very disagreeable feature of the ball game last Saturday was the tin-horn and rooting element. It was disagreeable to the Bohemia team, inasmuch as they considered the Lorane boys guests, and it was poor courtesy to treat them with the conglomeration mess of tin horns and slang to which they were subjected to. It was also highly resented by many of the spectators, and was not at all elevating to those who took an active part in it. No doubt those who took part in it had little thought of their appearance and of the impression made upon the average by-stander. It is to be hoped that, should another game be played here, there will be less of it.

Parents should make it their strict duty to see that their children are not running wild upon the streets at night. The passing of a few parental "ordinances" and living up to them will save the reputation of many a boy and girl, the parents much anguish of heart, and the city authorities considerable unjust criticism.

The Guard announces in its glaring head lines Monday evening that Hobart would be McKinley's running mate this campaign. By way of a news item we would suggest to the Guard that Mr. Hobart is dead.

A curfew ordinance would not be a bad thing in Cottage Grove, provided it was enforced. Take a good curfew ordinance and a good parental ordinance, apply them well, and shake well just before going to bed. Keep this up regularly each night until the youngsters are of age, and, in a majority of cases, especially if the disease is not of long standing, a permanent cure will be effected. Try it.

Hon. T. C. Devalin, city auditor of Portland who has been spending the last 10 days with J. W. Cook on an outing on Rowe River, has returned home. It is intimated that the gentlemen took nearly all the trout in the stream and that they made it a "hot time" for mountain lions and cougars. In fact it is said that where ever these gentlemen spend a vacation in quest of cougar and mountain lion, large bands of sheep can be grazed with perfect propriety for several years afterwards.

THE OFFICIAL COUNT.

The Long Looked for Count is Made—Kincaid Judge by One Vote.

The judges completed the official count of Lane county last Thursday evening, and as was stated in last week's Nugget Mr. Knox lost the judgeship by one vote. Following is the result of the official count:

Table with 2 columns: Name and Vote Count. Includes Congress, Justice Supreme Court, Dairy Commissioner, District Attorney, Joint Senator, County Judge, Assessor, Superintendent, Surveyor, Coroner, Sheriff, and various legislative members.

A sensational report, shocking in the extreme, is current with reference to a certain business man of this city. It is not necessary to mention names, more particularly because it is not the first time he has been identified as a principal to escapades which always result in dragging the name of some innocent girl in the mire of scandal. This man, who at times appears to court the better class of society, seems to take delight in picking his victims from among the little girls of this city. He seems to gloat in bringing shame upon the heads of the young and innocent. Only this week he was a visitor to Portland and while there, it is alleged, wrote a letter to a little girl—a relative—to join him there. The letter fell into the hands of the girl's people, and the monster's scheme was blocked. Finding that he could not accomplish his purpose he, with the old-time audacity which has marked his career of 20 years, returns to the city of homes he has in times past made miserable.

STOCK AND FARM.

Eggs were imported into Great Britain last year to the value of $24,548,227, and poultry and game to the value of $3,821,633. The number of eggs imported were 1,920,000,000.

The Pacific Homestead of last week gives an illustration of a young man's work shop on a farm in Benton county, Oregon. The idea is a good one. It suggests one of the ways to keep the boys on the farm. The time is coming when there will be a reverse movement, from city to country. Evidences of it are seen in all the big American cities. The work shop on the farm is one of the things that will help in this movement. And then it can be made worth its cost in saving of time and money.

The farmers of the wheat-growing districts of the Pacific Northwest are facing a very serious problem as to getting sufficient help for the harvest season. It will be almost impossible to get enough hands to do the work and the wages which will have to be paid will be out of all proportion to the price of wheat.—Oregon Agriculturist.
